Lawrence Springborn

Springborn Dies On Jamaican Trip

Lawrence Springborn, DuPage County sheriff, died late Wednesday while on vacation in Jamaica. The cause of the death was listed as a heart attack.

Springborn, who was to have celebrated his 56th birthday tomorrow, served as county sheriff for two terms. He served from 1958 to 1962 and then served a term as county treasurer from 1962 to 1966. Under the laws of the state, a county sheriff cannot succeed himself in office.

A staunch conservative in Republican politics, Springborn was a top vote-getter and received his strongest support from elder citizens and those of long residential standing in the county.

HE WAS EXPECTED to make a bid in the 1970 elections for another term as county treasurer, and was considered by many as a sure winner. His only political setback came in 1968 when he failed in a bid for the office of county coroner.

The announcement of his candidacy for treasurer was expected at a press conference scheduled for Oct. 17. Another press conference to be held today by Chief Deputy Wayne Shimp has been canceled. Speculation has been that Shimp intended to announce his candidacy for county sheriff to succeed Springborn.

Springborn, a lifelong resident of Naperville, also served as deputy sheriff for 16 years and as a constable in Naperville Township for 12 years.

As county sheriff, Springborn initiated the merit commission and a new training program which included police psychology. He was considered innovative and progressive by many.

ACTIVE IN BOTH Boy Scout and Girl Scout work, Springborn also served as a committeeman in Precinct 4 of Naperville for 28 years and retired as a lieutenant in the Naperville Fire Department after 24 years of service.

Springborn is survived by his widow, Jeannette; three sons, Larry Jr., 10, at home, Richard, 28, of Edmonton, Alberta, Canada, and James, 26, serving with the Army in California; daughter-in-law, Roberta, and a granddaughter, Stacy; a daughter, Jeanne, 20, at home, and three brothers, Donald of Naperville and Howard and Glenn of Aurora.

The Springborns maintained their private home in Naperville, but lived in Wheaton in a residence at the county jail.

Under state statute, the DuPage County coroner is to execute the duties of the sheriff until a new chief is appointed. Dr. Samuel K. Lewis, DuPage County coroner, will be acting sheriff.

Funeral arrangements were incomplete yesterday. A spokesman for Friedrich's Funeral Home in Naperville said the home has not heard from Jamaican authorities on when Springborn's body will be returned here. The spokesman said the funeral could not possibly take place before Monday or Tuesday of next week.

NOISE Fight Set

WASHINGTON — NOISE, a new committee to fight jet aircraft noise and insure safe environments, was formed yesterday following a hearing before the House Committee on Science and Astronautics. Bensenville's Village Pres. John Varble was named to the temporary steering committee which also includes Mayor William Goodie of Inglewood, Calif., supervisor Ralph Casco of Hempstead, N.Y., and Mayor Stanley Olson of Ridgefield, Minn.

Varble and other political leaders from the northwest suburbs were appearing in Washington to focus legislative attention on the problems of jet noise at O'Hare Airport. During the two days of intensive meetings and policy-setting discussions, the representatives from various states met with their congressmen to plead for a concerned attack on the problem.

THE ILLINOIS delegation led by Varble, took its case to Rep. John Erlenborn and senators Charles Percy and Ralph Smith in meetings Tuesday, Wednesday and yesterday. Erlenborn said he would release a statement backing noise abatement.

Other representatives from Illinois include Dr. Ralph Madonia, William Warnock and George Franks of Wood Dale and Donald Connelly of Roselle.

The Illinois representatives met with both Percy and Smith in their offices on Wednesday.

"This is the biggest crowd I've had in my office since I arrived," joked Smith, the newly appointed senator to replace the late Sen. Everett Dirksen.

Smith said he will back federal action to cut jet noise in spite of his long-standing position opposing big government interference.

"IT IS NOT reasonably possible to keep the federal government out of this," he said. "I will cooperate in any conceivable way I can," he added.

Smith asked for a concise memorandum from the group outlining suggested solutions to the problem.

During the group's interview with Percy, the senator said he was confident an answer could be found to the noise problem.

Percy said he would be in the Chicago area this weekend and is ready and willing to hear citizens' complaints. The senator said he believes a third airport in the Chicago area might help eliminate the O'Hare noise problem, adding that at this time he favors an airport in the Joliet vicinity.

HE PROMISED he would immediately contact the Federal Aviation Agency and demand that the FAA release an overdue study on acceptable noise level standards. He also said he would contact Boeing, Douglas and Lockheed airplane manufacturers to discover what each company is doing to solve the problem of noise.

"I'll tell them they're going to have a tough time getting contracts if they don't do it," he said grimly.

Throughout the two days of meetings, representatives of the FAA were conspicuously absent. During the public hearing, supervisor Casco charged, "This is an FAA boycott and it's an insult. Even an underling could have been sent."

Clifton F. vonKann of the Air Transport Association of America estimated it would cost the airlines approximately $800 million to put noise-reducing devices on the airplanes now in existence. He also said it would take four to five years to do the job and could not promise noise would be re-

Tempers Flare Up Over Sewer Issue

Tempers frayed a bit on the usually diplomatic Itasca Village Board Tuesday night as the panel went another round of planning on the Prospect-Thorndale sewer line, supposedly nearing conclusion.

The line, to be financed by the Central Manufacturing District, can't be built until a contract between CMD and the village defining mutual efforts is completed.

As discussion of one of Mayor Will Nottke's favorite projects continued, Trustee Roy Petherbridge suggested that because the board is not aware of the complete situation, the matter should be discussed later.

USUALLY DIPLOMATIC, Nottke blasted the trustee for the remark.

"I have no idea what's going on," Petherbridge said during the course of discussion.

"Well, maybe you ought to be excused from the conversation," Nottke said.

Petherbridge was complaining about complexities in the contract and planning.

Nottke maintained that the matter is "simple." He was seeking a recommendation from the board about an existing but unused line along the same route as the new proposed sewer.

Nottke suggested abandonment of the line, but pointed out potential legal problems involved. Petherbridge finally gave up trying to figure out what was going on and suggested that other courses of action be taken.

THESE INCLUDED a meeting to clarify the entire project or having those involved in the planning — primarily Nottke and Village Atty. Lawrence Traeger — determine the best course of action for the entire project and bring the whole package back to the board for approval.

Nottke, angry with the comment, began to explain further, bringing a fresh batch of questions about the proposed sewer line from the rest of the board.

Again, Petherbridge pointed out confusion: "We're talking about the last 200 feet of a sewer line. How about the first 2,000 feet? You've been working day and night on this; perhaps you should figure out what needs to be done and then bring back the whole thing to the board."

NOTTKE RETORTED, "What do you want? If we talk about it you say we shouldn't, and if we don't talk about it you complain."

Petherbridge said he wasn't trying to offend anyone, and repeated the suggestion.

"Look," Nottke fumed, "I make a lot of decisions about this village every day you don't even know about."

Petherbridge responded, "You've tried to bring this to a point. You're asking the board to approve part of a project when we don't know what the total project is."

The particulars appeared to be that the

Itasca Fights Noise Battle In Home Area

While Bensenville Mayor John Varble and representatives of the O'Hare Area Noise and Air Pollution Abatement Council are seeking to bend influential ears in Washington, D.C., the Village of Itasca is content to work through congressmen and senators.

Noting an expression of thanks from Council Chairman George Franks, Itasca Mayor Will Nottke said his community didn't send anyone to Washington because "we already have a representative there — John Erlenborn." Erlenborn is the congressman from the 14th district, including DuPage and Will counties.

Trustee Roy Petherbridge loosed an attack on the efforts of Varble, commenting that the Bensenville mayor is seeking headlines.

"EVEN THOUGH he's a personal friend of mine," the trustee said, "Varble is a Johnny-come-lately to the problem (of air and noise pollution)."

"He went running off to Washington, but he hasn't done his homework. You get results through the sort of action we took, and not by wielding headlines."

Petherbridge was referring to a resolution passed by the Itasca Village Board calling on Sen. Charles Percy to initiate legislation that would curb noise and air pollution from O'Hare International Airport.

Franks is representing the council of 19 communities who wrote the resolution, while Varble is representing the Village of Bensenville.

The kits, assembled by Junior Girl Scout Troop 530, will be distributed early tomorrow afternoon at the Georgetown Apartments shopping center, site of a

Now that voters of Wood Dale School Dist. 7 have sanctioned a $250,000 bond issue and a $425,000 interest-free loan from the Illinois Building Commission, residents of the Wood Dale area have once again shown that, in spite of some kidding, they can get things done.

This is more than some of the neighboring communities and other school districts have achieved lately.

And there will be more of this in the future as Wood Dale's burgeoning population buckles down and meets the challenge of the needs the community will face, whether it be educational in both parochial and public schools, or at the local government level.

WOOD DALE OVER the years has weathered defeat, but lately the pendulum has swung to the other side.

Sure, it could swing the other way, but for the present the citizenry of Wood Dale has taken the bit and is running with it.

Residents will admit taxes are creeping up, but where aren't they?

Where else do you find a 60 per cent discount to water users who pay their quarterly bills on time?

How would your community like to get bona gratis two new fire engines — one a snorkel — and a site for a new fire station?

WHERE ELSE HAVE the residents experienced an additional sewage treatment plant without a bond issue? The same is true for an additional water reservoir.

Where else has the community received a land donation on which to build a new village hall and perhaps a community recreational center, let alone nearly a quarter of a million dollars in cold cash from which it will build a community swimming pool?

Poor little old Wood Dale — that's what some people have been saying.

Where else has a community paid for a street-widening program out of its own treasury without state or federal highway funds allocated for that purpose?

SURE, PART OF THE funding comes from motor fuel tax allotments, but the rest is from local financing.

Poor little old Wood Dale — that's what some people have been saying.

What about the new village hall now under construction? Who paid for that facility? Sure, it was village funds, but what about the interest that has been saved by paying cash rather than through a bond issue?

Who started the ball rolling to get neighboring villages together to form a noise abatement council to fight what one local resident called "Jet-itis"?

SOME COMMUNITIES may say they were in the fight long before little old Wood Dale, but it was little old Wood Dale who got everyone together as a group to coordinate a plan of action. And it appears that the council with its appointed representatives and committee members are moving in for real and not just for words.

People will forget these things and look more toward the other side of the ledger, like its recent problems with scavengers and local police force or its running battle with Georgetown.

But things may settle down, and Georgetown has been a boon to Wood Dale, particularly from the municipal sales tax received each month by the village.

A few years back the monthly take was less than $1,500. Today it's around $8,000 and is growing all the time. The increase has been due primarily to Georgetown Square, now in its third phase of construction.

Poor little old Wood Dale, that's what some people have been saying!

Smith, Percy Promise Support

duced significantly to pacify the communities involved.

VONKANN PRODUCED several suggestions which he said the airlines would find acceptable. He said the airlines are now working to reduce the noise at its source by redesigning and modifying aircraft engines.

The airlines also would be willing to attempt reducing people's exposure to noise by using noise abatement methods which would keep airplanes at a further distance from the ground, vonKann added.

The aircraft spokesman said this would require a certain degree of limitations on flight.

VONKANN threw part of the noise problem into the laps of the citizens by saying aircraft modifications would not completely solve the problem until residents in the area made efforts to insulate buildings and houses against noise, and control the use of land under departure and arrival paths.

He said that conditions around O'Hare airport are substantially better than conditions near other major airports in the country because land use control has been applied.

"EXAMINATION OF aerial photographs show that land near the (O'Hare) airport has been built up but it has largely been for noise-compatible industrial use rather than residential," he said.

He also pointed out that airports bring a steady rise in land values. For example, the city of Chicago originally acquired the land for O'Hare in 1947 at a cost as low as $400 per acre.

By 1960, the cost of neighboring farm land needed for airport expansion had risen to $20,000 per acre. Today, he said, the cost is as high as $50,000 per acre.

"We ask the communities affected by aircraft noise to recognize and accept their responsibility for requiring land use compatible with noise exposure under flight paths used for landings and take-offs by nearby airports," vonKann said.

"MEANINGFUL reduction in aircraft noise annoyance cannot be achieved without this community action," vonKann concluded.

"This is white-wash we have all heard before," answered Rep. Joseph C. DiCarlo, D-Mass. The audience roared its approval to his statement.

"You talk about land compatibility," charged DiCarlo. "these residential areas were there before the airports. You have complete disregard for people who live in the area."

DiCarlo charged the airlines have shown no cooperation or concern for the lives of people in the vicinity and insisted that the fight for noise abatement was a fight against a powerful lobby.

RALPH E. SIRIANNI, also D-Mass., charged that the runways at airports have been extended to accommodate jets and not to reduce noise as vonKann had suggested. VonKann denied the statement.

During the organizational part of the committee meeting, an attempt was made by representatives of various towns to pass a resolution opposing further government financing of supersonic transport planes. After discussion on the topic, it was tabled and referred to a committee to be chosen by Goodie and Casco.

Introduce Jet Noise Bill

Washington — A new bill was introduced in Congress yesterday to return power and control to the states and localities in the fight against jet noise. The bill would remain in effect until the Federal Aviation Agency sets standards for the noise level. The purpose of the bill is to force the FAA to take immediate action.

Congressman John W. Wylder, R-Nassau County, New York, introduced the bill at a special meeting on Capitol Hill of state and local officials from all across the United States.

The Wylder bill on jet noise is designed to amend P190-411 which was passed in 1968. The original bill allowed the FAA to issue regulations limiting the jet noise.

"The original legislation was sponsored by me," Wylder said, "and it was an important first step in the fight against jet noise."

HE ADDED, "Unfortunately, no rules or regulations have been issued by the FAA to date. Until they are issued, the law will be of no help to those suffering from the problem of jet noise."

The bill would return to local authorities the right to make and enforce rules and regulations controlling jet noise and sonic boom until such time as the FAA issued its regulations.

At the present time, the FAA is in the process of considering limitations on the jet noise allowable by aircraft now in production but not yet flying, the so-called jumbo jets.

The research being done in that field will not affect present aircraft which are flying over local areas and causing the noise problem, Wylder said. He added that his bill would fill this gap by giving local areas the power to protect their citizens.

WYDLER ANNOUNCED his bill at a special conference called in Washington by Supervisor Ralph Casco of Hempstead, N.Y., and attended by Chicago area officials from suburbs surrounding O'Hare Field. Among those present at the conference was Bensenville Village Pres. John Varble who was named to a special committee to study the problems of noise from aircraft.

Varble was expected back in Bensenville Thursday night in time to address the board of trustees on his findings. While in Washington, he also met with Sen. Charles Percy and Ralph Smith and Rep. John Erlenborn. All three pledged their support of programs which would put federal limitations on jet noise.

Even Smith, who is normally opposed to any kind of big government interference, said he felt, "It's not reasonably possible to keep the federal government out of this."

Clark Refuses Job

The prime candidate for the job of village administrator in Wood Dale has declined the job, it was announced yesterday.

Barry Clark, currently an assistant village manager in the Trenton, N.J., area, accepted another position on the east coast, according to Village Councilman Dino Janis.

Janis said yesterday there were "reasons other than money" listed by Clark in turning down Wood Dale's offer.

The candidate had been offered $12,000 plus a variety of fringe benefits totaling more than the offer made by the unnamed choice of Clark, Janis said.

JANIS SAID the next step is "to start all over again" in the search for a village administrator. He added that this time the village council will play a greater role in advertising, application review and screening of interested persons than was previously done.

Janis was clearly disappointed in what he called "procrastination" of the special screening committee set up by the council when it was agreed to hire an administrator. About four months' time was used in the selection process, Janis said.

The committee and the council interviewed eight applicants and narrowed the field to Clark last Saturday. Janis earlier this week expressed some confidence that Clark would come to Wood Dale.

"NOW WE START ALL over again, advertising for a village administrator," the councilman said yesterday, "and this time the council will play a more active role in the selection of a candidate."

He did not define the role precisely, but it seems clear that the screening committee will be working with the council, rather than independently.

What effect it will have on committee members is not certain.

Start Sewage Treatment Plant Design

At a calm, short, and poorly attended Bloomingdale Village Board meeting Wednesday night, trustees concentrated on sewer and water problems.

Ralph F. Gross, village engineer, reported the plans for the trunk sewers have been laid out and the lines are properly oversized for the entire village. He will now proceed with the design for the sewage treatment plant.

Gross also made an optimistic report on the village's existing sewage plant. A recent 14-day meter check indicated the plant's intake had increased 10,000 gallons per day within the last two years. The plant which was built for a maximum of 200,000 gallons of water per day is now handling 135,000 gallons per day.

HOWEVER, CONDITION of the effluent

after treatment rather than amount of flow, is the main concern of the state sanitary water board, Gross said.

The Bloomingdale plant's effluent meets state standards, he added, citing results from recent tests done by Larry Freier, superintendent of public works.

Freier will conduct more tests on the content of the stream on which the plant is located. He will collect samples both upstream and downstream from the plant to determine just how much the plant affects the oxygen content of the stream and how much independent users affect it after plant effluent has been accounted for.

RALPH JOHNSTON, one of three trustees at the meeting and chairman of the public works department, announced a special committee meeting to be held Thursday to discuss flooding problems at Suncrest unit four, north of Lake and east of Circle Avenue.

The new pump for the lift station on Pleasant Street which had been promised by the manufacturer this week after two delays has not arrived.

In final motions the board passed a resolution of intent stating Bloomingdale would cooperate with studies done regarding the proposed $3 million county trunk line from Roselle to Glen Ellyn Heights.

Firemen To Hold Open House Day

An open house will be held at the Bensenville Fire Station from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Sunday in conjunction with National Fire Prevention Week, Oct. 4 through 11.

Movies on fire prevention and tours of the building will be going on continuously and a demonstration of fire extinguishers will take place at 11 a.m.

Balloons will be handed out and the name of poster contest winners will be announced. More than 1,500 posters urging fire prevention were entered in the contest by grade school children.

DURING THE last week, firemen Al Quinn and Walter Kehoe have shown films and given lectures at several schools in Bensenville. Fire Chief Armin Korthauer reported that the number of visitors to the station this week has been high.

The firemen will also celebrate the 75th anniversary of the company Oct. 19.

Sewer Talk Gets Heated

current line, unused, was partially paid for by residents who will not benefit from the CMD arrangement. Nottke was concerned about the possibility that abandonment of the line would bring legal problems to future users of the present line.

HE EXPLAINED that the existing line, a 27-inch main, is four feet too high in the ground, and that the new line would have to go directly under it.

"You tell me how we can do that without disturbing the present line," Nottke said to Petherbridge.

"I'd take the 27-inch line out and put a bigger one in," came the reply.

Further discussion revealed that future use by property owners affected by but not involved in the CMD line, would not add excessive load to the proposed new line.

Payment of the line would be through tap-on fees via the village to CMD. Those who have paid for the current line in part include "the Gould property and Roth Rubber."

WITH THAT, Petherbridge entered a motion which was eventually accepted by the board. It called for abandonment of the present line, and installation of a new line in its place, four feet lower in the ground. Those who had helped pay for the old line will not have to contribute to the new one, although usual tap on fees for new additions will be charged as usual.

Wood Dale To Hold Police Examinations

More patrolmen's examinations will be held in Wood Dale tomorrow afternoon as that community continues to rebuild its police force.

Several more men are needed in the wake of mass resignations by five policemen last month. The resignations followed a strike by most of the force during September and the filing of charges against officers who called in sick to protest wages and working conditions.

The department hired several new officers immediately prior to the resignations and is now seeking to fill out the force to its full strength of 10 men.

Con-Con Forum Held

As the Nov. 18 election date for Constitutional Convention delegates nears, the 30th District's four candidates have begun a second round of offering their views and positions to all who will listen.

Tuesday, the Republican Women of Itasca heard the candidates speak and answer questions about tax and judicial reform, conservation and their general philosophies of government.

Each of the candidates, Mrs. Margaret (Toni) Larson, Thomas C. Kellegan, Stanley Kula and William A. Sommerschield, is hoping he will be one of the two district representatives rewriting the state Constitution in Springfield.

KELLEGAN, A WHEATON attorney and resident of West Chicago, felt he was "handicapped" by the five-minute time limit, but managed to fill it with specific ideas and suggestions. He emphasized that Constitutional Convention delegates must know the state's governing document thoroughly before they attempt to draft a new one.

"They must know what they have and know what to keep and then change only parts which are no longer necessary or in which action must be taken," Kellegan said.

He said his main goal is to "find out what the people want. There have been many suggestions by various organizations as to changes, but these organizations are not conversant with the people."

KELLEGAN MADE THE strongest statements of all the delegates regarding taxation. "We have to have a strict clamp on taxation. There has to be an end to the limitless financial burden on property owners."

Although he favored preservation of local power, he said he would not allow municipalities to levy income taxes.

He concluded his remarks by proposing a watchdog commission, similar to one in Ohio to oversee the operation of state government.

Kula, a Lombard attorney seconded Kellegan's views on judges, favoring election over appointment.

KULA SPOKE AFTER Kellegan, who had to leave early. Both men dismissed the Missouri plan as nondemocratic and opposed any alternative that removed direct selection of judges from the voters.

"I am against any further amendment of the judiciary. We should have a choice. The Missouri plan doesn't give you a choice; it doesn't let you vote for judges," Kula said.

Kula did think changes were necessary regarding the appointment of magistrates. These officials hear approximately 95 per cent of all small claims cases, according to Kula. Because of the importance of function, they should not serve at the pleasure of the circuit court, he said.

SOMMERSCHIELD HOLDS completely opposite views on the selection of judges, favoring the Missouri plan. "We have to make the distinction between practical and philosophical politics. We don't elect judges now, when we put a slot in the box for someone who played politics to get on the ballot," he said.

The Missouri plan, or some form of it, which Sommerschield wants, would place the selection of judges into the hands of a revolving committee. Periodically the electorate would have the opportunity to retain these judges.

Kula admitted the present method of having political leaders in each of the two parties selected who will run on a partisan ticket "is not quite grassroots enough," but he still disagreed to a selecting committee fearing it would be dominated by the bar association. "This would be merely trading faces, but not procedures."

NOT AS DYNAMIC as Kellegan on tax limitation, Kula did say he is "not certain we do need a state income tax," but now that it's here, "the citizens should decide if it's to be increased."

Kula also felt citizen approval is necessary if the 5 per cent indebtedness limit for a local governing body is to be increased.

Mrs. Larson's views on taxation considered the developing urban character of the entire state. Government's main source of income, based as it is on real estate, stems from an agrarian culture and is causing chaotic land development, she said.

Because land means revenue, there are "raids between municipalities grabbing land. If the tax base was changed, development would be more orderly," she said.

SEVERAL QUESTIONS about conservation and the candidates' feelings toward it were asked. Mrs. Larson has suggested an environmental department, whose authority would supersede all related departments, to correlate, review and extend priorities on programs.

Kula told the Republican group, "You will only get what you ask for in the line of conservation. We've got the teeth in the form of all the legislation we need, if you just want to work those jaws."

Sommerschield indicated conservation is an area in which the state government should be made more effective and said interstate cooperation is also needed.

Mrs. John LaChapelle, 308 Greenview St., Itasca, a member of the audience, wanted more specific explanations as to what the candidates intend to do with the Constitution and what articles will be changed if they are elected, but her thinking changed with the response she got.

SOMMERSCHIELD replied that she was "expecting a lot in five minutes," offering to answer any questions with detailed answers, but Mrs. Larson stressed, whatever the individual candidate's views are, they will have to be compromised in Springfield. "There will be representatives from Cairo and Chicago deciding what's best for the state," she said.

Pros and cons concerning selection of judges, methods of tax reform and conservation are all dependent upon the integrity and interest of the men establishing them, Mrs. LaChapelle concluded, along with the rest of the ladies.

To get an idea of just how sincere and interested the candidates are, the group asked them to review their reasons for entering the race for Constitutional Convention delegates.

By that time, Mrs. Larson and Sommerschield were the only candidates left at the luncheon meeting. Kula, like Kellegan had also returned to his office.

KELLEGAN HAD earlier told the Register his interest in the Constitution began while he taught government at St. Procopius College in Lisle. He constantly noted ideas from textbooks and professors which were "not in keeping with the American way of governing."

To prevent these ideas from taking root in Illinois' new document, he decided to become a delegate to the Constitutional Convention, he said.

Kula said his candidacy materialized from his feelings as a citizen, attorney and an active member in the Republican organization.

MRS. LARSON TOLD the group she has been involved in local government and community affairs for 13 years and felt strongly toward taking a part in writing a new constitution that will allow improvement in needed areas.

Sommerschield, a member of the Constitutional Convention committee promoting the concept last summer, was concerned about writing "a document that would be a framework for entry into the 70s. Certainly, checks and balances will have to be preserved, but there are areas that have to be streamlined to make the Constitution more viable and flexible."

"These are areas where we formerly put up limiting walls. Now the walls are beginning to crumble and we have to start building roads."

Name Mrs. Soukup

Medinah Elementary School Dist. 11 appointed Mrs. James E. Soukup, 22 W. 319 Lawrence St. to the school board, replacing Edward E. Thommen, Monday night.

Mrs. Soukup belongs to the Medinah Homeowners Association and was included in the outstanding women of America list in 1966.

Thommen, who she will be replacing until the next election in April, 1971, resigned because he and his family are moving to Charlotte, N. C.

IN APRIL voters will select a candidate to complete the remaining two years of Thommen's term.

Group Sets Plans

Educators and ministers from the Lake Park High School Dist. 108 area met yesterday to discuss methods of attacking drug abuse in the community before it becomes a serious problem.

The meeting, called by Dist. 108 Supt. Carl Forrester, concluded with plans for definite action on the issue and the prospect that the group will become active in other important community matters.

The group of 20 ministers and elementary school superintendents, designated Forrester to appoint a committee which will begin researching various ways a narcotics education program could be instituted in the schools.

ON NOV. 13, the study committee will report back to the group which will review its tentative findings. Forrester said he would appoint the committee today.

No Lake Park students have been found in the school under the influence of drugs or with possession of drugs, Forrester told the group, but he added, "We would be naive if we thought the problem doesn't exist."

Forrester went on to describe the Lake Park area as "relatively free of the problem and unusually fortunate because of this." His original purpose in calling the group together was to establish "some type of coordinated community activity, including the churches and schools."

MEMBERS OF THE group agreed steps had to be taken and initiated at the elementary school level. Another consideration of a community-wide program would be reaching the parents. Many parents are unable to recognize the symptoms of drug usage and their children can become addicts without parental knowledge.

Besides learning the medical and technical aspects of drugs, the program could help parents understand why their children resort to drugs.

Although he had no formal statistics, Forrester said he knew from talking with high school superintendents that approximately 75 per cent of the schools in the Northwest suburbs have serious drug problems.

LAST YEAR A program for Lake Park and its coterminous elementary school districts sponsored by the National Council for the Prevention of Drug Addiction was canceled because the organization's regional representative was discredited by a court conviction.

The program, which brought in former addicts to talk to the students on their level, advising them of the hazards of drug usage, is supposedly very reputable. Forrester said, but he doubted whether the community or schools would accept it.

The study committee's job will be to look for or formulate a substitute program on drug education.

Are you willing to go as low as '1939* for a new VW?

We don't sell status. Just a car. One that gets up to 27 mpg, hardly uses oil between changes, and goes a long way on a set of tires.

Of course, the fact that it's practical is no secret. And everybody is going to know that you're saving money. But that's the price you pay for a Volkswagen.

He Smooths Nervous Gears in Novice Drivers

What kind of man does it take to sit calmly in a car driven by a nervous 16-year-old girl in her first driving lesson?

Maybe there is no type of man, as such, but Don Lovelace of Lake Park High School does his best to fit the bill.

He admits that sometimes it takes a little will power to resist applying the brake on his side of the car as one of the new students heads into a tight situation. Avoiding the natural reaction is one of Don's ways of building confidence in his student.

"THE KEY to success in learning to drive is concentration," he said. "Too many drivers on the road don't concentrate on what they're doing or what is happening around them."

After a few of the 12 lessons given in the behind-the-wheel course, Don tries what he calls his "emotional stability test." To see if the student can handle an emergency situation without getting panicky, Don gives them a brief series of tasks to perform as they drive.

The test usually lasts about two minutes, in which time the student is told to push in the lighter, tune the radio, turn on the headlights, turn on wipers, turn off radio, turn off lights, change radio channels, turn off radio, and so forth.

If the student performs this little series quickly and without losing any control of the car, he is considered emotionally stable. Don devised the test while in college, and most students pass with honors.

IN A LESSON ride with two 16-year-old girls, the Register saw how Lovelace seeks to simulate in-car conditions which the young drivers are likely to experience once out on their own. For example, the radio is played and Don "small talks" to drivers between instruction and pointers.

Drivers Cheryl Palmer, 18, of 123 W. Center, Itasca, and Beth Stewart, 16, of 154 Circle Ave., Bloomingdale, handled the lesson with ease, although they looked a little nervous when they learned an extra passenger would be coming along.

The girls took a half-hour turn at the wheel each, and drove over varying types of roads from Lake Street, Roselle Road, Irving Park Road and many side streets. Students also drive a variety of cars to broaden their experience.

The final lesson is a drive on the expressway, a test for any driver. Don reports the ultimate madhouse of Lake Shore Drive during rush hour is luckily too far away.

THE MOST common problems for new drivers are watching their speed and staying away from oncoming traffic.

Don finds his most irritating moments are when other drivers take advantage of the student-driver car and cut them off or disobey traffic procedures. The most hazardous situation is a four-way stop sign where many drivers violate the turn.

The Kentucky-born Lovelace is single at 24 and is still looking for the "right girl." He is working on a doctorate degree in education after receiving his master's degree from DePaul University, Green-castle, Ind.

His interest in his students goes beyond the driver training, as he likes his students to tell him how they did on their driving test after they leave. He also likes them to come and ask his advice if they plan to buy a used car.

DON SOLD new and used cars for his father in Louisville, Ky., for two summers. He said he gained more experience than money, because he tried to be honest and people wouldn't believe him.

"I think today's kids are good drivers and the adverse remarks made about them are extremely unfair," he said. "They have quick reaction times and use good judgment on the highway."

He reported very few close calls in his courses. Any near misses have almost always been the fault of the other driver, he added.

Students drive in all kinds of weather at Lake Park's driving course because they will have to do it after they get out, he said. The course is as realistic and as close to actual situations as it can be, he added.

In his first year at Lake Park and in Illinois, Lovelace will continue to use his techniques and train students to be safe and sane drivers of tomorrow. He reported that he learns as he teaches and hopes to continue doing so.

Schools Make Safe Drivers

by RICHARD BARTON

Death on the highways, speeding tickets by the thousands and loud, racing cars are images brought to some minds when teenage drivers are discussed.

High schools working with state agencies and the community are changing this image in the minds of skeptics. Driver education is turning out safe, alert, well-trained youngsters who may be better drivers than their parents, who, after years of collecting bad habits, may not be the drivers they think they are.

The state legislature has required high schools to offer driver education to students. The hardship comes since the state forgot to allot more funds for this and other demanded programs such as consumer education.

MOST HIGH SCHOOLS have adjusted themselves to offering good programs in driver education both in the classroom and behind the wheel when possible. But when educational dollars get sparse, driver education is one of the first programs cut back. Unofficially, some educators resent being told they must have certain programs, especially when they are paying the biggest part of the cost.

Lake Park High School based in Roselle has a good program with a full-time classroom teacher. The classroom teacher, Donald Lovelace, is aided by two other faculty members in giving behind the wheel training to aspiring drivers.

The program will be expanded in about two weeks, Lovelace said, to include early morning and late afternoon behind the wheel sessions. Driving instruction will be offered from 7-8 a.m. and from 4-5:30 p.m. Five other qualified faculty members will be added to accommodate the instruction load.

A STUDENT WHO takes all the free training Lake Park has to offer gets 30 hours of classroom instruction and six hours of driving a car. High school graduation requirements demand the classroom training but the actual driving is optional.

Illinois law allows a youngster to obtain a driver's license at the age of 16 only if he has successfully completed an approved driver training course. If a teenager doesn't take driver education, he must be 18-years-old.

Driver education also helps the youngster get lower auto insurance rates with most major companies. Some companies also give girls a lower rate than boys.

LAKE PARK presently has three cars in its driver ed. fleet. All were donated for use by dealers who receive a small pay-back for depreciation from the state.

Dick Wickstrom Chevrolet, Roselle; Roselle Ford, Roselle; and Wheaton Import Motors participated. The Chevy and Ford four-door hardtops are used more than the Volkswagen even though it is equipped with automatic transmission.

Each car is equipped with an emergency brake on the passenger's side for use by the instructor. Most instructors report it is rarely used to show confidence in the student.

At present, 15 students are taking behind-the-wheel training at Lake Park. When each completes the 12-lesson course of half-hour sessions, a notice of completion will be sent to the state. The state returns a certificate of achievement which the student may take with him to a state testing station.

STUDENTS UNDER 18-years-old can take the state administered behind-the-wheel test with the certificate. Testing takes about 15 minutes. The closest station is in Lombard. The usual written part of the state test is waived because of the high school training.

The Lighter Side

For The Birds

by DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI)—It was reported this week the Pentagon was underwriting a $800,000 research project to determine if birds could be trained to perform certain military tasks.

Well, President Nixon has said all along that he had a plan for ending the Vietnam War. Maybe this is it.

In the first phase, already under way, Vietnamese would be trained to replace American troops, who would be withdrawn. Then, in the second phase, the Vietnamese troops would be replaced by birds.

Ornithologizing the war might get some of those Harvard professors off of the President's back. But I doubt it would end congressional criticism of the military-industrial-birdseed complex.

At some point in the future, the top news story of the day might read something like this:

WASHINGTON—The Defense Department announced today it had awarded a $7.5 billion contract for the development of a new ABM (anti-black billed magpie) system.

A spokesman said the decision to build the system was based on intelligence reports that Russia was training black billed magpies with "first strike" capabilities.

He said the system also could be used as a defense against Chinese ducks.

Senate Democrats, however, criticized the project as unnecessary and wasteful. They said it would lead to further acceleration of the pigeon race and would make it more difficult to obtain an international robin limitation agreement.

Thus far, the United States and the Soviet Union have signed treaties banning the use of chickadees for offensive purposes in outer space, on the ocean floor and in Antarctica.

But negotiations on a nuthatch nonproliferation treaty, which have been under way in Geneva for the past 49 years, have stalled.

Meanwhile, Chairman J. William Flamingo of the Senate Falcon Relations Committee disclosed he had scheduled closed-door hearings next week on Pentagon plans to test a MIRV (multiple independently targeted reentry vehicle).

MIRV critics claim the Air Force already has enough conventional canaries to deter a Soviet parakeet attack.

The MIRV hearing will run concurrently with an investigation by the House Albatross Services Committee, which is looking into cost overruns in connection with construction of the new CSA birdcage.

Final cost of the birdcage, largest ever built, is expected to exceed original estimates by 70 per cent.

The Way We See It

Face Common Needs

Communication and cooperation among communities has frequently been stressed on this page as a means to face common problems and reach common objectives.

We are encouraged therefore to see several examples of long-standing differences between communities approached on a cooperative basis.

In Roselle and Bloomingdale, a gravel pit bordering both communities has long been a concern to residents of the area. They are upset about the appearance of the area, odors and rats which they say make their home in the pit.

One exasperated Roselle resident finally plopped two dead rats into glass jars and gave them to Village Pres. Robert Franz to dramatize the problem.

Concern over the pit in both communities finally led to authorization of a legal study, to be financed on a 50-50 basis. The combined weight of both communities will be more effective than separate action in relieving neighbors of the pit.

In Schaumburg Township, village boards of both Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg had agreed to meet for the first of what could be a series of productive sessions on joint problems. The political atmosphere in the two communities has not always permitted any kind of productive interchange of ideas. These communities have a lot to discuss.

Finally, the joint effort of many Northwest suburban communities to deal with air and noise pollution at O'Hare Airport has already brought national recognition of the problem.

Ravings

Rats Are 'State of Mind'

by RICK FRIEDMAN

A garbage strike in Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect and Barrington.

I thought I had left garbage strikes behind when I left New York City. But as Jim Vesely, our Arlington Heights city editor, has put it so aptly on numerous occasions, you don't escape the problems of the city by moving to the suburbs. They follow you out here sooner or later.

AND A COUPLE of days ago, our DuPage staff uncovered another "city type" problem in Roselle and Bensenville — Rats!

So if I can't escape such city problems out here in the suburbs at least I can offer some advice as a former city boy to the people of Bensenville and Roselle on how to handle their suburban rat problems. I came upon this advice from a slum landlord I once met in a New York City bar.

"The slum, sir," he told me, "is nothing more than a bad state of mind. Take away this bad state of mind and the word 'slum' takes on a happy sound. It's as simple as that."

"IT IS?"

"Certainly, I have been working on just such a project in one of my worst buildings, a rat-infested fire trap, now fast on the way to becoming a happy, homey place. Something like the Old South was before the Civil War."

He pulled out a whistle, blew into it, and seconds later the bar was filled with the raggedest bunch of slum dwellers I had ever seen.

THE SLUM LANDLORD swept his arm around toward the rabble. "One entire slum building of mine worth of slum tenants," he said proudly. "Happy slum tenants."

"Sir, keep in mind the thing that made the Southern slum dweller so happy for so many years was his music. 'Old Black Joe,' 'Swanee,' 'Down by the Riverside.' But what of the forgotten slum man, the Northern slum dweller? Did he ever have any Massa to put into the cold, cold ground? Obviously, no!

"And that is why he has always been so unhappy up here in his slum culture-deprived North. He had never sung a Northern spiritual."

The slum landlord smiled a little smile. "And that, sir, is why I, a slum landlord who loves his abused profession, have written a Northern spiritual."

HE TURNED AND faced his slum tenants, raised his arms and blew his whistle. The rabble — men, women and children — started singing:

We ain't got pants and we ain't got shirts.
We ain't got dresses and we ain't got skirts.
We ain't got caps and we ain't got hats.
What have we got? We got lots of rats!
We ain't got coffee and we ain't got cream.
We ain't got blankets and we ain't got steam.
We ain't got rugs and we ain't got mats.
What have we got? We got lots of rats.

We also got:
Gnats and roaches, bugs galore,
Termites chewing on the bedroom door.
Mice and lice, flies by the score.
En-Double-A-C-P, SNCC and Cove.

The slum landlord held up his arms again and the rabble went silent. "This is my East Harlem Tabernacle Choir," he explained proudly. He blew his whistle again and the rabble began to sing again.

We ain't got towels and we ain't got soap.
We ain't got prayer and we ain't got hope.
We ain't got dogs and we ain't got cats.
But we don't care 'cause we share our rats!
We also got:
Sores and boils, brand new bites.
Chills in the mornings, the shakes at nights.
Sprains and pains, advice from whites.
Absentee landlords and civil rights.

"Sir," the slum landlord said, "I don't give my tenants any heat. I don't give my tenants any plumbing. But I do give them their own music. Someday I may be known as the Stephen Foster of East Harlem."

He tipped his derby and walked out of the bar. The rabble followed him and I could still hear them singing as they shuffled down the street behind him:

We ain't got silk and we ain't got lace.
But we don't complain 'cause we love this place.
We love the mice, the lice and gnats.
But most of all, we love our rats.

The people of Bensenville and Roselle aren't living in any slum, of course. But maybe if they can just think of rats as merely as state of mind, they may be able to sing their troubles away.

The Political Beat

Pullout Demand Growing

by CHARLES HUFNAGEL

A Republican poll in DuPage County, one of the most conservative Republican counties in the nation, has come up with a startling shift in the public attitude toward Vietnam during the past six months of the Nixon administration.

"I have noted a swing of sentiment in the district in recent months," Rep. John Erlenborn, Elmhurst, claims. "More and more people believe that we should not try to win a military victory and that we should look for a way out," he says in a categorical statement.

SINCE THIS IS Goldwater country, the senator having run big here in 1964, this statement by a perennial political pollster cannot be ascribed as a dovish contrivance rigged to produce anti-Nixon sentiment.

In making public this poll, the 14th District Republican representative is not only doing his district a service but the administration and the nation as well. It is a grass roots opinion from the people whose sons are doing the fighting in Vietnam which gives it authority and its credibility ought to go unquestioned because it comes from middle-class Nixon people who put the President in office.

The congressman further reports that in previous polls there was never this indication that "so many people want out."

BUT IN HIS view it is confidence in the new President in his capability to take risks to find solutions for peace that has fired a trust in the "get out" policy.

Of course the Elmhurst representative in Washington will be up for reelection in 1976, and it must not be ruled out that this poll in Republican DuPage County will help him better gauge the political weather and shape his campaign accordingly.

Since DuPage County with 200,000 voters and Joliet in Will County make up the 14th District where a rapid urban transition is taking place bringing a host of new problems and high taxes, the Congressman is showing good political sense in taking the pulse of his constituency. He has a mandate for vote decisions in Congress.

Affiliated with a rising new generation in county and Illinois politics, Erlenborn has maintained his standing with the GOP Establishment despite some rough, local intra-party skirmishes during the past few years.

He probably believes that he is running with the Illinois Republican tide which at this time looks strong, but as his poll shows conditions in the country are such that a major event on the national scene can bring a rapid shift in sentiment.

Another significant point made on Vietnam in the Erlenborn poll is that of the four solutions posed 44 per cent of the replies, by far the largest, ask that troops be brought home as rapidly as there is reasonable assurance that Vietnam can fight its battle.

ONLY 20 PER CENT were hawkish, with replies calling for a military victory. Twenty-four per cent want to bring the troops home at once even if this is construed as a military defeat. This shows that people are growing tired of this war.

A mere 12 per cent had faith in the continuance of Paris negotiations. Some 46,000 ballots were mailed.

As a climax to this poll pertinent to the colleges and the draft, the Erlenborn report shows 91 per cent of the 5,500 who responded from Downers Grove, Elmhurst, Joliet and Roselle believed that the college youngsters should be given more opportunity to register their complaints.

These are changing times. People are giving serious thought to the problems of the day and in no sense can they be taken for granted by those seeking public office.

Critic's Corner

Rules for Series Coverage

by BARRY SIGALE

At a recent press conference in Chicago, a reporter from a local radio station tried to get a taped interview with a man who called the press conference, a half hour before the meeting was to start.

He told the dignitary that there was a telephone call for him in the lobby of the hotel, then shanghaied him into making a telephone tape, which was recorded back at the studio.

Three of the other reporters got suspicious and went looking for the newsmen and the dignitary. When they saw what was going on, they bodily attacked the reporter and hustled the interviewee from the phone.

"CHEAP STUNT" they cried as they collared the newsmen.

Which proves there is no honor among newsmen. They'd do anything to get a story short of selling out their grandmothers.

IN NEW YORK, the surprising Mets were wrapping up a playoff victory by celebrating in the dressing room, and a newsmen and a cameraman got into a swinging fracas which resulted in a cut lip for the reporter.

It seems Dick Young of the New York Times told the camera crew that the members of the printed media would get first crack at interviewing the victors and the on-the-air boys would just have to sit back and wait.

Even famed reporter Big Babs, that oversized femme fatale, once picked up a fellow scribe from a competing paper and piled him through a washroom door, locking him inside for the duration of an interview.

All this points up the anxiety and frustration reporters put up with within themselves and what they will do to succeed in a particular situation.

A big test will be how they behave themselves during the World Series of baseball. I suggest a couple of avenues which they can take to insure keeping their concentration where it belongs, on reporting the ballgame.

First, newsmen will not be allowed to perform in any commercials until the series is over. A case in point was when all those reporters showed up at Leo Durocher's pad as part of a beer commercial. Immediately following its run on television, the reporters' work fell off and they began writing about a second place team instead of a leader.

SECONDLY, reporters will not be allowed to talk to anyone, even ballplayers, until at least a 15 minute cooling off period has gone by. They should be able to get their composure back and their collective blood pressure should trickle back to normal.

Lastly, the men from the press should report them one game at a time. A thought turned to what's ahead can leave them napping and they might miss the big story.

The Fence Post

'Now in Life's Cycle There Is Death'

If I were Lake Michigan I would want to be deep, calm, mysterious, and then again blythe, sparkling and sunlit. I would want to be all of the colors of the rainbow and sometimes moody and black. As blue and purple danced upon by fireflies and seagulls, the fish and marine life within my body feeding at night-fall. On those days when the Illinois wind blows I would want to be free to be tossed and blown, my whitecaps mating the capers of the wind. On my happy waters the sails of humans enjoying the challenge of the elements. Ah! But that was my youth. I am old, sluggish, grey and dying. I am polluted by those very humans I have long served. And they are killing me and mine.

If I were the air I would want to be clear, clean, sparkling, and sometimes blue, yellow, white or silvery. Washed by the rain, blown by the wind, cold and crisp with snow in my hair. Sunny and warm, calm and encompassing those creatures which I embody. New and challenging each morning. Peacefully letting night's darkness promise sleep. Ah! But in my youth I played catch with the wind, free, light and buoyant. Now I am old, sluggish with pollution. I am heavy with dirt and particles which fall onto the earth below. I am caught between earth and universe by a heavy ever-present blanket not of my making. I carry death, not life to those humans who care not.

IF I WERE earth my main reason for being would be the cycle of life. A place of rest, a rock of support, deep, dark, warm and surging with life. Offering up green shoots of spring. Blanketed and sleeping as if in death with cold crisp snow. Ah! But now in that cycle of life there is only death. For a foreign element has polluted me and mine. Now the green shoots carry poison, now my elements carry poison, now my worms carry poison. Now everything which feeds upon my nature is poisoned. Man in his God-given wisdom is killing me and thee.

Ah! But I am a human being, consisting of water, air and earth. And as they are polluted, I am polluted. As they are poisoned, I am poisoned. As they are dying, I am dying. Can I in my God-given wisdom refuse my basic elements? Can I continue to pollute my heritage and my body? Can I find beauty, life and freedom in the morass of waste? Can I continue to consume this waste and in turn pollute with my body? Are we in fact caught now in a never-ending cycle of death, poisoning the babe in its first suck of milk?

Keep Post Office Public

I understand Congress is preparing to vote on whether or not to remove the postal service from government control.

There are administration demands that the post office be turned over to a government corporation. I feel that there is nothing so magic about corporations and, in fact, many corporations have failed during the past few years.

I understand that even the telephone companies are having their problems in some areas of the country.

EVEN THOUGH postal efficiency can undoubtedly be improved by modernization, I feel this can be done without turning the post office lock, stock and barrel over to a board of directors who would not be concerned about service.

Before it is too late, I would suggest that concerned people write to their congressmen to demand postal reforms without turning the postal service over to a board of directors.

The end result has to be higher rates and less service because corporation officials will try to realize a profit or at least break even. This cannot be done so long as the American people express themselves.

GIRL SCOUT leaders-to-be glance through notebooks and pamphlets as they study the ideas of troop manage-

Scout Leaders Train for Job

Today's suburban Girl Scout leader fills the roles of administrator and psychologist as she attempts to manage a troop of curious youths.

With two baby Girl Scouts-to-be cuddled in their arms, two young aspiring leaders listened to the instructions of Mrs. Margaret Lee of 3200 North Ellen are needed by giving them each a degree of responsibility," Mrs. Lee said.

"You could find something she excelled in and stress her good points. This will build her confidence and may gain her acceptance by the group," Mrs. Ralph Freund, leader-to-be, suggested.

Aspiring leaders learn songs and plan, but you seem to always end up working according to the girls' wants and needs.

New leaders are tutored by experienced veterans during the first days of their jobs. They attend meetings where they discuss problems of troop management and plan the week's activities.

"I never was a Scout when I was a young girl and this is kind of a second chance for me. I always wanted to be part of the fun. I guess, this is my opportunity to be a kid again," Mrs. Gordon Fletcher said.

Behind the word management lies the idea of working with youngsters. Mrs. Lee said that sometimes a child fails to get along with the rest of the troop. Perhaps she is unable to share her experiences with the girls and feels rejected, she said.

"WE TRY TO teach the girls that they

They return to the classroom to attend three all-day workshops where they learn cookout and handicraft techniques.

Despite the long hours of instruction, the leaders are often amazed by the girls' initiative and self-confidence, Mrs. Lee said.

4-H Girls Collect For Vietnam GIs

To raise money for GIs in Vietnam, the TNT 4-H Club of Cook County began a house to house area drive.

Pres. Sharon Busse suggested the program to the 22-member TNT (Thimble, Needle and Thread) Club. Each month the organization develops a community service project. This month, the girls plan to make life a little bit brighter for the men in Vietnam.

"This campaign truly signifies the ideal of the 4-H Club. Our four-part symbol represents the combined efforts of the head, the heart, the hand and the health or mankind. This campaign came from the hearts of the girls," Mrs. Dwayne Mueller, club leader, said.

THE GIRLS HAVE collected socks, notebook paper, toothbrushes and stamps that they hope the men will use to send letters home.

The drive began on the first day of October and will end Oct. 27. The material will be collected and shipped to the men by Christmas.

According to Mrs. Mueller, the girls, once they identify themselves as 4-H members, are usually welcomed by local residents.

One of the goals of the drive is to create awareness of the war bringing it closer to the 4-H members through involvement.

"How many 9-year-olds know what is going on in Vietnam?" Mrs. Mueller asked.

Scout Drive Is Success

School Night for Scouting, a recruiting drive of the Northwest Suburban Council of the Boy Scouts of America, has attracted over 1,500 youths into the Boy and Cub Scouts.

Scouting is an educational and recreational program that hopes to develop young boys into productive citizens.

According to Art Leu, school night chairman, the success of the program indicates that the door is open to all boys who are interested in Scouting.

"THE SUCCESS OF this neighborhood-oriented drive proves that boys who want to join the Scouts can find a troop or pack to join," Leu said.

The drive was held at local schools. Youths were encouraged to discover what Scouting has to offer them and decide whether they would like to enter Scouting.

School night for Scouting has resulted in the formation of 15 new Boy Scout troops and Cub Scout packs.

According to Leu, more than 375 parents have agreed to be volunteer leaders or committeemen for Scout units.

The program was a cooperative effort among school superintendents, principals, school coordinators, neighborhood commissioners, Scout unit leaders and volunteers from the Northwest Suburban Council.

4-H Club Service Is Cited

Saturday evening Lawrence Wolk took time from his weekly program to recognize 4-H week and extend his best wishes to the youth of the nation.

Youngsters celebrated 4-H week Sunday, as they played at church with their families.

Branch clubs planned programs, they hoped would project the ideals of the organization. And leaders discussed ideas to attract new youngsters to the program.

"THE 4-H CLUBS live and preach the philosophy that experience is the best teacher. One can learn by doing. They tell their members:

"They aim for perfection and their motto, 'To make the best, better' symbolizes this ideal."

Youngsters are required to begin and complete a project and give an annual talk. Thus, the organization hopes, will develop their individual skills and their public speaking abilities.

Those interested in joining 4-H activities may contact the Arlington Heights headquarters at 210 N. Dunton.

The Mentally Ill Child

The Ones Agencies Can't Help

by MONICA WILCH
(Last in a Series)

One social worker in a local children's mental health clinic commented concerning the success of such agencies, "Some patients are helped to a large degree, others are helped to some degree, and still others we never reach, even though we try our best."

For these youngsters, the only alternative may be hospitalization in a private or state institution.

But even this "last resort" is cloaked in an aura of progress and optimism in the northwest suburbs.

Serving the mental health needs of children in northern and western Cook County and DuPage County are Forest Hospital in Des Plaines and Elgin State Hospital.

ORGANIZED AS A psychiatric hospital in 1957, Forest has a 10-bed capacity for adolescents 13 to 17, and offers all types of psychiatric, psychological and related medical therapy. It is a private institution supported by patient fees.

Although the building presently housing the main children's ward at Elgin State is old and rather dingy, it is soon to be replaced by a $2 million residential and service complex that will be totally child-oriented, geared to physical and emotional needs of the young.

In the meantime, there is at Elgin a skilled and dedicated staff working 24 hours a day to help children with emotional distresses which have proven too complex for schools and out-patient agencies to handle.

THE 120 CHILDREN (a classification including ages up to 18) now hospitalized at Elgin have usually seen an average of 20 other agencies before coming here.

These are the chronically ill who have not been reached by the school psychologists or the clinic psychiatrists.

The majority have been referred to Elgin by schools, while some are sent by mental health clinics, courts and other hospitals and agencies.

Although Elgin is "the end of the line" in the succession of mental health facilities, it can be and often is the beginning of a new life for a child.

FROM JULY 1968 to July 1969, Elgin State admitted 133 children and discharged 133, according to Mr. Charles Launi, head of the children's unit. Out of that number, only five returned, and three were transferred to other institutions.

When a child is admitted, the 120-member staff (a ratio of one staff member to every six patients) begins diagnostic evaluation. This includes numerous medical, psychological, psychiatric and intelligence tests, as well as the compilation of the case history by social workers.

Says Launi, "As soon as we get a child in here, we're trying to get him out. This is not a place for kids to stay. If he's a short-term case, we get him over the hump and then out to an out-patient situation."

BUT IF A CHILD is a chronic case, he is programmed into one of two rehabilitation series — either educational or vocational. The hospital employs 11 special educators in its own classrooms, while children who are considered capable of competing are sent to the public schools, including summer classes.

Within these two basic structures, patients may take a therapeutic or a medical route, or a combination of the two. While 65 per cent of the children are in special education and 30 per cent are in the vocational training, all are involved in group therapy, some are seen individually by psychiatrists and one-third are on medications.

In addition the hospital operates parents' therapy groups, a day camp and a Scouting program. Foundation-funded, the day camp program has grown from a single weekend session to five weeks this past summer. It includes both directed activities and free expression diversions. (Eighteen boys were on a camping trip in Wisconsin the day I visited Elgin.)

"THE BACKBONE of our program," Launi explained, "is law and order, consistency." He noted that most of the children with emotional problems, especially the adolescents, have come from unstable home situations where there was no constancy, no balanced discipline.

Thus, at Elgin children are put on a regular schedule, including set mealtimes and bedtimes, as well as planned activity times and free time. Rules are enforced with firmness.

But beneath all staff-patient relations lies a feeling of concern and love. It is evident here that someone does care.

And not only is there the will to help, but also the ability. A child admitted to Elgin is not doomed to a lifetime of institutionalization. The average length of stay for an adolescent here is six months to one year, with younger children staying a little over one year.

COMMENTED ONE of the doctors, "Most of our kids do tremendously well after four or five months. But our social workers become so involved with the kids that they like to keep them here a little longer to make sure they're not going to suffer a relapse."

Besides this intense individual treatment, Elgin is increasing its work with the mother and child together. This reflects a growing concern for treating children in their home environment, and even treating the environment itself if it is a major source of the child's emotional problems.

But until the child is able to return to his own community, Elgin strives to supply a "total environment" for him. This is what the new building complex will create, according to Launi. Classrooms will form an important part of it, along with 151 living quarters, individual dining rooms serving foods popular with youngsters, a gym, youth center, workshops, library, beauty and barber shops, etc.

THE SIGNIFICANT aspect, Launi said, is that the complex will provide "a place away from the adults where the children can carry on normal kid activities. There will be a courtyard with room to run, ride bikes, climb trees, plant flowers, anything they want to do."

Supported by state funds, Elgin has a sliding scale of fees based on ability to pay. The current freeze on the hiring of employees, dictated by state government, has affected Elgin some, according to Launi, but he said, "We still have a good staff left. We're not hurting as badly as some institutions."

In May of 1968, when Elgin State dedicated its new medical-surgical wing, former Governor Shapiro declared:

"ILLINOIS HAS made a great break with tradition. State facilities now offer hope, not despair, to the mentally ill."

And this hope is not confined just to state facilities; it begins right here in the northwest suburbs, in the schools and clinics of your community.

Fashion worship. The way some of us carry on, you'd think the world would stop if we didn't locate the right dress, cosmetic enhancement and jewelry for every occasion.

Women with figure problems. Why don't they stop complaining . . . and just worry as I do?

Exceptionally good housekeepers. I may hate what they do, but defend to the death their right to do it . . . darn it!

Pet haters . . . and pet lovers. Pets should be given good care, enjoyed and loved. They are not "just" animals . . . nor are they substitute people.

Ladies who with their hair bleached, dyed, teased and styled as often and as differently as they please (and who often own extensive wig wardrobes) vehemently disdain any deviation in male hair styles. Preference, yes. Discrimination, no.

ZEALOTS. Passionately promoting or opposing any endeavor or idea, whether political, religious or educational (sex) especially, these people are mirror-gazers. Show them a window and it becomes a looking-glass.

Christmas shopping (yes, Virginia, it's almost time). Decisions. Decisions. Why don't we go down our list and buy a present for each name . . . to give to us?

The telephone talker. This activity is a complete waste of time . . . unless, of course, you are bursting with information, have a trip or operation to describe or are lonely.

One-uppers. The suburbs tend to be full of one-uppers. Buy a new car and watch the neighborhood glitter. Move into a bigger house and the exodus begins. Receive a promotion and the one-uppers get ulcers. But stay as sweet as you are and keep your friends, who like people, who like people.

FALL. I love autumn with its bustling expectation and colorful crispness. But "fall" foretells snow to be shoveled, slippery streets and chilling winds; colds, sore throats and other miseries.

Put-downs. Whether deserved or not, the "put-down" shows up the one who uses it. A truly gracious woman does not resort to building up her ego by downgrading others.

The present trend to an natural. Revelation lies in the minds and eyes of those we love and admire. Exposing the body attracts but transient attention . . . pleasant or unpleasant though it may be.

St. Alexis Hospital Ball At the Marriott Oct. 18

The St. Alexis Hospital Auxiliary will hold its annual dinner and ball in the Grand Ballroom of the Marriott Motor Hotel, 8535 W. Higgins Road, Park Ridge, Saturday, Oct. 18.

The ball is the major auxiliary social event of the year and is already a tradition of the 3-year-old Elk Grove Village hospital, which serves all residents of the northwest suburban area. Members of the hospital staff as well as the general public are invited.

The gala event will begin with cocktails served at 6:30 p.m. and dinner, which includes filet mignon and green peas with pearl onions, will be served at 8.

By popular demand, the Bill Russell Orchestra, a well-known ensemble in the northwest area, will again provide the music.

Reservations and further information about the dinner dance may be obtained from the committee chairman, Mrs. Edwin Plaza, 487-2161.

He Turns Out Instant Art

by PATRICIA McCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI)—Using a pallet knife, bathroom tissue and pounds of oil paints, Morris Katz — undeniably the world's fastest draw — turns out instant art.

Before my eyes and the lens of a camera the other day, in nine minutes flat, he completed a 12-by-36 inch autumn scene, using a pound-and-a-half of paint.

Katz, 37, has produced 1,000 oils, including one eight feet square. He uses two-and-one-half tons of oil paint annually — enough, he says, to last several brush-stroke artists a lifetime.

He lathers on various hues with the trowel-sized pallet tool—a blob here, a blob there.

THE EDGE OF the knife and the tip give the blobs shape. He does this in staccato motion. While he works, he sometimes sounds like a woodpecker.

The bathroom tissue is used to give brushlike touches to trees and bushes.

"Everything is faster these days," he said in an interview. "Jet planes, music, communication. So why not painting?"

Katz has been painting this way since age 13. He started in his native Poland, survived the Nazi occupation and came to America in 1944.

Ever since, he has been giving in to his urge to turn out hundreds of paintings. Several years ago, he made a globe-trotting trip — painting 315 works for his room and board in hotels.

"SOME PEOPLE say my painting has no value," he said. "They say there are too many paintings. But I remind such people that Rembrandt painted several thousand pictures."

The prolific painter churns them out for survival, too.

"I can sell my paintings for a much lower price than ones done by brush," he said. "I have enough for supplies and to support myself without giving up my independence."

He paints five days a week and gives lessons in his walk-up studio in Greenwich Village.

Someday he would like to experiment, maybe using whirling helicopter blades to produce the world's largest and fastest one-man work of art.

Salvador Dali, move over.

Most men's suits and jackets have inside breast pockets on both sides. The pocket handkerchief should be in the right hand one to balance fit of the show handkerchief in the left outside pocket. A suit fits better, too, without the hip pocket bulge.

Suede steps brightly into the party shoe scene for fall, reports Seventeen. The new suede shoes are brushed to peach-fuzz softness and snapped with straps or glistening with silvery frost. They are on a solid footing, sometimes even clunkier than ever. Heels often rise to the loftiest heights in years. The party platform, in silver to match a flared heel and buckle, makes a strong stand for the policies of the forties. Suede colors run the gamut from black and grey to red and green.

The gypsy look to brighten the night scene. This includes crocheted vests or sleeveless "coats" over printed satin blouses and black skirts, and brilliantly flowered, dark background satin dresses.

Irena Beinoris Is Professor's Bride

Buccera roses and orange daisy mums decked the altar of Holy Ghost Church in Wood Dale and the brilliant orange flowers also draped tall hurricane lamps along the aisle as Irena Beinoris became the bride of Dr. Thomas Gerard Bowen on Sept. 7. The bride, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Bruno Beinoris, 285 Forest View, Wood Dale, returned to her home parish for her wedding after spending the past several years at the University of Colorado at Boulder.

The groom is an assistant professor of anthropology at Fresno State College in California and has his master's and PhD from the University of Colorado. He is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Howard R. Bowen of Claremont, Calif. Dr. Howard Bowen is a former president of the University of Iowa.

TO MATCH THE altar bouquets and the aisle markers, the bride carried an arrangement of Buccera roses and orange daisy mums as she was given in marriage by her father. The bouquet contrasted her white delustered satin gown and shoulder-length four-tiered veil of silk illusion.

Her gown was enhanced with embroidered pearls, crystals and gold braid on a band at the high neckline and forming deep cuffs on the long sleeves. A removable bolero embroidered in the jewels covered the simply-styled empire bodice, and a chapel-length train flowed over the back of the A-line skirt.

The bride's five attendants entered the sanctuary in grecian-styled apricot gowns, and each carried a bouquet of Tropicana roses and bronze daisy mums. Also in the procession was the bride's cousin, 5-year-old Laura Ragas of Itasca, who appeared in a cream colored dress trimmed in green. She carried Tropicana roses.

COLLEGE FRIENDS of the bride were her attendants, Leslie Larson of Boulder, a former roommate, serving as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Alas Fechheimer and Lindsey Boulby, both of Boulder; Pat O'Donnell of Boston, and June Hall of Pocatello, Idaho.

The groom's brother, Peter G. Bowen of Denver, was his best man. Seating the wedding guests for the three o'clock ceremony were Dan Bench and Ernest Hildner III, both of Boulder; Stuart Durning of New York, and Dr. Les Kulhanek of California.

A reception for 400 followed at Itasca Country Club. There, Mrs. Beinoris greeted brides and relatives in a lemon colored brocade dress and a corsage of yellow roses. Mrs. Bowen chose a mint green silk faille ensemble with a white orchid corsage.

THE NEWLYWEDS are making their home at 6004 N. San Pablo in Fresno, and the bride plans to continue her studies at Fresno State where her husband lectures.

He is a graduate of Grinnell College, Iowa, and has held anthropological positions at museums in Arizona and at the University of Colorado.

His bride was graduated from Wayland Academy in Beaver Dam, Wis., before attending the University of Colorado. For the past three years she worked for the university's Conference on World Affairs.

Countdown: Trip to the Moon

To launch plans for their "Trip to the Moon" on Wednesday, Nov. 12, members of Prospect Heights Woman's Club found themselves in "outer space." Space ships, powered by batteries, encircled styrofoam moons last Wednesday in Old Orchard Country Club as members heard details of their annual luncheon-fashion show.

Launch pad site for the luncheon-show will be Honri's Grand Ballroom at the O'Hare Inn where Mrs. Phillip Glaser, ways and means chairman, hopes to put "400 on the moon."

Fashions for the show will be from The Queen's Ransom Shop in Barrington, and models will include club members. The "moon trip" will begin with cocktails at 11 a.m., followed by luncheon and the show.

Tickets, available to all interested women, may be purchased from the ticket chairman, Mrs. Kenneth Sandstrom, CL 5-7317, or Mrs. Donald Schmidt, 259-1883.

TABLE CENTERPIECES, which will remain a top space secret until the moon landing on Nov. 12, are under the engineering direction of Mrs. Edward Sakach. Other committee chairmen include Mrs. Robert Houston, Mrs. A. Bochenek, Mrs. Robert Wroble and Mrs. Robert Kent.

On hand at last Wednesday's meeting to take orders for Christmas cards to benefit Clearbrook Center for Retarded Children, was Mrs. Edward Krakowiak who can be reached at CL 3-4670 by those wishing to place orders. The club will also be involved in the GFWC project of selling Christmas cards and place mats featuring scenes in Illinois. These scenes are similar to the note paper sold by the club last year in honor of the Sesquicentennial.

Program for the meeting was a dramatic book review of "A Long Row of Candles" by Cyrus L. Sulzberger. Giving the review was Rev. Herbert Duenow.

Next month's program will be a fashion parade of made up McCall's patterns, "Cavalcade of Cottons," according to Mrs. J. McGowan, program chairman.

When the garden department meets Thursday, Oct. 23, members will hear a representative from Klehm's Nursery speak on landscaping. Hostess for this meeting will be Mrs. Edward Collings, 414 McDonald Road, Prospect Heights.

Wedding Includes Special Prayers

Two special prayers, one by the groom's younger brother, and one by Rev. E. Triggloff of Trinity Lutheran Church in Roselle, were offered during the wedding ceremony of James P. Olesuk and Sheryl L. Gruber, and the reception that followed.

Sheryl, daughter of the F. G. Grubers of Chicago, and James, son of the Frank Olesuks, 411 W. Bryn Mawr, Roselle, were married Sept. 6 in St. Francis Borgia Church in Chicago where 11-year-old Freddy Olesuk gave his prayer. It was at the reception at the Regency Inn in Chicago that Rev. E. Triggloff offered his special prayer for the couple.

White roses and yellow mums decorated the altar for the 3 o'clock service, and white ribbons and bows marked the pews. Rev. Stoaks officiated at the candlelight ceremony, and Mr. Gruber gave his daughter in marriage.

SHIRYL CHOSE A GOWN of silk organza fashioned with empire waist, high neckline, long sleeves and train. The bodice and neckline had insets of chantilly lace with seed pearls and sequins. Chantilly lace leaves formed her headpiece, and she carried a bouquet of tiny white Chinese mums, stephanotis and baby's breath.

Cathy Gruber served as her sister's maid of honor, and bridesmaids were Georgia Kruse of Hoffman Estates, Linda Falkowski of Addison, and Darlene Lopresti, Sandra Johnson and Patricia Johnson, all of Chicago.

All wore identical empire gowns of pale green with white lace. Their accessories were in darker green and their headpieces were of matching lace. The five bridesmaids had short veils and the maid of honor or had a three-quarter veil; all carried bouquets of yellow mums.

THE GROOM, A MARINE veteran of Vietnam, was attended by his brother, Frank Daniel Olesuk, an Army veteran, as best man. Ushers were Robert Partyka and Robert Waschitz of Roselle, David Kruse of Hoffman Estates, Chuck Falkowski of Addison and Nick Lopresti of Chicago.

At the reception, Mrs. Gruber greeted the 300 guests in a pale yellow silk chiffon gown with a white orchid and camellia wrist corsage. Mrs. Olesuk chose an aqua blue silk chiffon gown with silver beaded neckline, and a white orchid and camellia corsage.

The newlyweds honeymooned in Bermuda for two weeks and are now making their home in Chicago. The bride was graduated from a loop business school and is employed as a secretary at LaSalle University in Chicago.

The groom was graduated from Trinity Lutheran Grammar School and Lake Park High School in Roselle. He also studied at Harper College and LaSalle University, and is now employed in the accounting department of Symons Manufacturing Co. in Des Plaines.

FALL LEAF PRINTS

by Marilyn Hallman

Leaves are beginning to flutter down, and you can turn them into a pretty picture.

Find several leaves with different shapes. Lay one on the table. Cover it with a sheet of white paper. Color over the leaf with a crayon, using heavy, even strokes. Soon a "leaf print" will appear. Repeat this for each leaf, using different colored crayons. Cut out the "leaf prints" and paste them in a pleasing arrangement on a sheet of colored construction paper.

The Potting Shed

The University of Mississippi is going into the "pot" business. It seems that university officials have contracted with the National Institute of Mental Health to grow marijuana under the extension program. The school of agriculture giving scholarships to hippies?

Now is a great time of year to plan your flower border for next year. The annuals are at late-season full bloom and the color combinations can be compared and copied down for home use next year. At the downtown Arlington Heights village planting, for example, the salmon and white petunias, and yellow marigolds and purple petunias, and silvery dusty miller and red geraniums planted in masses are quite spectacular.

SOME OF THE patriotic homeowners we've seen have done a great job with blue ageratum, white baby's breath and red verbena. The monochromatic colors of blue — lobelia, bachelor's buttons, ageratum — are one of my favorites. And those frilly giant marigold and green-eyed Gloriosa daisies we saw at the recent Mount Prospect flower show deserve consideration.

Incidentally, keep old tablecloth, plastic or newspaper handy in case of frost. You can prolong your summer bloomers several weeks longer if you protect them from sporadic frosts.

At the Mount Prospect show, horticultural entries outnumbered artistic entries five to one. Can this be an indication that garden clubbers are on a trend back to the nitty gritty? Emphasis has been on the flower arranging aspect of garden clubbing for so long, it's discouraged the skilled growers from more active participation, not to mention 100 per cent of the male contingent.

THIS IS THE big weekend for the autumn color spectacular around our forest preserves. And Morton Arboretum's annual fall festival open house will be staged tomorrow (Saturday) from 1 to 9:30 p.m. It's the arboretum's big bash, and the public can get a peek at a number of facilities not always open to them, including the herbarium, the greenhouse (featuring a collection of bonsai), the Sterling Morton library, the Watts reading garden and the prairie restoration project. Several lectures are on tap.

A ginkgo tea room will open for lunch and tea in the afternoon, and the evening program will be a campfire near the Thornhill building at 7:30 p.m. A complete program of the day's activities may be found by calling WO 8-0074.

FOLLOWING THE lead of the national government, the Cook County Board announced this week that it is suspending the use of DDT in the Forest Preserve District's 61,000 acres because of danger to animal life. They will substitute Methoxychlor in the spraying program.

Topelmann Art Showing

Karsten Topelmann, a Keeneyville artist, will open his studio-gallery for his second annual art show and sale Sat. and Sun., Oct. 18 and 19, 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. The studio is located at 6N053 Gary Ave. in Keeneyville.

Landscapes and still lifes in oil and watercolor, plus some acrylics, will be shown by Topelmann, who has won many art awards including the Arlington Heights Art Festival's First Place People's Choice.

Also, Topelmann has added a surprise "mod gallery" off his main studio, where flashing lights and paintings somewhat "far out" will be featured.

Jazz: No Barriers

by CHRISTOPHER MacDERMOTT
JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI)—In Durban, Cape Town and Johannesburg white men and women in evening dress mingle in old warehouses or on scattered cushions in third-rate night clubs to listen to black musicians wail out the haunting intensity of jazz, Africa style. This is unusual, to say the least, in this apartheid-oriented country where there are separate buses for whites and non-whites, where the park benches and phone booths and elevators are reserved for whites and non-whites, where mixed audiences at performances are prohibited. And in the dark, smoke-filled rooms, African musicians slide in and around notes in a style that local white musicians can only imitate. The musicians and singers are without politics. Many are barely educated. But the life in the African townships that sprawl around the country's white cities is echoed in the torturous music they produce. The music comes from individuals like tenor saxophonist Winston Man, who at a recent performance had white jazz fans moaning, "stop...stop..." at the almost unbearable intensity and sorrow of his music. So far the authorities have shown little interest in the fact that whites and non-whites mix in jazz clubs. Although it is against the law for non-whites to entertain whites in certain premises and it is prohibited for mixed audiences to attend performances, no action is known to have been taken. Occasionally police raid a jazz club in Durban, but their purpose is to seek out marijuana smokers, apparently turning a blind eye to the fact the club is integrated. One of the great protagonists of jazz in South Africa Midge Pike, a white double bass player who organizes jazz on a cultural level at Cape Town's art center, has great hopes for South Africa in the jazz world. "There is no doubt that New York leads the jazz field at the moment," Pike said, "but we are working—and working hard—on a new jazz form. I am sure it will take its place in the world of jazz, if we give it time." One good example is songstress Tandi Claassens, who starred with Miriam Makeba in the musical, "King Kong." When she sings, Tandi can start with the gutty low notes of Ella Fitzgerald and then break out into the pure wail of a Zulu girl without taking a breath. Pike has been pleading for a long time for the government to sponsor a world tour by South Africa's leading jazzmen. But so far the government has not indicated that it thinks of the idea.

What's Underground In Old Lebanon?

by GERRY LOUGHRAN

BEIRUT (UPI) — European and Arab archaeologists have started a widespread series of excavations to tap the treasure trove of Lebanese history.

In a country whose snowladen cedars are mentioned in the Bible and whose past goes back to the Phoenicians, the prizes are considerable.

Wars and invasions have criss-crossed the long history of this tiny country (150 miles long, 50 wide). Names like Tyre and Sidon, the temples of Baalbeck, crusader churches and castles and Islamic minarets represent a unique blend of cultures and peoples.

The age of Byblos (from which the word "Bible" is derived) measured in thousands of years. The names of Rameses, Nebuchadnezzar, Marcus Aurelius and Caracalla have all left their imprint.

Among "digs" now being investigated is a cave containing prehistoric remains of a pre-Christian village and the town where the prophet Elias hid from the wrath of Queen Jezebel.

Archaeologists under the direction of the Lebanese department of antiquities are excavating an impressive hippodrome at the southern port city of Tyre. One of the biggest in the world, the arena is unusual in that it is brick, not the more common stone.

Many details which have disappeared from similar constructions around the Mediterranean are still intact at Tyre, including the Spina, a central construction around which the horses trotted, and an obelisk.

Work also is continuing on the large Acropolis where workers have now reached the Phoenician level dating back to the 4th and 6th Centuries B.C. Fragments of statues and pottery, Assyrian inscriptions, scarabs and a dedicatory stone have rewarded the diggers' search.

The stone, placed by the governor of Syria and Phoenicia to the Egyptian King Philopater (at the time Tyre was part of the Ptolemy Kingdom) suggests the searchers are nearing an exciting new find—a temple perhaps or a town center.

Thirty miles north of Tyre, its "twin," Port Sidon, is being eagerly combed for traces of the past. At the Temple of Eshmun, the Phoenician god of health, statues in iron and marble have been found along with some bearing Persian characteristics. These clearly indicate the persistence of Persian influence in the arts even after Tyre escaped Persia's sphere.

Among the more important inscriptions deciphered was one revealing names of four of the kings of Phoenicia.

Excavations began earlier this year at Sarafand, a coastal town midway between Tyre and Sidon, biblical site of Sarepta where the prophet Elias, seeking refuge from an outraged Queen Jezebel, cured a widow's son. To date, archaeologists have recovered Byzantine and Roman objects from the city.

Other new excavations at Fedar, between the Adonis River and Byblos north of Beirut, have turned up flints and bones in a hillside cave dating from the Paleolithic period.

A German team is working at Kamed-al-Loz in the fertile Bekaa Valley near the Syrian border investigating the remains of a pre-Christian village of undetermined origin.

Kurth Comments

by PHIL KURTH

Four days ago Governor Ogilvie vetoed House Bill 2187, the legislation that was to provide catastrophe insurance for high school athletes.

Now that may come as somewhat of a surprise to some since it had received overwhelming approval in both the House and the Senate. But it did not come as a surprise to those most closely associated with the bill. In fact, the people who worked the hardest to get it approved were those who asked the Governor to veto it.

Sound a little confusing, or ridiculous?

Well, an editorial broadcast on radio station WIND last week helps explain it:

"You remember Gary Steger . . . the Lake Park High School football player crippled in a game a year ago. His medical costs far outstripped the insurance his family and the school provided.

"WIND investigated and found that few schools in the State carry disaster insurance and even basic insurance is not compulsory. Rep. William Redmond and Sen. Jack Kneuper, both of DuPage County, introduced a bill requiring all schools to carry disaster insurance on interscholastic athletes.

"The bill is now on Gov. Ogilvie's desk. Now we're asking the Governor to veto it even though WIND played a major role in its passage. We are taking this action on the assurance of Forrest Tabor, President of the Illinois High School Association, that his group will provide disaster insurance for all athletes in the state.

"Mr. Tabor tells us this plan will be a model for the nation and will provide athletes with adequate insurance for the catastrophic accidents which can, and do, occur. The cost of this new insurance will be borne by the Association, not the individual schools, thus providing the means to do the job.

"Rep. Redmond and Sen. Kneuper join us in waiting any pride of authorship, in favor of getting the problem solved in the most effective, efficient and economical way."

Which clarifies things a little, but still leaves a lot of questions unanswered.

For instance, why has the IHSA elected to take on the burden of providing this insurance themselves when it otherwise would have been a problem for individual schools to cope with?

According to Tabor: "The bill was so loosely written it would have been extremely difficult for insurance companies to even bid on. Preliminary bids have ranged from $1 to $15 per athlete.

"And it also applies to every grade school kid. It could have driven most of our elementary school districts right out of interscholastic activity altogether.

"With approximately 150,000 kids involved in athletics in the State, and a variable of from $1 to $15, there could be a difference of from $150,000 to $2,250,000. This is an unreasonable figure to saddle on schools when it could be done much more economically.

"And with the bill worded as loosely as it was, there was no guarantee at all that insurance companies, when it came time to pay a claim, wouldn't start hedging and looking for loop-holes and all of a sudden this great coverage turns out to be nothing.

"It's like they said on the Amos 'n Andy show many years ago: 'It's the big print that gives it to you and the fine print what takes it away.'"

"We want to get a realistic figure and one that is not going to be changed."

Wonderful sentiment and commendable motives, right?

Well, anyone who read Bill Gleason's scathing denunciation of the IHSA in his column in the Chicago Sun-Times last week would have a hard time believing that the IHSA is such a noble and public-spirited organization.

After a brief, if stinging, jab or two at the IHSA for previous insensitive actions, Gleason wrote:

"Well, anyway, the IHSA is down here to work out a program on major medical insurance for the young men who play on high school teams. The need was dramatized a year ago when Gary Steger . . . was terribly injured. Gary's parents and his coach, Bob Monken, were started when they learned that the medical bills for the first year of treatment might exceed $80,000.

"Members of the IHSA might have been expected to express concern for the problem in the weeks immediately after young Steger was hospitalized. Instead, Bill Berg, as sportscaster for WIND, took it upon himself to carry the ball for the Steger family.

"Bill and his associates at WIND marshaled public opinion. The guys at the station dreamed up a lot of stunts that raised approximately $35,000 to help pay the bills. What's more important, Charles Cleveland, former political editor of the Chicago Daily News who now served WIND as editorial director, interested legislators at the state capital in Springfield in the plight of other families which might face a catastrophe similar to that which struck the Stegers."

The bill drawn up went through the House and the Senate, points Gleason and "the IHSA did not bother to make a presentation at any of the hearings.

"The IHSA expressed no concern until after the bill sailed through the Senate and reached the desk of Gov. Ogilvie. . .

"All of a sudden," Cleveland said with some asperity, "the IHSA people became insurance experts. . ."

Why did the IHSA not act until the bill had reached Ogilvie?

Says Tabor: "None of us could perceive that this thing would stand a chance of passage the way it was written."

Which, of course, brings up another question. Would the IHSA have acted at all had the bill been defeated somewhere along the line or would they have continued to sit around and "consider" the problem?

"I can't really guarantee anything would have happened," Tabor admits.

Now, though, they guarantee they will provide a plan for insuring all athletes in the state — a plan that would be the first of its kind in the nation.

And how much insurance will be provided?

"This has not been decided," says Tabor. "We have been thinking of somewhere in the $50,000 to $100,000 range. But there are some board members who feel that even this might be more than necessary."

"It must be remembered that a claim of the size and magnitude of this Steger case is extremely rare. I have talked extensively with many insurance representatives (from several states and none of them can recall a case that has even gone to $100,000. I'm told that the largest claims usually arise out of 'football knees' and that they may have one or two of these a year with the cost up around $1,500 or a little more."

House Bill 2187 had provided for coverage up to $500,000.

Is the IHSA providing enough?

Steve Corman, publicity director for WIND and one of the men who, along with Cleveland and Monken, spent many hours in Springfield working to get the bill ratified, says: "We are satisfied it will be adequate if it is somewhere between $50,000 and $100,000. The fact alone that Illinois will become a pioneer in providing insurance of this type makes it a big step forward."

Says Monken: "I don't know exactly what the IHSA is going to do so it's hard to say whether it will be completely satisfactory."

"My only complaint right now is that we spent a lot of time and effort and money, the guys at WIND and myself, and I'm extremely disappointed that the IHSA comes in at this time to show disapproval of the bill.

"If the legislative body was in total sympathy with the cause of the bill and if the IHSA felt the wording was weak, why didn't they step in and give us some assistance on these matters?"

"If they wanted to provide this insurance, why didn't they say something a couple of months ago and save us all the time and work and expense that went into the bill?"

Well, now that the bill has been vetoed, it's all up to the IHSA. And it's going to be interesting to see what develops from here.

Bisons Hope To Bounce Back at WN

"Oh, a trouble's a ton, or a trouble's an ounce,
Or a trouble is what you make it,
And it isn't the fact that you're hurt that counts,
But only how did you take it.

COACHES: Fenton, Bob Appleby; Wheaton North, Jim Eschlin.

Bisons of Fenton this week as they prepare to do battle with the rugged Falcons of Wheaton North who are undefeated in two conference games while rolling up 72 points none for their opponents.

There is no doubt the Bisons suffered a painful fall last week when they tumbled from the ranks of the unbeaten with a 41-6 loss to arch-rival Lake Park. It had to hurt after hopes had been built up so high.

And their troubles are growing with the loss of several key players during that Lancer setback.

NIFTY QUARTERBACK Carlos Villarreal is sidelined with a dislocated finger. Swift, hard-nosed halfback Mark Seggeling is out indefinitely with a twisted knee. Rugged fullback Ken Hartmann is a doubtful starter because of a banged-up elbow.

So it looks like the only backfield survivor for Fenton is talented junior tailback Grant Kupisch.

Things are not exactly looking up.

And tomorrow in Wheaton the Bisons will have to show the stuff they're made of. They can quit if they want to — and most people would excuse them and say, well, they've had a lot of bad breaks — or they can come back just a little bit tougher.

Paddock Pigskin Picks

Forest View at Arlington — It won't be a bloodbath, but a birdbath that the Falcons and Cardinals will hook up in. And Arlington will get in a few more splashes, to mingle with the Forest View tears.

Elk Grove at Conant — As a homecoming feast, the Cougars should devour the luckless Grenadiers.

Hersey at Fremd — Huskies and Vikings can both stand cooler climates. The question is, by just what degree the hosts will find the visitors too hot to handle.

Prospect at Palatine — A gala celebration to welcome the roving Pirates home. And after Saturday, their contraband should be enhanced by the addition of some hastily vacated armor.

GOLDMAN GOIN' under. Lake Park's big fullback Mike Goldman hits the dirt as the Bisons ride herd on this play last Saturday. Taking him down is Len Nauman (31) as Elias Paulin (36) prepares to finish the job. Goldman led Lancer ball-carriers with 57 yards as Lake Park ended Fenton's winning streak with a whopping 41-6 victory.

IF THEY DO REBOUND, they can climb right back into the Tri-County fight. With one loss, they're hardly out of it and a victory tomorrow could establish them as solid contenders once again.

It won't be easy, of course. But it won't be as impossible as it may seem either.

First, the Falcons are probably not as awesome as that 72-0 statistic against conference foes would indicate. The victories came against the league's weaker clubs — Elmwood Park and Mundelein — so Wheaton has yet to be really tested.

And Fenton, despite that 41-6 score last week, is hardly that bad. They were right in the game at halftime, trailing only 7-0, before being victimized by two lightning TD thrusts, one on an 82-yard kickoff return, the other on a 60-yard interception runback. Then they had to abandon their game plan, and were guilty of a host of mistakes born of desperation.

"LOOKING AT the game films," says Bison coach Bob Appleby, "our kids didn't play that bad a ball game. Even after those two quick touchdowns, we came back and marched 80 yards to score."

"Then we held them, but a questionable penalty gave them another shot at it and they scored. We were still in the game until then, but that fourth touchdown was the crowning blow — we didn't come back after that."

"In our first three games, admittedly against weaker teams than Lake Park, we made very few mistakes. Last week we made all kinds of them, and it killed us. When Villarreal was out of there, we fumbled four times. We made mistakes on pass coverage, pass rotation, and these hurt us badly."

"But we're going to make some defensive adjustments this week, and if we can eliminate those mistakes I think we have a good chance."

WHEATON, OF COURSE is not a team you can make many errors against and survive.

Quarterback Randy Pfund, halfbacks Jay Bennett and Mark Bolton are all top-notch veterans. Bennett ranks second in the league in scoring. Pfund third, Bolton fifth. Pfund is one of the area's finest athletes — an excellent passer, an outstanding runner.

Mistakes against these guys are fatal.

Only junior in the offensive lineup is tackle Kim Phalas.

Defensively, the Falcons have yielded just one touchdown in their last three games. "Our defense has a lot of pride," says Wheaton coach Jim Rexilius. Leading the way are linebacker Bill Thomas and tackle Dana Andrewson (5-11, 230).

FENTON, WITH MOST of their backfield on the infirmary list, will have Glenn Kooker or Bill Zalas at quarterback, Mike Fonseca at one halfback, Hartmann (if he can play) at the other half, and Kupisch at fullback.

"We feel we have a real good team," says Rexilius, "but we know that Fenton is a fine ball club. We've always had a blood-and-guts ball game with them, and we know we're going to have to play our best game to beat 'em."

Says Appleby: "We have to be up for them, that's for sure, but I think our kids will be. I think they have the guts and desire to come back."

If they do, these slightly-battered Bisons may be off and thundering again.

Lancers Aim To Stay Up For Tigers

by PHIL KURTH

Nobody fools with a boa constrictor. Its size and appearance are menacing enough to scare anyone away.

But a coral snake? How could a pretty little thing like that hurt you?

Well, how isn't really important. The simple fact is that he'll kill you a whole lot quicker than that terrifying boa. Nature, like anything else, has its dangerous little deceptions and its usually these "harmless" things in life that hurt you the most.

THAT'S WHY LAKE PARK football coach Bob Monken is a little nervous about the impending visit of the Elmwood Park Tigers this weekend.

He knows that all the visible evidence points to a lopsided Lancer win.

After all, Elmwood Park has lost three straight games after an opening victory over Immaculate Conception. During those three losses, they have been trampled for 115 points while counting only 16 themselves. Last week they were blanked by Crown 34-0. The week before they were crushed by Fenton 42-16 — the same team Lake Park thrashed 41-6 a week ago.

The Lancers have won three straight league games after an opening tie with Conant and presently stand guard atop the Tri-County standings.

AND, JUST TO MAKE things even rosier for the Rosellians, tomorrow is Homecoming Day at Lake Park and a big, enthusiastic crowd should be on hand to cheer the Lancers on.

So what is Monken worried about?

"I don't want our kids thinking this is going to be a soft touch. Sure, we played an undefeated team last week in a real big game and we beat them rather soundly. But we were higher than a kite for that one and we played one of our better games."

"One of the big problems in playing a team like Elmwood Park right now is that they won't be real easy to get up for. But it could be a real feather in their cap to upset us, and if we're not ready they could do just that."

TIME: Preliminary, 12 noon Saturday
PLACE: Lake Park High School, Roselle
COACHES: Elmwood Park, Gary Scholz; Lake Park, Bob Monken.

"AND THEY'RE really not that bad a team. Last week against Crown, for instance, they averaged about five yards a snap. They were something like 12 for 19 in passing and averaged about four yards per run. Fumbles and penalties hurt them, and their defense has not been strong, but you don't take a team lightly that can move the ball like that."

Principal man in any upset bid by the Tigers would have to be quarterback Gary Cosentino who, given a little time, can pick a defense to shreds and has the strong arm to unload the bomb. He's also got a couple of pretty fair runners in the backfield with him — halfback Rocky Guerriero and fullback Tom Rumschick.

The Lancer defense, though, which had its bad moments against Ridgewood two weeks ago, seemed to find itself again last week in the crushing win over Fenton and if it's anywhere near as devastating this week could provide a long afternoon for Cosentino and Company.

And the power of Lake Park's offensive attack is accurately reflected in the scoring column — 105 points in three games.

QUARTERBACK Glenn Damato, of course, is leading the way. He's scored seven touchdowns himself (for a league-leading point total of 46) and passed for four others. Don Loren, Randy Hoff, and particularly Norb Schaeffer give the Lancers the break-away threat and 200-pound fullback Mike Goldman gives them the power-driving strength up the middle.

Elmwood Park coach Gary Scholz knows all about Lake Park, of course. He's looked at the papers and at his scouting reports. "They're tough — very tough. All I can say is we'll try to give them a ball game."

And Monken, despite his natural wariness, knows his club is better than Elmwood. "If we play the kind of game we're capable of playing and don't take anything for granted, we should beat them."

It's kinda like with the coral snake. He's a very timid creature and has such a tiny mouth that he can't really bite someone unless they're very careless. So if he's treated with a little caution and respect, there's no way he can hurt you.

BUT IF YOU decide to toy with him, look out! He's the deadliest killer around.

Match Stout Defenses at Arlington Field

by CHUCK WILLOUR

As anyone who keeps tabs on such things can tell you, this is a year for offenses in football.

No matter what the level — the pros, colleges, high schools and, yes, even mid-level leagues — football offenses have been exploding for more points this year than they ever have before. The Minnesota Vikings roll up 52 points, Ohio State 62, Palatine 60 — that's just a small sample of what's been happening this year.

So where does that leave the outstanding defensive teams?

Well, in the case of Arlington and Forest

View, that leaves two of the best defensive teams around in fifth and seventh places, respectively, in the Mid-Suburban League. These two squads have consistently shown outstanding defenses, yet for the Cards such efforts have brought one win, a tie and one loss in MSL action, while the Falcons have posted one win against two losses.

Which raises another question: what happens when two such defense-minded squads meet? Will it be, as one man suggested, a 2-2 tie? How about 3-3? Or even 0-0?

The answer to that one will have to wait — at least until the Cards meet Forest View tonight for Arlington's homecoming game. The game will start at about 8 p.m., so by about 10 p.m. the answer to that question should be known.

Arlington's season this year has been strong defensive action but little offense. Until last week, in fact, the Card offense had never scored. Last week, however, with sophomore Terry Ormsbee calling the signals and hitting eight of 11 passes, the Cards shook off some of their offensive doldrums to tally three times and take a 20-8 victory over Glenbard North.

Forest View, on the other hand, has shown a little more ability to score, lighting the scoreboard twice in a losing effort against Fremd and once over Conant to record a win.

Saying that tonight's game will be strictly a defensive battle could be misleading, though. Both teams can move the ball — their trouble has been in moving it enough to score. Falcon field general Rich Olson has passed for 310 yards in three games, despite being weakened last week by flu. Ormsbee, meanwhile, broke into the top six in passing with last week's debut.

The two quarterbacks also have capable running mates in the backfield. Olson will be joined by Rich Posinger and Howard Mock at halfbacks and John Ingo at fullback, while Ormsbee will have Mike De Zonna at halfback, Scott Douglass at fullback and either Mike D'Angelo or Craig Moritz at slotback.

The Falcon line will be anchored by tackles Bill Michalek and George Bauer, with Greg Swanson and Jeff Brown at guards and Chris Janczkowski handling the ball-snapping chores. Olson will be throwing to ends Gary Werner and Wayne Meier, although Werner is a doubtful starter after a bout with the flu.

The Card line will feature standout Carl Anderson at one guard and Pete Harth at the other. Kevin Ellertson and Jack Hult will go at tackle, and Jeff Selleck will hold down the center slot. Tom Sayre and Chuck Donchess will be Ormsbee's main targets at their end spots.

Defense, though, will be in the spotlight no matter what the offenses do. Forest View's Michalek is considered one of the league's best linemen by Card Coach Bob Walther, and Falcon mentor Paul Jordan has nothing but respect for the entire Arlington defense. "They have as good a defensive team as there is in the league," he commented.

Sharing the spotlight, too, will be the Arlington homecoming festivities. For the Cards this is a chance to show off their wares to former students, old and new grads alike. The spirit of the occasion might just be the kind of shot in the arm Arlington needs.

The Falcons, though, would like nothing better than to put a damper on the Card homecoming. That bit of extra incentive might be all that they need, plus the Falcons know that a Forest View varsity football squad has never posted a win over Arlington.

But all these factors seem to even out, and you're left with just one: the teams' defenses.

In the year of the offense, it's the defense's turn to take a bow.

Wheeling Hosts Glenbard North

by KEITH REINHARD

Time for a breather.

In sporting circles this sort of a remark means only one thing. It could preclude bouncing back from a loss or it could be involved with continuing a win streak but always it translates into a contest coming up in which the foe is considered a push-over.

No matter what the endeavor, be it football, rugby, fencing or water polo, when a coach tenders the observation, "Time for a breather," he's figuring to win big or win easy.

In Mid-Suburban league circles Breather Time has had a further translation since the advent of the 1968 school year. It might still mean winning big or winning easy but it invariably comes off, "Time for a game with Glenbard North."

Eventually this MSL philosophy will backfire. The Panthers, of course, are hoping it will happen this week. And coming off a "respectable" defeat and in peak shape for the first time this season to meet a somewhat undermanned and inexperienced outfit coming off a rather demoralizing setback last week, they may be in the best position in more than a year to finally turn the trick.

The confrontation the Panthers have in mind is their outing tonight at 8:00 with Wheeling at the Wildcat field. And while GBN mentor Don Elmore plots his strategy for upset, host coach Jack Liljeberg has spent the entire week attempting to rid his charges of any Breather Time ideas.

"I think we can beat 'em," Liljeberg offered. "But I don't have a single doubt in my mind about their ability to give us an awfully rough go of it."

What Liljeberg tried to convey in his statement — and what he's been attempting to convey to his charges all week — is that overconfidence might be the one last ingredient the revived Panthers must instill in their opponent just before bowling them over.

"I've watched them play and they're definitely improved over last season," continued the Wildcat pilot. "They try a lot of formations so there are a lot of things to defense and their biggest threat has been passing which can turn lethal at any time."

When presented with the fact that their hardworking halfback Don Anastasi might be going full throttle for the first time this season Liljeberg added, "That will give them a strong ground threat too and make them that much more dangerous."

Elmore's feelings about this evening's pairing went along the same lines. "We're in sort of a unique situation over here after a string of losses that extends back almost to the beginning of last season. We long ago resigned ourselves to the fact that we're not going for the championship or even for a winning season."

"What we're looking for now," he went on, "is just that one single victory. . . something we'll have to look back upon a kind of take the sting out of a long, dry season. That isn't to say that we'd step looking for a win if we got just one. . . but we have to have that first one to start with."

Elmore also mentioned that his squad is as healthy as they've ever been and that he's looking forward to a good game, something quite a bit removed from last fall's 46-12 lashing served up by the 'Cats.

"The Arlington game gave us somewhat of a lift too," Elmore noted of last week's 20-8 Panther loss to the Cardinals. "They didn't run us off the field and our kids gained just a little bit more confidence in themselves because of it."

So buoyed by a bit of confidence and with Anastasi — last year's 12th ranked MSL rusher with 302 yards — healthy and ready to roll, Glenbard will come to face a team not really up to full physical strength and mentally down after dropping a hard-fought 26-16 decision to Hersey on homecoming weekend last Friday.

"We just haven't been able to put it all together," is the way Liljeberg explains Wheeling's 1-2-1 record over. "Our defense has looked great at times and of course when (Dan) Hull was sound our offense had quite a bit more punch to it."

But explosive fullback Hull has missed one complete game because of an injury, was used sparingly last week against the Huskies and isn't expected to be back at peak strength even tonight. The usually sound Wheeling defense has had its vulnerable moments too and really lacking in speed overall, the Wildcats have worked their way to midseason mostly on perseverance.

Liljeberg has made a couple of adjustments which he hopes will benefit the club. One was elevating a sophomore standout to varsity status and the other involved transferring a regular from one position to another.

The new face is Burt Newman, a 160-pound halfback whose reputation has to be preceded by older brothers and former Wheeling standouts Mark and Jay.

"Newman gives us some much-needed speed and perhaps more of a scoring punch in our backfield," the 'Cat coach stated.

The change has been to shuffle quarterback Scott Day over to split end where he'll undoubtedly see some action tonight, spelling Brian Janus, and move Mike Groot into the first string signal caller slot.

"Hopefully," finished Liljeberg, "these moves will shore us up offensively and maybe with even limited duty from Hull we'll be ready for them."

Ready, that is, if they don't take time for a breather.

Winless Prospect Still Dangerous

Boasts Potential But No Wins

by LARRY MLYNCZAK

What is wrong with Prospect High School's football team?

The Knights, picked for third place by Mid-Suburban League coaches and picked even higher by many, have lost all four of their first four games. The losing streak never ceases to amaze coaches and fans alike.

"They have all kinds of talent over there," says Conant coach Ralph Losee. "They just don't seem to put it all together." This statement was made after Conant defeated Prospect 31-21.

"They have outstanding personnel," says Al Ratcliff, coach of Fremd. "They have good size and some speed. I can't figure them out." These words were spoken after Fremd defeated Prospect 7-6.

TIME: Preliminary game at 12 noon; varsity game at 2 p.m.

PLACE: Palatine High School's Old Field, four blocks west of Northwest Highway, one block north of Palatine Road.

COACHES: Prospect: Don Williams (head coach), Dave Zmuck and Bill Shyten (assistants). Palatine: Al Ratcliff (head coach), Tom Walz (assistant).

"I can't believe that we're THAT much better than them," says Len Burt of Hersey. "They have good material." Burt was speaking in an interview after Hersey defeated Prospect 28-6.

And says Prospect coach Don Williams, "We've been outgaining everybody on the ground, but I'll tell you, I'd like to play one ballgame where instead of outrushing someone we outscore them. I'm getting darned tired of these 'moral' victories where we do everything but win."

Everything but win. The Knights are fourth in the Mid-Suburban League in total offense (first in passing), fourth in first downs and sixth in defense. Yet the Knights have not won a football game.

And things are not looking much brighter at this point for coming up on the Prospect schedule is Palatine — undefeated, untied and unscored upon in the Mid-Suburban League... and in the midst of Homecoming festivities.

Of Palatine, Williams said, "They'll be looking down our throats. After all, we're 0-3. They can't be too worried about playing us."

To the contrary, Palatine coach Arv Herstedt and his team are extremely worried about the visiting Knights.

"They're explosive, capable and talented," Herstedt said. "That's all it takes to beat anybody." Herstedt sounded a lot like Losee, Ratcliff and Burt.

Looking over the Prospect lineup, one certainly wonders how Prospect can be 0-4 (including a loss to Glenbrook South outside the league along with three conference games).

The Knights have Casey Rush and Jim Doolley at ends and this is a good receiving pair. At tackles are 215 pound Mike Korf and 205 pound John Manning. At guard are 205 pound Don Rodgers and 170 pound Tim Loeffel. A 185 pounder, Lauren Nelson, plays center. The line is the biggest in the MSL and it is not exactly slow.

Stu White is the leading passer in the Mid-Suburban League with 23 completions in 40 attempts, 347 yards and two touchdowns. The running backs are Scott Szala who has carried for 9.9 yards per carry, Don Koehler who gained over 100 yards against Hersey, Mike Gebert, the fifth leading pass receiving in the loop as well as a good runner, and Pat Packhard to blocks as hard as he runs.

With all of this, Prospect scored three touchdowns in its first three games. The Knights did come to life last week with 21 points in the loss to Conant.

"We've been unscored on in the conference," said Herstedt, "but our defensive coach Tom Walz is worried about keeping that record going against a team like Prospect."

Though the Knights pose problems for the Pirates, the Pirates are even bigger problems for Prospect.

Take the offense, for instance. Halfback Tom Patch has gained 367 yards on 58 carries, fullback John Keating has 192 yards on 35 carries and halfback Scott Harris has 159 yards on 24 carries. Guy Zajonc, the quarterback, has completed 14 out of 36 passes for 280 yards and four touchdowns. The total yards of Patch, Harris, Keating and Zajonc adds up to over 1,000. That's more than the entire Prospect team has gained the entire season!

Then there's the defense. The Pirates yielded a ghastly 12 points to Glenbrook North. Horrible. Terrible. By Palatine standards, that is. The Pirates have stiffened up since then, not giving up a point in 12 quarters of football.

Palatine's 4-0 record has come at the expense of Glenbrook North by 43-12, Arlington 11-0, Glenbrook North 60-0 and Forest View 16-0. What makes the scores all the more impressive are the facts that Glenbrook North has not lost another game and is in first place in the Central Suburban League and Arlington has not lost another game.

The defensive crew, as usual, will be made up of Ron McAlister and probably Bob Hall at ends, Chuck Drake and Mike Selsky at tackles, Mark Thompson or John Thomas at middle guard, Bob Carr and Bill Hathaway at linebackers, John Keating and Scott Harris at cornerbacks and Ed Meyer and Chris Andriano at safeties.

Hall's starting role is questionable since he was injured slightly in the Forest View game. If Hall cannot play Thomas will move to defensive end and Glen Hughes will bet a look.

Carr has been considered for All-State. Selsky is the only defensive tackle with his own boisterous fan club and the rest of the squad is just plain tough. "We have a few guys on our team who get most of the credit," Herstedt said. "Don't get me wrong, they deserve it. But we have a few others, like Bill Hathaway for instance who does a good job day after day but doesn't get the credit. He plays in Carr's shadow most of the time. A lot of people don't know he's even there, but I know he's there and he's done a great job."

While speaking of unheralded players, there are a few on the offensive line who have been outstanding. Andriano is, in one opinion, the very best pass receiver in the MSL and Chrley Phillips and Rick Ziemann have done well at tight end. Tackles Jeff Frost and Bruce Eberle are a pair of strong tackles. Carr and McAlister play guard with a flair and Thomas plays center as well as anybody.

Sitting on the bench will be letterman Dave Hasbach who is injured, letterman Henry Schniepp who does the placekicking and punting, Dave Braun who booms kick-offs, and Jim Stanner who threw a touchdown pass against Glenbrook North.

"They give us a few worries," smiles Herstedt, "but I think that we give them a few worries, too." Indeed they do, indeed they do.

BOB CARR of Palatine, guard and a standout for both the offensive and linebacker, rates as a leading candidate for the unbeaten Palatine for All-State honors from the Pirates who will entertain Prospect to Mid-Suburban League. Carr has been morrow on homecoming.

Cougars' Homecoming Brings Win-Starved Grove to Town

by PAUL LOGAN

Festive, colorful, exciting, joyous, beautiful and memorable.

That's a football homecoming. But ask any Mid-Suburban League coach and he'll also tell you what else accompanies homecoming week — inattentive players and upsets.

"I don't think that homecoming is going to help us," said Ralph Losee, Conant's head football coach, as he discussed the Cougars' fall festival clash with Elk Grove this Saturday at 2 p.m. "It's become too much of a distraction for the players."

"There's too much socializing and commercialism in it," Losee continued. "They're thinking about homecoming queens instead of football and that doesn't do us a bit of good."

Don Schnake, the Grenadiers' coach, agrees with Losee and points to last Saturday's Elk Grove Homecoming. Fremd defeated the Grove 13-6 and all the carrying on the week before also had a lot to do with the outcome, according to Schnake.

TIME: Preliminary game to begin at noon, Saturday; varsity contest to be at approximately 2 p.m.

PLACE: Conant High School, Old Plum Grove Road, Hoffman Estates.

COACHES: Elk Grove: Don Schnake; Conant: Ralph Losee.

Conant, which whipped Prospect last week by a 31-21 count, must be given the favorite's role as it has outscored its opponents 88-35 in fashioning a 2-1-1 campaign so far. Meanwhile, the Grove has been on the short end of four straight heartbreakers.

In 1968 the situation at the two schools was quite similar before the two met. Losee explains what happened:

"Last year we came off a big win and we went into the Elk Grove game overconfident — we got beat (31-27). This year we're not going to be overconfident. Every time the boys start feeling a little cocky, I just remind them of last year."

Jim McGraw remembers it very well. He enjoyed a great day — opening kickoff return of 90 yards for a score; a punt return of 80 yards for another TD; a 46-yard run from scrimmage; three-for-three in kicking extra points; and playing tough on defense.

But so did the Grove as they picked off two errant Cougar passes and ran them in for scores. "That was our best play," Schnake jokingly commented. But his tone shifted abruptly when the conversation turned to McGraw.

"I think he's better than last year," the Grenadier mentor exclaimed after seeing big Jim in action last Friday at Prospect. "He didn't break away for any long runs but he was sure six, eight and ten yarding them to death."

Losee enjoyed the three-touchdown performance by his great halfback, but also had this to say of his boys' offensive attack:

"I was pleased with the way we moved the ball against Prospect. John (MacDonald) was throwing well and Steve Nelson did a tremendous job. That was the first start, you know, and he really made some great catches."

But he was quick to point out that there were some slipups on defense that had to be corrected if they were to beat Elk Grove.

"Since Elk Grove probably saw us get beat with a few passes last week and since they had success throwing the ball with that new quarterback (Joe Smith) of theirs, I expect them to come out throwing on us."

Smith, who led the Grenadiers to their only score of the game with a 14-yard pass to Eugene Pinder, is pushing Dave Ristau for the No. 1 spot all week. Schnake couldn't say which one would get the starting nod on Saturday.

Whoever will be throwing, the prime target will be Pinder. In the Grove's four losses the rangy (6-2, 178) right end has gathered in 15 for 179 yards and three touchdowns.

Helping to balance the Grove ground attack is Kevin Byrne. The small (5-9, 161) but tough halfback has burned holes in Wheeling, Hersey and Fremd by totaling 218 yards or two thirds of the team's entire ground game in league play.

The Grove defense, which seemed to have come into its own against Fremd, still has to improve, according to Schnake. And he probably was thinking of McGraw's season statistics — 108 carries for 589 yards and seven touchdowns; eight receptions for 107 yards and a TD; two completions for 38 yards and a TD; and 54 total points!

As for the Cougars' defense, two boys — end Dave Kellermeyer and linebacker Mike O'Malley — were injured. However, Losee thought they'd be ready by Saturday.

"If we play the game we're capable of playing, we should win," Losee said. "But if we don't hustle and play our game, they can beat us without much doubt."

Elk Grove's team is hopeful that Conant's queen and court are real pretty so that it might just distract the Cougars enough to beat them. Needless to say, the Grenadiers are famished for a fall festival feast.

St. Viator to Invade Sunday

Chargers Hope to Spring Upset vs. Lions

by CHUCK WILLOUR

This is the year of the Lions. Baseball fans might be calling it the year of the Mets, but if you ask around in the Chicagoland Prep League about how the conference football picture is shaping up you'll be set straight. This is the year of the Lions.

It has to be.

Coach Joe Gliwa's St. Viator Lions have posted a 2-0 CPL mark so far this season, opening up league play two weeks ago with a resounding victory over St. Francis de Sales and then last week edging by powerful Marist, 21-16, in a game that saw the Lions outshine in every vital statistic except the only one that counts.

Winning that kind of game is a mark of a champion, and the Lions look just that — champions.

But Sunday Gliwa's gridders will be putting their hoped-for title on the line when they meet a young and upset-minded squad from St. Joseph High at the Proviso West football field.

The Chargers come into Sunday's fray boasting of very little. Four games into the season, Coach Jack Annetti's charges are still winless, having lost two CPL matches and two more non-league bouts. Last week against Marian Catholic the Chargers were bounced 30-12, and the week before they dropped a decision to De La Salle.

But it was that loss to De La Salle that gives the Chargers a lot of hope against the Lions. St. Joseph was barely edged by the traditional league titlist, 14-12, in a game that might have gone either way.

Their play last week, reported Annetti, was the result of a letdown after the narrow loss to De La Salle. "We're predominantly a junior squad with some sophomores," the Charger mentor said. "And when a young squad like this loses a tough one they're bound to be down the next week. Hopefully we'll rebound this week."

And if they do, the Lions could be in for their toughest game to date.

The Chargers boast of a big, powerful line. Anchored by 230-pound tackle Bob Lockwal, the Chargers probably have one of the biggest lines in the CPL, with 215-pounder Lou Covelli at center, 200-pound Tom Sullivan at the other tackle, and 180-pounders Rory Neill and Frank Julian at guards.

Annetti also feels he has a pair of good receivers in ends Dave Naborowski and Rich Magewski, particularly in Naborowski. "He's one of the best in the league. We think he's definitely all-state material. He'll be the one man Viator will have to look out for. And, of course, if they double team him, that will give us an opening somewhere else."

The weakest part of the Charger lineup will be the backfield. Annetti will start junior Don Stevens at quarterback, big (6-1, 190) Barry Miller and Bill O'Leary at half-backs, and Mike Yeager at fullback.

This backfield is weak for one reason — they can't move the ball. Or, as Lion mentor Gliwa puts it, "Their line is big — that's their main attraction — but they lack an offensive punch."

But even though the Chargers have not been able to pound out yardage, Naborowski has still managed to pull in at least one TD pass per game this season. And, remember, they gave De La Salle fits for an entire four quarters before finally succumbing.

So if the Lions are really going to make this their year, they are going to have to get by the Chargers before thinking about any of the other teams in the league.

And this is exactly what Gliwa believes. "We haven't thought ahead and we're not going to," he said. "We have the kids looking at the season game by game. This league is too well balanced to simply look past one team because it hasn't won a game yet."

will take over offensive chores. Mike Georgen will also be seeing plenty of defensive line action.

Otherwise the lineup will be the same. Mike Abinanti will direct the squad at quarterback, joined by halfbacks Gerry Richardson and Bill Madden and fullback Dick Aylward. On the line will be ends Mike Pettenuzzo and Tom Anderson, John Vandenberg and Diam at tackles, Mark Browning and Steve Ostermann at guards, and Mike Wilkin at center.

Injury and illness won't bother the Lions too much this week, with the full squad looking healthy except Denny Foreman who is probably out for the entire season with an injured leg.

Despite having a half dozen men not at full strength last week, the Lion might still prevail. Every mistake that Marist made was turned to St. Viator's benefit.

The Chargers, though, don't plan on making any mistakes Sunday. Their only plan is to win.

They're not quite convinced yet that this is the year of the Lion. So St. Viator will just have to show them Sunday.

SAVORING the fruits of victory. Bruce McGuire, director of the Arlington Heights park district tennis teams this past summer, shows off the trophies his netmen earned in tournament competition.

Key Games Ahead In Classic Loops

Some interesting battles are in store for the sixth chapter of the first half of the Paddock Classic Traveling bowling leagues.

In each loop, the current holders of first place will have to meet stiff challenges Saturday evening if they plan to stay where they are.

In the men's league, which this week goes to Rolling Meadows Bowl, the top struggle should be Morton Pontiac vs. Aladdin's Lamp Restaurant and the Flying Carpet Motor Lodge (the latter two names are one sponsor). Morton has been in first place for four weeks but Aladdin's is only five points behind the leaders and one lap behind second-place Uncle Andy's Cow Palace.

Another important match will be Gaare Oil against Uncle Andy's Cow Palace. Gaare will be trying to bounce back after being shut out last Saturday and will try to bounce Uncle Andy's out of the runner-up spot. The latter, of course, has other ideas — namely, to overtake the Pontiac leaders or at least get closer to them.

The other two matches at Rolling Meadows will pit Buick in Evanston against Snack Time Restaurant and Langlo's Refinishing against Thunderbird Pro Shop.

Buick in Evanston, tied for third, also has its sights set on catching up with the front-runners while Snack Time would like to move out of its tie with Langlo's and into the first division. Langlo's in turn has the same motive and will be trying to stave off Thunderbird's attempt to climb out of the basement.

The big women's match of the week is a head-to-head scuffle for first place between Sims Bowl (which holds that position now) and Des Plaines Lanes (which is one point behind).

Girard-Bruns, also a point out of the lead and just replaced from first last Saturday, will be taking on last-place Morton Pontiac. Duchess Beauty Salon, which has also enjoyed a week's term in the top spot and is still a third team now tied for second, challenges on Doyle's-Striking Lanes.

The other match will be between Kemerly Realty and Latoff Chevrolet, two teams tied for third and three points behind league-leading Morton.

The women's action this week is hosted by Sims Bowl in Des Plaines.

Welflin Wins in Contest

The Big Ten, especially Indiana, continues to let down Paddock Publications' Football Forecasters — even the winners.

All of the top three finishers in last week's contest selected Indiana to top Colorado, but the Hoosiers lost by 23 points. In fact, most of the misses came on Big Ten losses, as that conference posted a 3-7 record for the weekend in non-conference play.

Edward Welflin's record was much better. He called 15 of the 17 high school and college games correctly on the official ballot as the Wheeling resident became the undisputed winner.

Besides the Indiana contest, the only other miss for Welflin was Michigan State, which was defeated by Notre Dame.

Welflin's fine record will be rewarded. He will get not only the usual prize, a football autographed by the Chicago Bears, but also two tickets to the Chicago Owls' game against the Jersey Jays this Saturday night at Soldier Field.

Right behind Welflin were two other entrants who picked all but three games correctly. John Martin of Palatine missed only on Lake Park-Fenton, Illinois-Iowa State, and Indiana-Colorado, while Leon Kasuboske of Arlington Heights, Fremd High basketball coach, missed the same two college games and the Conant-Prospect tilt.

Martin claimed second place in the contest by foreseeing 49 total points in the tie-breaker — the Green Bay Packer — Minnesota Viking game Sunday. Kasuboske predicted 50. The actual total was 26.

The winner of a previous contest may not enter again. But if you still haven't pulled down that top prize, try your hand again this week. You may end up with an autographed football.

Last week's winner, Joe Samojedny, was erroneously referred to as a Fremd High School student. Samojedny is actually a physical education teacher and freshman football coach at Fremd.

Mount Prospect Grid Report

Midgets Complete Fifth Week

Sunny skies and shouting cheerleaders prevailed this past Sunday as the Mount Prospect Midget Football Association completed its fifth week of competition at Lions Park.

The Giants and Cardinals won lopsided contests in the senior circuit. Victorious eleven in the junior division were the Eagles, Chiefs, Vikings, Redskins and Steelers. Bantam winners included the Badgers, Spartans, Illini and Wildcats. The Hoosiers and Buckeyes fought to a scoreless tie.

SENIOR DIVISION

Quarterbacks Todd Buikema and Ray Meinson each threw a TD pass as the Giants beat the Packers 52-0. Kenny Holan zig-zagged for three scores and Dave Matz made two. Don Stevens and Kurt Haaland converted fumbles for a six-point apiece. Mark Storhaug dashed for his solo tally. Rod Klobassa plunged for three extra points. Gary Helfenbein, Joe Griessler, Bob Butler, Kevin Redig and Bill Baumann stood out on defense.

The Packers connected on some nice passes, especially to Mark Buchek early in the game, but couldn't score. Signal caller Rich Fisher called on Jack Keyser and Herb Meyer many times for ground gainers. Dino Frediani led the defense and received help from Matt Hower, Niles Walgreen and Gary Benhart.

The Cardinals walloped the Bears 33-0 for four scores in the second half. Mark Wegerer registered a pair of touchdowns on an interception and a long run. Mark Pauluzzi connected with Bill Novak on a long bomb. Mike Cirus and Bob Moore scooted for a six point apiece. Mike Dyon kicked an extra point. Defensive toughies included Tom McGough, Doug Ballotti, Mike Poltran, Randy Cherwin, Mark Lenzen and Bob Stephens.

Scott Hetherington made numerous tackles for the Bears who made a game of it for the first half. Fumbles were recovered by Brad Muender (two), Mike Donlon, Tim Halas, Dave Anderson and Bernie Borschke. Rich Godinez and Dale Rolley were the hardest runners for coach Bob Kranz's squad.

JUNIOR DIVISION

The Eagles outlasted the Cowboys 25-20 as Roger Patterson scored on a reverse and threw TD strikes to Jim Reicher and Bucky Fisher. Jeff Conway tallied on a sweep. Rich Baylis, Jay Munn, Mark Latner, Conrad Mazeski and Steve Misconetz blocked and tackled fiercely.

Cowboy quarterback Steve McBride's calls plus Martin Kendrick's and Paul Hellerich's blocking enabled Ricky Reames, Pat O'Connell and Don Thoma to hit pay dirt. Don Thoma and Phil Higley broke up many opponent's plays.

The Chiefs took to the air in their 44-0 whitewash of the Browns as John Appleton (twice), Mike Lapocewich and Tom Smolen scored on pass plays. "Bo" Broeren hit the end zone on a pass and intercepted aerial. Dale Higgason sprinted for his counter. Jim O'Brien, George Misceovich, Brad Krause and Jim Dunsing also sparked. The Chiefs battle the Steelers this Sunday in the junior league's top game.

Fullback Clyde Mundt was the Browns' hardest working ball carrier and safety Tim Gosch was in on most of the tackles.

Tom Hermanson's extra point pass to Steve Spielmann after the latter's successful opening second half kickoff return proved to be the difference as the Vikings edged the Jets 7-6. Tim Broderick, Mike Griebat and Mike Szukalla threw key blocks to pave the way. Mark Schall and Joe DiFatta played well too.

Mike Theobald scored for the Jets on a sneak over center. Offensive stickouts included Steve Chromik, Ray Michaelson and Greg Warren. A tough trio on defense was made up of Gregg Jacobs, Chip Heinemann and Nicky Kekos.

The Redskins whipped the Rams 14-0 as John Vojta hit Jim McNulty and Don Grasse recovered Paul Post's blocked punt for a pair of scores. McNulty also tackled an opposing ball carrier in the end zone for a safety. Brian McEneely, John Hasselman and Carl Spacone were offensive stalwarts. Bob Lee was among the leading tacklers.

Ken Colwell, Wayne Kruty and Steve Forton anchored the defensive unit and Brian Huske, Dan Super and Gary Horvath hustled on defense, for the hornless Rams.

The Steelers ground out a 35-0 win over the 49ers as George "Tiger" Bieago, Johnny Buyers, Mike Brown, Jim Brown and Jim Allergott scampered for touchdowns. Doug Spohr and Keith Keller made extra points. Bruce Haaland, Eddie DiGangi, Mike Baldwin, Scott Rossi and Mike Skolen also helped their team's cause.

Larry Ostling's running and pass receiving stood out for the 49ers. Fran Steinmiller and Eric Mase ran and blocked hard. Scott Viger led the linemen in tackles and received excellent support from Tom Renaud and Mike Starkey.

BANTAM DIVISION

The Hoosiers and Buckeyes played to a scoreless deadlock. Bob Vlach hit Chuck Lynch for good yardage but the Hoosiers couldn't score. Jeff Vlach and Brian DeValk blocked with authority. Good tackling was displayed by Andy Bennett, Dan Smith and John Borden.

Len McGee's and Dan Ayer's running and Tom Crews' pass receiving were outstanding for the Buckeyes. Brad Hogreve, Mark Norwick and Jeff Gibson sparked the defensive eleven.

Short and long runs by Dan Keller, Bob Cantieri and Paul Izban made the Badgers victorious over the Hawkeyes by a 19-6 margin. Randy Williams, Mark Norris and Bob Meyer opened many holes. John Rohrer, Tom Presperin and Bob Lopotko played hard nosed on defense.

Jeff Martinski recorded the Hawkeyes only score on a 34-yard sprint. Dennis Robbins and Jay Miller also played fine offensive football. Pat Doyle, Mike Hudson and Harry Arnold were the leading tacklers.

Jeff Patterson and Steve Wetterling swept the ends for pay dirt as the Spartans squeezed by the Wolverines 14-6. Artie Stevens, Mark Shaputis and Matt Lee starred on offense. Greg Miller knocked down passes and Kevin Leach and Steve Zick made many, many tackles.

A fourth-quarter dash by Jeff Scanlan put the Wolverines on the scoreboard. Kyle Racine, Tom Laturno and Tom Barrett were strong offensively. A good rush was put on by Jim Touhy, Joe Bopp and Dave Closek.

A pair of touchdowns by Tim Chmura paced the Illini to a 28-0 whitewash of the Gophers. Jeff Laver and Lou Citro each tallied once on short gains. They and Steve Wilkinson made the extra points. Center John Nettie blocked effectively. John McDonough and Dave Peterson made seven tackles between them.

Joe Carcerano, Steve Kurka and Jeff Lowe did their best to generate the Gophers offense. Deft defenders included John Misceovich, Tom Martindale and Tom Smith.

An Andy Loos to Ron Ash completion enabled the Wildcats to edge the stubborn Boilermakers 6-0. Good blocks were supplied by Dave Guzzardo, Greg Kotwicz and Dan Ash. Tim Doyle grabbed two enemy aerials and received help from Scott Spielmann and Dick Paulus. Eric Bauer punted well.

Bobby Morris' runs and Steve Norman's pass catches highlighted the Boilermakers attack. Scott Michaelson blocked well. Paul and Tom Redig plus Tom Van Wazer and Mark Winters anchored the defensive line.

At Beverly Lanes

Cutler team managed only two points this week in the Parkway men's league while George won 43 over Williams. A tie for first place exists now between Cutler and George. Individually, high scores were recorded by Vern Schroeder, 540 with games of 210 and 203; Bill Conroy 538 201; and Bob Paddock 536. George Quade had a 207 game. George Meyer 202 and Bud Mills, Jr. 200.

In the Arlington Heights Women's Keglers League, Sullivan Pontiac took over the team lead by taking two games from Arlington Furniture. Landwehr's T.V. took three games with a high 347 series. Ginny Kamp had a high series of 562 with a 255 game. Other 200 games were rolled by Doris Nowack, who had two, Emily Dragoon and Joan Hunsberger.

In Arlington Heights Program

Just One Midget Grid Squad Perfect

The Falcons of the Junior League in the Arlington Heights Boys Football program remain the only undefeated, untied team out of the 16 that started the season with high hopes four weeks ago.

By virtue of their 8-0 win over the Cardinals, the Falcons take over sole position of the top spot in the Junior League. That win coupled with the 49ers' defeat of the Rams in the Senior division leaves the Falcons as the only team in the program with an unblemished record.

By beating the Rams 14-6, the 49ers' move into a tie for the lead of the Senior League along with the Rams. Each has a 3-1 record.

In the Varsity League, the Giants and Vikings, who tied two weeks ago, share the lead with 3-0-1 records.

49ERS 14 — RAMS 6
The 49ers parlayed a strong running game and a tough, tight defense to overwhelm the Rams 14-6, after the Rams had scored a fast first quarter touchdown on a 45 yard punt return by Ward Schell. John Holden threw the key block that enabled Schell to breeze down the sidelines.

From then on it was pretty much 49ers. Moving with the ensuing kickoff, the 49ers drove deep into Ram territory, but were stopped. A pass interception by Dar Townsend regained the ball at the Ram 29 with time running out in the half.

Moving on the ground, the 49ers fought their way to the one-foot line and stopped the clock with 1 second left in the half. On the last play of the first half, Steve Gehrig pushed the ball across. Joe Pifer's two-point conversion gave the 49ers a halftime lead of 8-6.

In the third quarter, the 49ers capitalized on a partially blocked kick, taking the ball on the Ram 16. From there it took just five plays for Townsend to go over for the second 49er touchdown.

LIONS 8 — REDSKINS 0
After playing to a scoreless tie earlier in the season, the Lions and Redskins finally saw a touchdown scored, and it was the Lions that scored it.

Early in the game, Jeff Whitnell went 42 yards on fake reverse to set up a six-yard passing play — Jeff Hammond to John Schroeder — for the score. Hammond passed to Pete Casey in the attempt for the extra two points.

In the third quarter, the Redskins drove 50 yards to the Lion two-yard line, but could not score. On the next play, Mark Khlemen of the Redskins intercepted a Lion aerial at the 15, but again the Lions held and moved the ball out of danger.

FALCONS 8 — CARDINALS 0
Although dominating the action, the Falcons weren't able to dent the Cardinal goal line until early in the fourth quarter. Capping a long march, Jim Braddock went over on a three-yard plunge. Blake Schmidt added the two-point conversion.

Twice the Cardinal defensive unit stopped the Falcons inside their own 20 yard line.

COLTS 18 — COWBOYS 0
The Colts kept their hopes of a share of the Junior division crown alive with a strong performance, defeating the Cowboys 18-0.

All three Colt touchdowns came following drives. Ron Riba scored two in the second quarter, and a third was scored in the third quarter. None of the extra point tries were good.

Mark Schranz was cited by the Colts for his outstanding defensive play at guard.

BEARS 14 — PACKERS 6
The Bears scored in the first and fourth quarters in taking a 14-6 win from the Packers.

The Bears first touchdown came on a 22-yard run by Dean Divalero. Bob Bettis ran for the two-point conversion.

The final Bear score was on a seven-yard pass from Doug Hutchinson to Phil Barone. The extra point try was no good.

Bill Connor of the Bears intercepted a Packer pass and recovered a fumble.

GIANTS 22 — EAGLES 0
The Giants retained a share of the lead in the Varsity League with a 22-0 win over the Eagles.

After a scoreless first quarter, the Giants got on the scoreboard before the half on a 10-yard pass from quarterback Scott Wesner to Dick Blocki. The same combination hit in the third quarter, this time on a 55-yard play. Tim Bauler ran for the final Giant touchdown.

Cary Kenning made one two point conversion for the Giants and Scott Whittier made the other.

VIKINGS 6 — BROWNS 0
The Vikings kept pace with the Giants in the varsity loop with a tough 6-0 victory over the Browns.

The game's only score came in the fourth quarter on a 30-yard run by Tom Vassios.

Ward and Zakula of the Browns helped keep their team in contention with key pass interceptions, but it wasn't enough.

SAINTS 28 — STEELERS 0
The Saints scored their first victory of the season, but did it convincingly, 28-0 over the Steelers.

In the first quarter John Abbs hit pay-dirt on an end sweep, and they scored again in the second period on a beautiful 55-yard pass play from Smithern to Topcheshki.

Abbs and Topcheshki each added touchdowns in the second half and Schell ran for two two-point conversions as the Saints won going away.

Bengels, Travelers Win

The Bengals and Travelers chalked up victories again in the latest Bensenville Boys Athletic Association football action.

In the Traveling League, the Bensenville Pee-Wee Travelers defeated the Elk Grove Red Travelers 26-0 Saturday.

Playing an outstanding defensive game Bensenville, led by Vic Comastro, Bill Zaleski, and Terry Hone, held Elk Grove to 72 total yards. The offense was led by Frank Wiekliniski who scored two touchdowns and Alec Anderson and Dick Anderson who notched one apiece. Kenny Kula also added several long runs to the Traveler offense.

Next week the Travelers play Glen Ellyn at Fenton High School at 3 p.m. This is the big game for the Travelers who now have a record of four wins and one loss.

The Bensenville Bengals remained on top in the BBAA Pee-Wee League with a 38-0 win over the Jets, their third victory in a row.

Leading the touchdown parade was half-back Fuzzy Wunschel with a 35-yard romp, aided by a crushing block thrown by flanker-back Freddie Drachus. The extra point was scored by Doug Elg. Moments later guard Chuck Schroeder recovered a Jet fumble after a jarring tackle by Tommy DeMauro and Doug Leider, setting up the second Bengal touchdown on a 25-yard run by Steve Heale.

The defense got into the act when middle linebacker Chi-Chi Cwick stole the ball on the kickoff and streaked 40 yards for another score. Later in the third quarter Heale ran 30 yards for another touchdown, aided by a beautiful block from Larry Honyak. Elg once again added the extra point.

After an exchange of punts, Pete Couture intercepted a Jet pass and on the next play Elg raced around end for the score. The final TD of the evening came when Billy Sahagian handed to Cwick who scampered off tackle for 11 yards.

Droegemueller On 150-Pound Team

Ford Droegemueller of Wheeling is a returning letterman tackle on the Army Academy lightweight football team which is defending champion of the 150-pound Eastern Football League.

The West Point squad, which has won the league title seven times in the last dozen years, opened defense of its 1968 title recently at Cornell U. in Ithaca, N.Y.

Coach Eric Tipton's club won all six games on its schedule a year ago and placed no less than 12 players on the all-league team.

Droegemueller is a former Wheeling High School football player.

Hoffman Grid Team Wins

Wayne Bihun led the Hoffman Estates Commandos rushing attack last Sunday as they defeated Riis Park 14-0.

In the first quarter, after Dave Gallenter recovered a Riis fumble, Bihun, Ed Reck and Cory Rathman combined their punch to move the ball 33 yards to the Riis 26 yard line. A Ken Williams to Ken Dunek pass put the ball on the three yard line where Fullback Cory Rathman scored the first touchdown.

Wayne Bihun went over for the extra point to make the score Commandos 7-Riis Park 0.

During the second quarter, defensive men Bill Bowers, Dave Wescott and Dave Gallenter contained the Riis offense to end the half with the score still 7-0. The Commandos defensive unit was again outstanding in the third quarter when Chris Kowalski intercepted a pass to stop a Riis drive on the 40 yard line.

In the final period, another Williams to Dunek pass gained 50 yards to put the Hoffman team in scoring position. Wayne Bihun ran the ball to the two yard line and Cory Rathman scored the TD. Ed O'Malley plunged over for the point after to make the final score 14-0.

Ski Champions to Appear

Hundreds of questions on skiing will be answered by the sport's professional champions during the International Ski and Winter Sports Show at Arlington Park, Oct. 17-19. Sessions on ski bindings may save many an ankle or leg and also give added pleasure in the sport.

Ski Binding seminars will be conducted almost continuously at the Ski Show by Gordon Lipe, inventor, engineer and skiing authority. He was the developer of the popular "release check." This is an instrument which measures the force necessary to release the foot from the binding.

Ski, or release, bindings are clamping devices which lock a skier's boots to the skis with sufficient rigidity for control, yet free him in the event of a spill. Today's bindings have been simplified and "step-in" types are being widely used. Lipe states that he has found two factors causing failure of bindings to perform properly: inefficient design and poor installation.

"All reliable ski shops have mechanical testing devices for bindings when they are mounted on skis. They know quickly whether they're O.K. or must be readjusted. Be sure you have a true binding test, and you'll ski with slight risk of injury from a tumble," Lipe concluded.

Assisting Lipe in this binding seminar will be representatives from eight manufacturers of these limb-sparing devices.

Top figures in the world of winter sports will also be at the Show at all times, providing demonstrations, showing new equipment and answering all questions for those preferring the slopes to the fireplace.

The Accepted Influence in the Northwest Suburbs

New Generation of Meeting Places

The future of the hotel business is at the nation's airports.

That's the prediction of a leading Chicago hotel developer, Dan Pavis, who confidently states that the next decade will see "the number of hotels around airports triple by 1980 while downtown hotels continue to decline in occupancy and facilities."

"The wave of the future is in the jumbo jet and the supersonic planes to follow and it's inevitable that hotels will grow and prosper where the transportation is and not where it used to be."

PAVIS, WHO WILL open his newest hotel development, the 500-room O'Hareport Hotel and Convention Center south of O'Hare Field, early next year, said, "Most guest hotels and motels were never designed to handle modern conventions and sales meetings efficiently. They were built as social and residential centers. Moving heavy equipment and visitors from all over the world into a converted basement or grand ballroom of a downtown hotel often is a costly logistical problem. It just doesn't make good business sense."

Pavis predicts that the next decade will see the construction of a whole new generation of meeting places near the nation's major air terminals and suburban industrial complexes. Rail and truck shipping facilities for equipment and displays will be provided, as will exhibit storage space.

"EXCLUSIVE RESTAURANTS and specialty shops will spring up in nearby communities to serve visiting executives," he predicted. "This trend ultimately will cut convention costs and reduce downtown congestion."

"We intend to make O'Hareport the finest of these new convention centers for the jet-propelled industrialist," Pavis added. "O'Hareport is designed for the convenient and efficient conduct of meetings, but it will have all the luxury of the finest hotels."

"We also think that in O'Hareport we have the best name around for an airport hotel and we plan to capitalize on it to the fullest in attracting sales meetings and conventions."

O'HAREPORT WILL BE 18 stories high, with a rooftop restaurant and supper club on the 16th floor, the added two stories housing heating and cooling equipment. It will also be as self-sufficient as possible with its own power plant run by natural gas and not subject to any electricity blackout, a 200,000-gallon water storage tank, its own laundry, bakery and butcher shops to handle guest needs as well as the four restaurants.

"Some people have wondered if motel expansion was not reaching a saturation point," Pavis noted. "Actually I feel that around the airport we are only at the threshold of growth, especially with jumbo jets with their huge passenger capacity due to start landing at O'Hare Field in late spring."

Heads Promotion For Thompson Co.

Robert B. Zilius

Robert B. Zilius has been named director of advertising, sales promotion and public relations for the John R. Thompson Co., Chicago-based food service firm that operates the 100-year-old Henric's restaurant chain, the Red Balloon, Little Red Hen, Holloway House and Ontra restaurants from coast to coast, and distributes frozen foods nationally under the Holloway House label. Announcement of the appointment was made by John W. Teets, Thompson president.

Before joining the Thompson Company, Zilius had been advertising and sales promotion manager of the Goss Co., a leading manufacturer of roll fed printing presses for the newspaper, commercial and publication industries. Prior to that, he was affiliated with Imberman & DeForest, Inc., and William Hart Adler, Inc., as public relations account executive.

Bank Landscape A Formal Design

It's been almost one year since the grand opening of the Palatine National Bank, 50 N. Brockway, Palatine, in November of 1968, attractive in both architecture and landscaping.

The building was designed by John A. Mayes of Glen Ellyn and was built by Pepper Construction of Chicago. An electronic flagpole automatically raises the flag with the sun rise and lowers it as the sun sets. Heated sidewalks prevent an accumulation of snow or ice.

The parking lot accommodates 150 cars and is lighted after dusk.

IN FRONT OF the bank is a brazen, bronze fountain screen named "Waterfalls." Designed by David Laughlin, it is 72 inches above the water line in height and width. Laughlin is a designer for Harold O. Klopff & Associates, Rolling Meadows landscape designers.

The landscaping of the grounds, by Harold Klopff, landscape architect, includes a variety of trees, shrubs and ground coverings provided by Hook's Nursery, Lake Zurich. Boxwood hedges are clipped in a formal arrangement. Clipped Yews and alpine spruce serve as ground coverings. Other plantings include Baltic ivy, winter creeper, periwinkles and dwarf fleeciflowers.

Bell Reports Construction Permit Total

The number of permits issued in August for housing construction in the six-county Chicago metropolitan area declined from totals for the same month in 1968, according to statistics recently released by the Bell Federal Savings Survey of New Building.

For the first time this year, the cumulative totals of single family homes and apartment units for which permits were issued in each of the months for 1969 were also slightly lower than figures reported for the same months last year.

According to survey statistics, last month accounted for 1,379 single family homes for which permits were issued, a decrease of 38 per cent from the 2,216 issued in August, 1968.

THE NUMBER OF apartment units for which permits were issued was also lower, totaling 1,832 last month compared to the 3,323 reported in 1968 for the same period and representing a decline of 45 per cent.

Totals for both single family homes and apartment units last month accounted for 3,211, over 2800 less than the 5,539 reported in August, 1968.

The eight month totals of both homes and apartment units for which permits were issued reached 36,025 while figures for the same period in 1968 were slightly higher at 36,208.

AAA Gives Tips For Bike Buffs

It may be a surprise for many bicycle riders to learn that they are subject to virtually the same traffic laws as drivers of motor vehicles.

This may help to explain why deaths resulting from bicycle collisions with motor vehicles have jumped an alarming 78 per cent during the last 10 years, says the Chicago Motor Club-AAA, which offers these bicycle safety tips:

- Obey all traffic laws, signs and signals; this includes riding the wrong direction on a one-way street.
- It is against the law to carry other riders.
- Use proper hand signals for turns and stops.
- Be sure brakes, lights, reflectors, horn or bell are in good working condition.
- Give pedestrians and motor vehicles the right of way.
- Keep to the right side of the street or road — and ride single file.
- Stop and walk your bike across heavily traveled intersections.
- After dark, ride only if the bike is properly lighted — and wear something white.
- Avoid busy streets or highways.
- Never hitch onto a moving vehicle.
- Never ride out of an alley without stopping.
- Be sure that you ride your bike carefully — at all times.

Facing Tax Task

One of the important tasks facing the Property Tax Division of the State Department of Revenue, or the new Department of Local Governmental Affairs, is the equalization level for property tax assessments for commission organization counties for the next quadrennial assessment year (1970), the Taxpayers' Federation of Illinois said recently.

For the last quadrennial assessment year (1966 in commission counties and 1967 in township counties), a county was given a multiplier of one if the assessments of property in such county were approximately 50 per cent of the estimated value — the estimated value to be made on the basis of analysis of transfers of property, appraisals, and such other means as the Department of Revenue deems proper and reasonable. Local assessment officials in commission counties would appreciate this information prior to Jan. 1, 1970, to get ready for the new quadrennial assessment year.

Charles C. Jarchow, President of the Taxpayers' Federation of Illinois, recently announced the date, time and place of the 11th Biennial Tax Clinic as follows: Oct. 20, from 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m., St. Nicholas Hotel, Springfield.

The meeting is open to all public officials, tax representatives and taxpayers interested in state and local tax changes made by the 75th Illinois General Assembly.

Decline of Flat Tire

The rapidly declining rate of flat tires as a major cause of the automobile breakdowns was highlighted in a report submitted today to the 67th Annual Meeting of the American Automobile Association by its emergency road service advisory committee.

John H. Struben, director of the Chicago Motor Club's emergency road service department and a member of the AAA ERS committee said the report showed that only 16 per cent of all emergency calls handled by garages under contract to render service to members were for flat tires in 1968 — the lowest percentage on record.

First place among trouble calls has been taken over by battery and electric failure, accounting for 44 per cent of all AAA rescue operations last year.

The AAA has more than 26,000 service stations under contract to render assistance to its 12 million members in the U.S. and Canada.

Following is the AAA estimate of total automotive breakdowns in the United States in 1968: battery and electrical, 44 per cent of the total; tire, 16 per cent; tow and wrecker, 14 per cent; out of gas, 4 per cent; lock and key, 2 per cent; fuel system, 2 per cent; brakes, 2 per cent; and all others, 16 per cent.

A total of 76,668,000 breakdowns were reported. Passenger cars registered in 1968 totaled 82,800,000.

Briefly on Business

A NEW CONCEPT in electric typewriters designed to help minimize paper-work problems has been announced by the International Business Machines (IBM) Office Products Division. Called the IBM Mag Card "Selectric" typewriter, the machine enables a secretary to capture each page of her typing on magnetic cards. These cards have a capacity of 5,000 characters, equivalent to more than a full page of copy. If the secretary makes a mistake or wishes to insert revisions, all she must do is backspace and retype over the error. The recording on the card is automatically corrected. Once she has completed the typing and all corrections have been registered on the magnetic card, she inserts a fresh piece of paper in the typewriter, presses a button, and the Mag Card "Selectric" types out a perfect page at a speed of 150 words a minute. The magnetic card may be stored or immediately used again. Purchase prices begin at $7,875, and monthly rental charges start at $175.

THE HOME BUILDERS Association of Chicagoland will hold its New Products Seminar and Show Oct. 30-31, at the Marriott Motor Hotel, Chicago. Thirteen different construction systems used by home builders will be discussed in the HBAC seminar sessions. Also included will be approximately 25 exhibits of new products and product prototypes by leading manufacturers.

GOLDBLATT BROS., INC., officially opened its 40th store and second Home Center on Sept. 28. The 167,000 square foot structure at 1213 Butterfield Road, Downers Grove, is according to Louis Goldblatt, president and chief executive officer of the firm, the world's largest building devoted exclusively to the sale and presentation of home furnishings. A third Home Center in Mount Prospect is set for completion in 1970. Goldblatt added that by next spring the Downers Grove center will have a horticulture department and hothouse, patio furniture department and perhaps a kennel.

CHICAGO ALMOND Products Co., Des Plaines, has begun construction on a 40,000 square foot addition to its plant. The firm is a processor of dry roasted and salted nuts as well as institutional nut products. Scheduled for completion next March, the addition, to be used for warehouse and processing, was designed by A. Epstein & Sons.

DIRECTORS OF THE Van Dorn Co. (AMEX) recently voted a quarterly dividend of 14 cents a common share payable Oct. 31 to shareholders of record as of Oct. 17. This brings Van Dorn's cash total in dividends for the year at 54½ cents a common share. The company's principal product lines are containers of metal, plastic and composition materials; polyvinyl chloride rigid pipings and fittings; heat treating of construction and specialty metals; and metal lithography. The firm has 18 plants in Ohio, California, Illinois, Florida, Indiana, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and West Virginia and employs approximately 2,000 persons.

THE BENSENVILLE State Bank will celebrate the opening of its new addition next week. Oct. 14-18, free coffee and rolls will be served to visitors from 9 to 11 a.m. Free prizes and refreshments will be given away at the official grand opening Monday, Oct. 20. Park and Shop center, Bensenville, will give away, in honor of the occasion, six pairs of tickets to Bears football games, with steak dinner and transportation included, as well as six women's wigs. Participants should pick up an entry blank at one of the center stores, fill it out and deposit it at the bank, where a drawing will be held. No purchase is necessary to enter the contest.

THE ILLINOIS STATE Chamber of Commerce will hold its 51st annual meeting Thursday, Oct. 16, at the Conrad Hilton Hotel in Chicago. In addition to the annual business meeting, there will be forums on the Illinois State Constitutional Convention and the business outlook for 1970, an address by Illinois Senator Ralph T. Smith, speeches on the outlook for consumer demand and tax reform, and the association's annual banquet.

ED LANDWEHR of Landwehr's Home Appliances, Arlington Heights, is among the 38 men completing the first graduate program of the National Appliance and Radio-TV Dealers Association, Institute of Management. Robert Shelkop of Shelkop TV, Arlington Heights, also attended the course, given through the School of Business Administration of the American University, Washington, D.C. The session includes sales techniques, human relations, financial statements and modern methods of business administration.

MAXWELL D. SAWYER, president of the First National Bank of Des Plaines, reported that as of Sept. 30, net earnings for the nine month period, after taxes, were $710,000, or $2.92 a share. This is an increase of 39 per cent over the comparable period in 1968. Total assets as of the date were $86,014,900. During this period, interest paid to the bank's depositors reached $1,255,800, compared to $1,167,500 in the comparable 1968 period. He reported that monthly income accounts as well as automatically renewable certificates of deposit accounts continue to be popular.

AN AWARD FOR distinguished insurance representation was presented recently to Quinlan & Tyson, Inc., by the Continental-National-American Insurance Group of the CNA Financial Corp., now celebrating its 100th anniversary. Charles E. Black, vice president and manager of Quinlan & Tyson's insurance department, accepted the award from Carl Schaefer, associate manager of CNA. Others present included: Arhibal G. Jennings and Wayne Meling, chairman and assistant manager, insurance, of Quinlan & Tyson, respectively; and Carl Hedman, CNA field representative. The Quinlan & Tyson Insurance Department is located at 1569 Sherman Ave., Evanston, and is a general agency business with emphasis on insuring business and commercial risks.

CHICAGO Convention Bureau president Thomas V. King recently reported that convention business continues to climb. During September, 127,310 visitors to Chicago were in attendance at conventions and trade shows. Combined delegate and company expenditures reached a total of $32,845,980, compared to $24,387,600 in September, 1968. King stated that with 85,000 jobs in the Chicago area, both full and part time, dependent upon the convention industry, it is important that Chicago retain its status as convention capital of the world.

May Discontinue the Varsity

Milwaukee Road R.R. officials testified before the Interstate Commerce Commission (ICC) that continuing deficits made it necessary for the railroad to seek the discontinuance of its Varsity trains, Nos. 117 and 118, which operate on a limited schedule basis between Chicago and Madison, Wis.

An initial attempt to discontinue the service in 1968 resulted in an ICC order, put into effect on July 22, 1968, reducing the operation of the trains from a daily basis to a limited schedule providing for service on Fridays, Saturdays, Sundays, Christmas Day, New Year's Day, Independence Day, Thanksgiving Day and the days immediately preceding and following these holidays, as well as the days marking the beginning and the end of semester breaks or vacation periods at the University of Wisconsin (Madison) and the one day immediately preceding and following such days.

The officials, R. G. Scott, assistant to general manager, and R. S. Patterson, chief statistician, stated that, even on the limited basis of the trains' present operation, they incurred a net loss of $74,257 on an out-of-pocket expense basis during the 12-month period Aug. 1, 1968 to July 31, 1969.

To tolerate this financial burden, they said, would limit the company's ability to perform more essential transportation services.

The deficit position of the trains has been created by a low level of passenger usage resulting from the public's preference for other forms of travel, including travel by the automobile, and by the withdrawal of mail service by the Post Office Department in 1967.

The Milwaukee Road spokesmen pointed out that the railroad also provides daily passenger service directly between Chicago and Madison on its trains Nos. 11 and 22, the Sioux. In addition, there is bus service between Madison and Columbus, Wis., which makes twice-daily connections, both eastbound and westbound, with the railroad's Hiawatha passenger trains operating between Chicago-Milwaukee and St. Paul-Minneapolis.

The hearing, which began in Chicago Oct. 8, was followed by one in Madison on Oct. 9.

Leaders Conference For Sales Personnel

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Reddick, Elk Grove Village, and A. J. Schmidt, Mount Prospect, have returned from All American Life & Casualty Company's leaders conference held recently in Europe. All sales personnel at the conference earned the right to attend by meeting certain production requirements based on a 30-month period.

The sales drive was announced with a goal of one billion, five hundred million of life insurance in force by the time of the convention. The goal was surpassed, as the company neared the one billion, seven hundred million dollar mark at convention time.

Europe was selected as the site for a leaders conference to celebrate the achievement. The theme of the sales meeting was "Focus on Selling in the '70's". New plans and techniques were introduced at the daily sessions.

In addition to business, the guests enjoyed sightseeing in two cities — Rome and London, climaxed by an awards banquet held at the London Hilton.

Says Picture Isn't So Bleak

Conditions for buying a home today are much better than the bleak picture being painted, according to Robert E. Langguth, executive vice president of the Northern Illinois Home Builders Association.

"The brain washing hasn't been intentional; it has come about simply as the result of story after story concerning the scarcity of money for loans and the increase in the mortgage interest rate."

Actually, there may be solid reasons for persons needing or desiring a home now to go ahead with the purchase, Langguth said.

The interest rate in Illinois is higher than it has been but economists believe it will stay that way for the foreseeable future, Langguth said. The range at the moment for a mortgage loan is from 7 to 7.9 per cent for qualified buyers.

The rate in many states is actually higher, according to Langguth. Illinois usury laws put the upper limit on the loan rate at 8 per cent.

Loans aren't as difficult to secure as most people think they are, the NIHBA executive head explained. "Nearly all of the savings and loan associations in the Chicago area have some money to loan to qualified buyers."

Waiting is likely to result in an increase in the cost of a new home, he stated. The basic cost for land and building a new home is likely to increase in the months ahead, Langguth said, because the costs of labor and material are still moving upward.

There's another advantage as well in contracting for a new home now, according to Langguth. It is probable that the contractor can get to work on a new home quickly, thereby completing it in a minimum of time, due to the building slump.

File 3H Registration

3H Building Corp. filed a registration statement with the Securities and Exchange Commission recently covering the proposed first public offering of 220,000 of its common shares, to be handled by underwriters led by Paine, Webber, Jackson and Curtis.

3H is a builder of single family home communities in the Chicago area. It has developed Hanover Highlands in Hanover Park, Berkley Square in Arlington Heights, and has recently opened a planned community, "Old Mill Grove" in Lake Zurich.

Foresees Depressing Effect

The tax reform bill passed by the House will have a depressing effect on real estate construction, improvement, and maintenance at a time when shortages are developing in residential and non-residential properties, members of the Senate Finance Committee were advised recently by a spokesman for the National Association of Real Estate Boards.

Already "our national housing goal of 26 million units in 10 years is receding from view," Wallace R. Woodbury, Salt Lake City, noted.

Woodbury, in a statement expressing the views of the 90,000-member association, urged that the 150 per cent depreciation method now available for existence buildings be restored. Limiting existing buildings to the straight-line method, as called for in the House measure, "has already had a serious restricting effect on the resale market."

PRESENT ACCELERATED methods of depreciation in federal income taxation should be available to non-residential new construction, since elimination of such methods will result in reduced yields to investors, the chairman of the Subcommittee on Federal Taxation of the Realtors' Washington Committee said.

"In a competitive financial market, investors will seek out other high-yield and less risky sources than real estate investment," Woodbury observed.

Turning to the recapture provisions of the House-passed bill, Woodbury advised the Senators that "the proposal to recapture as ordinary income all depreciation taken in excess of straight-line, without limitation as to time, is an extremely harsh measure which does not differentiate between a long-term investor and a short-term holder of real estate."

He suggested the committee might consider that for the first five years, all depreciation in excess of straight-line be recaptured as ordinary income, then reduce the percentage of gain taxed as ordinary income 1 per cent per month.

"Certainly, an investor who has held property for more than 13 years is entitled to full capital gains," Woodbury said.

HE CONTINUED BY noting that NAREB endorses the concept of minimum tax to insure that none would totally escape paying federal tax. He added that NAREB's support was conditioned on all sources of so-called tax preference being included so that real estate's competitive role in the private investment market is not impaired.

"The limit on tax preferences in the House bill does not meet this criterion," Realtor Woodbury stated. "House-approved and Treasury-recommended exceptions would make real estate the principal if not sole target of limiting tax preference."

Woodbury concluded that the problems of the cities are the nation's primary domestic concern. "It is essential," he said, "that the development of commercial structures, industrial, and warehousing facilities, as well as housing, keep pace with population growth and the trend toward urbanization and opportunity for replacement and renewal."

Larson Named To Insulation Head New Office Information

Orval D. Larson

Fabri-Tek Co. has announced the opening of a Chicago area sales office and named Orval D. Larson to head the operation.

Fabri-Tek Co. is the sales subsidiary of Fabri-Tek, Inc., manufacturer of computer memory cores, computer systems, special use computers, educational computer trainers and support programs, and printed circuit boards. The firm also supplies data processing services.

The Chicago office will handle all products of the Memory Products Division, according to sales manager Richard M. Murphy.

Larson has been with Fabri-Tek for five years. His last post at the company headquarters was an electrical specialist, product engineering department.

The new office is located at 146 Hill Drive, Hoffman Estates, Illinois.

Technical Note No. 3, "Insulation for Heating," by Donald E. Brotherson, AIA, has just been released by the Small Homes Council-Building Research Council of the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign.

The 12-page publication describes the mechanics of heat loss and moisture movement, as well as providing thermal conductance and resistance values for 11 wall sections, eight roof-ceiling sections, and three floor sections, for varying amounts of insulation. Insulating materials included in the data are mineral wool batts, fiberglass or wood fiber batts, loose-fill of mineral wool, wood fiber, or vermiculite, and reflective aluminum foil. Conductance and resistance values are also provided for single, double, and triple glass, storm doors, and skylights.

The new publication includes a simplified method for finding the optimum amount of insulation, based on climate and fuel costs, as well as a means of determining the rate of return on additional construction costs expended for insulation.

THE USE OF VAPOR barriers for moisture control, and the determination of humidification requirements, both in relative humidity acceptable to the structure and its occupants and in amounts of additional moisture needed in gallons of water per hour, are discussed.

Copies of Technical Note No. 3, "Insulation for Heating," are available for 25 cents each from the Small Homes Council—Building Research Council, University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign, One East Saint Mary's Road, Champaign, Illinois 61820.

Big Truck Bill Opposed

The Chicago Motor Club has joined with the American Automobile Association and all other AAA-affiliated motor clubs in voicing strong opposition to a bill now pending in Congress permitting operation of larger and heavier trucks on the Interstate Highway System.

"The present 'Big Truck' bill is almost identical with last year's measure which was swamped by an avalanche of public opinion and vigorous editorial criticism in the nation's press," Gerald W. Cavanagh, motor club president, said. "Its passage would result in premature damage to pavement and bridges and would constitute a major hazard to others using the traffic lanes."

The current proposal calls for increasing the weight for single axles to 20,000 pounds (up from 18,000 pounds) and for tandem axles to 34,000 pounds (up from 32,000 pounds) and for permitting truck lengths up to 70 feet and widths up to 102 inches.

"Men who have been charged with the responsibility of constructing and maintaining our highways at both the state and the federal level have made it known that the increases in axle loadings permitted by the legislation will not only reduce the life of pavements in use, but will also necessitate the expenditure of billions of dollars for reconstruction of older pavements, and additional costs in highways yet to be constructed."

BASIC RESEARCH INTO the accident hazards posed by larger, wider trucks is lacking, Cavanagh said. "It does not seem logical to us," he said, "that Congress should be called upon to make a decision on this important matter without the factual information enabling it to estimate the safety effects of that decision. The lives and property of more than 100 million drivers are involved in such a decision and we cannot ask them to be guinea pigs by increasing the sizes and weights and then researching the effects. The research should be done first."

Public opinion, as reflected in the news media, was strongly against last year's bill, he said. A review of editorial comment leads to the "inescapable conclusion that Americans were not last year, and are not this year, ready to accept the proposition that bigger trucks should be permitted on our highways," the motor club president noted.

Federal Agency Seeks Telephone Operators

The Interagency Board of U.S. Civil Service Examiners, Rock Island, has announced that applications will be accepted for telephone operators, grade GS-3, at $94.50 a week, until Oct. 30, 1969.

Applications received before Oct. 15 will receive first consideration, among persons interested in employment with various federal agencies in the State of Illinois, excluding Madison and St. Clair counties and including Scott County, Iowa.

ONE YEAR OF experience is required in addition to a written test to be given at 47 post offices in Illinois and the post office in Davenport, Iowa.

Information and application forms may be obtained from the Interagency Board of U.S. Civil Service Examiners for Illinois at Rock Island Arsenal, Rock Island, Ill. 61201, and from the Interagency Board at 219 S. Dearborn, Chicago, Ill. 60664, or any post office or federal building where this announcement is posted.

Promotes Dual Market System Savings Accounts Rising

Abolition of the 6 per cent statutory interest rate ceiling on FHA-insured and VA-guaranteed mortgages and the implementation of an experimental three-year dual market system for determining rates was urged recently by a spokesman for the National Association of Real Estate Boards before the Senate Banking and Currency Committee.

"We wish to make it clear (that in support of these recommendations) that we have no particular affinity for high interest rates," W. Farham Bridges Jr., Jackson, Miss., explained in his comments on the report of the Commission on Mortgage Interest Rates, made on Aug. 13. He added that these recommendations would provide relief from the tight money market which is preventing some families from purchasing a home.

He continued that the position of NAREB should not infer that "we are insensitive to the credit needs of lower- and moderate-income families who suffer the most from high rates. If we felt that the dual market system would contribute to the upward tendency in interest rates, we would surely be opposed to its enactment."

UNDER ONE PART OF this proposed dual system, according to the commission report, the interest rate on an individual FHA-VA mortgage would be determined in the market place, without regard to a statutory ceiling, provided the mortgage originator or lender neither charges nor collects any discount from any party in connection with the transaction.

Under the second part, the market would continue to operate much as it does now, with FHA and VA mortgages originated at interest rates set by the secretary of housing and urban development and the administrator of veterans' affairs. Present regulations would be changed, however, to permit negotiations between buyer and seller to determine what share each would pay of the discount charged, and to require the lender or originator to report the full amount of the discount collected from each.

"Experience has shown, however, reluctant any of us may be to admit it," Bridges said, "that there is very little relationship between the statutorily-imposed ceiling rate and the actual yield demands of the market. Government cannot control interest rates by imposing an artificial ceiling. The result of doing so often leads to a drying up of available funds."

"ACCORDINGLY, WE believe that more money will be made available to mortgage borrowers under a comparatively regulation-free system than under a system which imposes an unrealistic ceiling which is not responsive to the demands of the market place."

"What solace does it provide to the borrower that he is not saddled with high interest rate payments if the result of all this protection is to deny him mortgage funds altogether?" Bridges said.

Interest rates can be reduced, and we urge that they be reduced — but not by the imposition of an artificial statutory ceiling which serves only to shift the blame for high interest away from those whose policies helped to cause the high rates," he stated.

Moving his discussion to the dual market proposal, Bridges explained that its primary objective is the elimination of discounts or points.

"It is not possible to calculate the quantitative effects of high discounts, but it should be borne in mind that as each home owner decides against the purchase of a better home, as many as three or four sales may have been lost.

"IN THE FINAL analysis, it is unjust to expect a seller to use his equity to help a buyer obtain financing. It should be a goal of the Congress to eliminate the factors which cause excessive discounts in the first place."

NAREB agrees with the commission report that it will take some time for the market to adjust to a system which abolishes discounts, Bridges concluded, "and for this reason we urge the committee to approve both parts of the dual market system."

Annual Show At Arlington Park

Burton Browne Advertising has been retained to handle advertising and public relations for the fourth annual Illinois International Business Opportunity and Investment Show, to be held Nov. 13-17 at the new Arlington Park Towers hotel exhibition hall, Arlington Heights.

RALPH ZIMMERMAN, president of R & M Productions, Melrose Park, sponsors of the show, predicts record-breaking attendance of the public at the largest franchising show ever produced. R & M, sponsor of six or seven franchise shows yearly, is the nation's largest producer of these exhibitions, which attract thousands of would-be franchisees to view hundreds of franchise opportunities.

Advertising for the show will be in newspapers in a four-state area, trade journals, radio and television. Arthur L. Desmond, vice president of Burton Browne Advertising, will be the account executive.

The Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago recently reported on the turnover of savings accounts, check fees and municipals.

SAVINGS ACCOUNT turnover has remained at a higher level than before, since the upward surge in 1966. Chief cause for this activity is probably the large shift in funds after the 1965 liberalization of Regulation Q. Also, the more attractive rates on savings encouraged consumers to make greater use of savings deposits rather than demand deposits.

Recently there has been another rise in savings deposit activity, after a year of relative stability, even though rates paid by banks and other financial institutions have been at their ceilings for some time. The Federal Reserve Bank notes that yields available on market securities as compared with savings accounts may have increased their impact on bank savings. It concludes that bank savings balances are being called upon more frequently to bolster spending. As a result of credit rating at banks, some small businessmen are drawing on personal savings accounts for working capital purposes.

USING DATA collected in a recent survey of fees charged for check cashing services in the Chicago Loop area, the Federal Reserve Bank found that the charges at currency exchanges were 25 times higher than at banks. Customers of banks, however, must maintain a minimum balance, although the actual balance may fluctuate greatly.

Currency exchange charges vary with amount of the money order issued or check cashed. Among the 34 exchanges in the Loop area, they averaged 17 cents for a $1 money order, rising to 46 cents for one of $100. The average charge for cashing a check rose from 16 cents for a $1 check to 50 cents for a $100 check. The Federal Reserve Bank found that among the 17 area Loop banks, 15 offered no-minimum balance checking accounts. Charges for these accounts at 11 of the 15 banks were 50 cents a month and 10 cents a check, without regard to the dollar amount of the checks involved.

Currency exchanges in Chicago perform a number of services not generally offered by banks, such as issuing Federal Food Stamps, and accepting Chicago Housing Authority rent payments. They include many welfare recipients among their customers, many of whom do not have checking accounts.

tomers, many of whom do not have checking accounts.

THE BANK ALSO reports that country member banks in the Seventh District added $357 million, a record amount, to their holdings of state and local government securities during the first half of 1968, compared to $282 million during the first half of 1967. Municipals, at a $3.9 billion level, increased to 13 per cent of total assets.

Although commercial banks are important holders of municipals because of the tax-exempt feature, the increased holdings are noteworthy, according to the Federal Reserve Bank, in view of the difficulties many state and local units have in selling their securities during periods of credit tightness.

Opens New Office

Elk Grove president Jack Pahl recently extended an official community welcome to Jim Nelson, manager of the office; Vincent J. Bolger, partner; and Jerry E. Sigman, manager of industrial-commercial division at the new Gladstone Realty office in Elk Grove.

This office is part of Gladstone Realty's expansion plan in the Northwest Suburban area.

Vincent J. Bolger and John L. Markay are the founders of Gladstone Realty and have been active for more than 15 years in area real estate. The first office opened in 1954 and was a one-room "dollhouse" on Franklin Avenue in Franklin Park. They later opened an office in Des Plaines and now with their third in Elk Grove employ over 40 people.

In the construction field, they developed and built custom homes in Mount Prospect, Highland Park and Northbrook.

Gladstone Realty established one of the area's first home trade-in plans. They send the "Gladstone Chatter," a non-commercial mailing, to their clients every month.

The firm has sponsored "Glad Day for Kids," a theatre party with movies, balloons.

In addition to being members of their respective local Realtor boards, personnel joined the Chicago Real Estate Board "en masse" in 1962 to further the training of their associates through the Chicago board's educational programs.

In 1965 an industrial and commercial division was formed with Jerry E. Sigman as manager. He has sold one and one-half million square feet of industrial property in Centex Elk Grove Industrial Park alone which has brought over 60 industrial firms into the area. He has been active in the Northwest Suburban Multiple Listing Service as director and past president and is currently a director of the Northwest Suburban Realtors' Computer Multiple Listing Service.

Gladstone Realty's Elk Grove Village office is located at 200 East Higgins Road.

Has Variety of Options

Visitors touring the model group in Sleepy Hollow — on Higgins Road in Dundee — view the "Meadowbrook," a well-planned five-bedroom home.

This model was designed by Don Schulz, head of Schulz Homes, Inc. winner of several national citations for outstanding home design. It offers a ranch colonial exterior, with high-gabled roofline, in a two-story plan. Available in a choice of several elevations, the display model of the "Meadowbrook" has an optional bay window. There are two-and-a-half baths and four to five bedrooms, three of them on the second floor. The master bedroom is on the first floor — together with another first-floor bedroom which may also serve as a library or den.

PRICED IN THE $50,000 bracket (site additional), the "Meadowbrook" has a rough stone exterior with a Colonial touch. There is a roofed front porch, an entry foyer is invitingly large, and the stairway to the upper floor features a wooden balustrade.

Immediately to one side of the entry is the paneled library or den. This room is off a short corridor and the downstairs bathroom, and can be used as a bedroom or guest room.

The living room offers an optional bay window and, in the display model, a formal fireplace. The separate dining room has a natural light from a front window.

The kitchen in the "Meadowbrook" model has plenty of work space and cabinets. These are in broken "U" layout, with flooring and lighting in modern design.

THE FAMILY ROOM, adjacent to the semi-open kitchen, has paneling on all four walls — beamed ceiling the full length of the room, over 19 feet — sliding glass doors opening out to the patio — and an optional fireplace at the side. Another option, in one corner, is the service bar and basin which can be shut behind shuttered folding doors.

Upstairs, the "Meadowbrook" has several big walk-in closets and storage areas. There's a walk-in closet for each of the two end bedrooms — a general storage room — and a linen closet, with shelving on three sides. The upstairs bathroom is tiled and lighted, with vanity and double basin.

The "Meadowbrook" and other models in Sleepy Hollow are open to visitors daily through the week from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m., from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturdays and from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. Sundays.

Appoint Luecke As New Manager

Joseph E. Luecke, 649 Salem Court, Palatine, has been appointed assistant underwriting manager of the Kemper Insurance Group, Chicago. Announcement of Luecke's appointment was made by Harry A. Lansman, executive vice president for underwriting and industry affairs.

Luecke is a second vice president of the companies and a chartered property and casualty underwriter. He joined the Kemper companies in 1951, serving as an auditor and underwriter in Philadelphia and underwriting manager in Richmond, Virginia, before transferring to Chicago in 1962. Prior to his recent appointment, he had been serving as assistant manager of commercial lines underwriting. He is a graduate of LaSalle College.

Completes Fire Course

Butler, senior fire claim specialist for State Farm Insurance Co. at the firm's claim service office in Villa Park, has returned from a three-week building damage and estimating course at the institute.

Create Demand Pressures Executives in Key Positions

While private, single-family dwellings will be the sacrificial lamb of our national housing policy in the immediate future unless there is a reversal of current monetary policy, the outlook holds hope for the next five years.

John Robert White, CRE (Counselor, Real Estate), New York, president of the American Society of Real Estate Counselors, makes this observation in the current issue of the society's publication, "The Counselor." ASREC is a professional affiliate of the National Association of Real Estate Boards.

Noting that this is just one consequence of the tight money market, White predicts that "current monetary and fiscal restraints aimed at reducing the inflation rate will have moderate success and cost increases will decline to the level of 2 1/2 to 3 per cent a year, contrasted with the present 6 per cent rate, presumably by the first quarter, 1970..."

"AS THE EXCESSES of inflation are mitigated, there will slowly begin an increase in deposit volume as savers return to the thrift institutions. The critical question today is whether dividend rates will have to be increased over present ceilings to achieve the necessary savings volume." He says they will and further predicts, "There seems to be a better than even chance that this will happen over the next year."

The current real estate market is characterized by strong demand, rising prices and costs, declining vacancies, and in some instances, actual shortages.

"This is an almost inconceivable situation in an economy with our productive capacity," he said.

In analyzing this situation, it is evident that two principal factors have created this unusually intense demand for real estate: A sharp increase in the number of 20 to 45-year-olds, particularly in the younger end, and an unusual prosperity. "These demand pressures could not have been created at a less appropriate time," White adds.

In many metropolitan areas, a galloping real estate inflation has resulted... Declining vacancies and excess demand related to the available supply of commercial real estate have pushed up rents to levels heretofore considered unobtainable, in some instances, more than double 1965 rates.

AS THE EXCESSES of inflation are mitigated, there will slowly begin an increase in deposit volume as savers return to thrift institutions; however, it is becoming apparent that mortgage interest rates will remain at a high plateau and decline very little if any over the next five years, he notes.

"Despite peak land and construction costs and peak mortgage costs, real estate represents an ideal investment opportunity for the entire galaxy of investors and developers," he concludes. "The primary reason is the strength of residential, commercial, and industrial demand forces."

Two executives from Western Electric's Rolling Meadows office hold leadership positions in the 1969 Metropolitan Crusade of Mercy Drive.

William L. Opdyke, general manager of the company's central region, is chairman, suburban campaigns, and William H. Jenkins, assistant manager of personnel, is vice chairman, west Cook County-south section, suburban campaigns.

Gifts made through the Central Metro Campaign provide a substantial amount of the total allocation to each participating suburban chest. In addition, each chest or fund conducts a local campaign among smaller suburban business firms, retail establishments, professional people, school and municipal employees and residents not solicited at work.

The Metropolitan Crusade of Mercy, the largest fund raising organization in the Chicago area, conducts an annual campaign on behalf of 900 voluntary human care services and agencies. This year's Metro goal is $27,500,000.

Opdyke's efforts will be aimed at the 92 suburban chest and united funds covering the 153 suburban communities participating in the Metropolitan Crusade of Mercy this year. He is working with suburban campaign leaders as they recruit volunteer manpower and plan strategy for the local phase of the campaign.

Jenkins is responsible for working directly with local community leaders in the Southwest portion of Cook County.

Opdyke lives in Longview with his wife Doris. He administers Western Electric's engineering, installation and distribution efforts for the Bell Telephone companies in Illinois, Indiana, Wisconsin and Michigan.

Jenkins lives with his wife Joan and their three children in Palatine.

NOW BEING SHOWN in Carlisle, a development in Schaumburg, is the Sheridan model, a split-level, priced at $42,800. It has three bedrooms, two baths, a two-car garage and family and utility rooms. The family room has a beamed ceiling, paneled walls and sliding glass at one side, opening out into the patio area. A fireplace is optional in this model.

Byrne Vies For Merit Scholarship

Among the model homes now showing in Carlisle — located on Roselle Road in Schaumburg, is a split-level, known as "The Sheridan."

The Sheridan is priced at $42,800 including site. It has three bedrooms, two baths, two-car attached garage and extra-large family and utility rooms. Options — in the areas of finish materials and interior features — allow opportunity for buyers' personal concepts in decor.

Exterior construction of this home utilizes face brick on all sides, in a choice of color. Contemporary colonial touches include shuttered windows, double front door and antique house lights. The exterior siding, in contrasting colors, may be of cedar or aluminum.

Upon entering "The Sheridan," the visitor finds a guest closet to one side — while, to the other, is an inside entry to the garage. The garage may also be entered from the utility room and from an outer door at the side of the house.

The living room in this model is 22 feet long and 13 feet wide, with a window extending across the front wall. This room opens into the dining room over 13 feet in length and 9 feet in width.

To keep traffic flowing freely, the kitchen may be entered from the living room, dining room or the home's rear entry. The kitchen is 13 feet square, with counter space, cabinets and appliances arranged in an "el." The breakfast area overlooks the family room, which is on its own level three steps down and separated by a curving railing of thinline wrought iron.

The family room measures 21 feet by 13 feet. It has a beamed ceiling, paneled walls and sliding glass at one side, opening out to the patio area. A fireplace is an option.

The lower level bath is off a short corridor leading from the family room. The utility-laundry room offers extra storage area. Upstairs, on the sleeping level, the three bedrooms and family bath are centered on a rectangular distributing area.

The Sheridan and other models — fully furnished — are open to inspection daily at Carlisle, from 10 a.m. until dusk.

Lawrence Springborn

Springborn Dies On Jamaican Trip

Lawrence Springborn, DuPage County sheriff, died late Wednesday while on vacation in Jamaica. The cause of the death was listed as a heart attack.

Springborn, who was to have celebrated his 56th birthday tomorrow, served as county sheriff for two terms. He served from 1958 to 1962 and then served a term as county treasurer from 1962 to 1966. Under the laws of the state, a county sheriff cannot succeed himself in office.

A staunch conservative in Republican politics, Springborn was a top vote-getter and received his strongest support from elder citizens and those of long residential standing in the county.

HE WAS EXPECTED to make a bid in the 1970 elections for another term as county treasurer, and was considered by many as a sure winner. His only political setback came in 1968 when he failed in a bid for the office of county coroner.

The announcement of his candidacy for treasurer was expected at a press conference scheduled for Oct. 17. Another press conference to be held today by Chief Deputy Wayne Shimp has been canceled. Speculation has been that Shimp intended to announce his candidacy for county sheriff to succeed Springborn.

Springborn, a lifelong resident of Naperville, also served as deputy sheriff for 16 years and as a constable in Naperville Township for 12 years.

As county sheriff, Springborn initiated the merit commission and a new training program which included police psychology. He was considered innovative and progressive by many.

ACTIVE IN BOTH Boy Scout and Girl Scout work, Springborn also served as a committeeman in Precinct 4 of Naperville for 28 years and retired as a lieutenant in the Naperville Fire Department after 24 years of service.

Springborn is survived by his widow, Jeanette; three sons, Larry Jr., 10, at home, Richard, 28, of Edmonton, Alberta, Canada, and James, 26, serving with the Army in California; daughter-in-law, Roberta, and a granddaughter, Stacy; a daughter Jeanne, 20, at home, and three brothers, Donald of Naperville and Howard and Glenn of Aurora.

The Springborns maintained their private home in Naperville, but lived in Wheaton in a residence at the county jail. Under state statute, the DuPage County coroner is to execute the duties of the sheriff until a new chief is appointed. Dr. Samuel K. Lewis, DuPage County coroner, will be acting sheriff.

Funeral arrangements were incomplete yesterday. A spokesman for Freidrich's Funeral Home in Naperville said the home has not heard from Jamaican authorities on when Springborn's body will be returned here. The spokesman said the funeral could not possibly take place before Monday or Tuesday of next week.

NOISE Fight Set

by MARY DRESSER
Special to Paddock Publications

WASHINGTON — NOISE, a new committee to fight jet aircraft noise and insure safe environments, was formed yesterday following a hearing before the House Committee on Science and Astronautics. Bensenville's Village Pres. John Varble was named to the temporary steering committee which also includes Mayor William Goedike of Inglewood, Calif., supervisor Ralph Casco of Hempstead, N.Y. and Mayor Stanley Olson of Ridgefield, Minn.

Varble and other political leaders from the northwest suburbs were appearing in Washington to focus legislative attention on the problems of jet noise at O'Hare Airport. During the two days of intensive meetings and policy-setting discussions, the representatives from various states met with their congressmen to plead for a concerned attack on the problem.

THE ILLINOIS delegation led by Varble, took its case to Rep. John Erlenborn and senators Charles Percy and Ralph Smith in meetings Tuesday, Wednesday and yesterday. Erlenborn said he would release a statement backing noise abatement.

Other representatives from Illinois include Dr. Ralph Madonia, William Warnock and George Franks of Wood Dale and Donald Connelly of Roselle.

The Illinois representatives met with both Percy and Smith in their offices on Wednesday.

"This is the biggest crowd I've had in my office since I arrived," joked Smith, the newly appointed senator to replace the late Sen. Everett Dirksen.

Smith said he will back federal action to cut jet noise in spite of his long-standing position opposing big government interference.

"IT IS NOT reasonably possible to keep the federal government out of this," he said. "I will cooperate in any conceivable way I can," he added.

Smith asked for a concise memorandum from the group outlining suggested solutions to the problem.

During the group's interview with Percy, the senator said he was confident an answer could be found to the noise problem.

Percy said he would be in the Chicago area this weekend and is ready and willing to hear citizens' complaints. The senator said he believes a third airport in the Chicago area might help eliminate the O'Hare noise problem, adding that at this time he favors an airport in the Joliet vicinity.

HE PROMISED he would immediately contact the Federal Aviation Agency and demand that the FAA release an overdue study on acceptable noise level standards. He also said he would contact Boeing, Douglas and Lockheed airplane manufacturers to discover what each company is doing to solve the problem of noise.

"I'll tell them they're going to have a tough time getting contracts if they don't do it," he said grimly.

Throughout the two days of meetings, representatives of the FAA were conspicuously absent. During the public hearing, supervisor Casco charged, "This is an FAA boycott and it's an insult. Even an underling could have been sent."

Clifton F. vonKann of the Air Transport Association of America estimated it would cost the airlines approximately $800 million to put noise-reducing devices on the airplanes now in existence. He also said it would take four to five years to do the job and could not promise noise would be re-

Tempers Flare Up Over Sewer Issue

Tempers were frayed a bit on the usually diplomatic Itasca Village Board Tuesday night as the panel went another round of planning on the Prospect-Thorndale sewer line, supposedly nearing conclusion.

The line, to be financed by the Central Manufacturing District, can't be built until a contract between CMD and the village defining mutual efforts is completed.

As discussion of one of Mayor Will Nottke's favorite projects continued, Trustee Roy Petherbridge suggested that because the board is not aware of the complete situation, the matter should be discussed later.

USUALLY DIPLOMATIC, Nottke blasted the trustee for the remark.

"I have no idea what's going on," Petherbridge said during the course of discussion.

"Well, maybe you ought to be excused from the conversation," Nottke said.

Petherbridge was complaining about complexities in the contract and planning.

Nottke maintained that the matter is "simple." He was seeking a recommendation from the board about an existing but unused line along the same route as the new proposed sewer.

Nottke suggested abandonment of the line, but pointed out potential legal problems involved. Petherbridge finally gave up trying to figure out what was going on and suggested that other courses of action be taken.

THESE INCLUDED a meeting to clarify the entire project or having those involved in the planning — primarily Nottke and Village Atty. Lawrence Traeger — determine the best course of action for the entire project and bring the whole package back to the board for approval.

Nottke, angry with the comment, began to explain further, bringing a fresh batch of questions about the proposed sewer line from the rest of the board.

Again Petherbridge pointed out confusion: "We're talking about the last 200 feet of a sewer line. How about the first 2,000 feet? You've been working day and night on this; perhaps you should figure out what needs to be done and then bring back the whole thing to the board."

NOTTKE RETORTED, "What do you want? If we talk about it you say we shouldn't, and if we don't talk about it you complain."

Petherbridge said he wasn't trying to offend anyone, and repeated the suggestion.

"Look," Nottke fumed, "I make a lot of decisions about this village every day you don't even know about."

Petherbridge responded, "You've tried to bring this to a point. You're asking the board to approve part of a project when we don't know what the total project is."

The particulars appeared to be that the

JOHN D. VARBLE

Itasca Fights Noise Battle In Home Area

While Bensenville Mayor John Varble and representatives of the O'Hare Area Noise and Air Pollution Abatement Council are seeking to bend influential ears in Washington, D.C., the Village of Itasca is content to work through congressmen and senators.

Noting an expression of thanks from Council Chairman George Franks, Itasca Mayor Will Nottke said his community didn't send anyone to Washington because "we already have a representative there — John Erlenborn." Erlenborn is the congressman from the 14th district, including DuPage and Will counties.

Trustee Roy F. Petherbridge loosed an attack on the council of Varble, commenting that the Bensenville mayor is seeking headlines.

"EVEN THOUGH he's a personal friend of mine," the trustee said, "Varble is a Johnny-come-lately to the problem (of air and noise pollution)."

"He went running off to Washington, but he hasn't done his homework. You get results through the sort of action we took, and not by wielding headlines."

Petherbridge was referring to a resolution passed by the Itasca Village Board calling on Sen. Charles Percy to initiate legislation that would curb noise and air pollution from O'Hare International Airport.

Franks is representing the council of 19 communities who wrote the resolution, while Varble is representing the Village of Bensenville.

Now that voters of Wood Dale School Dist. 7 have sanctioned a $250,000 bond issue and a $425,000 interest-free loan from the Illinois Building Commission, residents of the Wood Dale area have once again shown that, in spite of some kidding, they can get things done.

This is more than some of the neighboring communities and other school districts have achieved lately.

And there will be more of this in the future as Wood Dale's burgeoning population buckles down and meets the challenge of the needs the community will face, whether it be educational in both parochial and public schools, or at the local government level.

WOOD DALE OVER the years has weathered defeat, but lately the pendulum has swung to the other side.

Sure, it could swing the other way, but for the present the citizenry of Wood Dale has taken the bit and is running with it.

Residents will admit taxes are creeping up, but where aren't they?

Where else do you find a 60 per cent discount to water users who pay their quarterly bills on time?

How would your community like to get bona gratia two new fire engines — one a snorkel — and a site for a new fire station?

WHERE ELSE HAVE the residents experienced an additional sewage treatment plant without a bond issue? The same is true for an additional water reservoir.

Where else has the community received a land donation on which to build a new village hall and perhaps a community recreational center, let alone nearly a quarter of a million dollars in cold cash from which it will build a community swimming pool?

Poor little old Wood Dale — that's what some people have been saying.

Where else has a community paid for a street-widening program out of its own treasury without state or federal highway funds allocated for that purpose?

SURE, PART OF THE funding comes from motor fuel tax allotments, but the rest is from local financing.

Poor little old Wood Dale — that's what some people have been saying.

What about the new village hall now under construction? Who paid for that facility? Sure, it was village funds, but what about the interest that has been saved by paying cash rather than through a bond issue?

Who started the ball rolling to get neighboring villages together to form a noise abatement council to fight what one local resident called "Jet-itis?"

SOME COMMUNITIES may say they were in the fight long before little old Wood Dale, but it was little old Wood Dale who got everyone together as a group to coordinate a plan of action. And it appears that the council with its appointed representatives and committee members are moving in for real and not just for words.

People will forget these things and look more toward the other side of the ledger, like its recent problems with scavengers and local police force or its running battle with Georgetown.

But things may settle down, and Georgetown has been a boon to Wood Dale, particularly from the municipal sales tax received each month by the village.

A few years back the monthly take was less than $1,500. Today it's around $8,000 and is growing all the time. The increase has been due primarily to Georgetown Square, now in its third phase of construction.

Poor little old Wood Dale, that's what some people have been saying!

duced significantly to pacify the communities involved.

VONKANN PRODUCED several suggestions which he said the airlines would find acceptable. He said the airlines are now working to reduce the noise at its source by redesigning and modifying aircraft engines.

The airlines also would be willing to attempt reducing people's exposure to noise by using noise abatement methods which would keep airplanes at a further distance from the ground, vonKann added.

The aircraft spokesman said this would require a certain degree of limitations on flight.

VonKann threw part of the noise problem into the laps of the citizens by saying aircraft modifications would not completely solve the problem until residents in the area made efforts to insulate buildings and houses against noise, and control the use of land under departure and arrival paths.

He said that conditions around O'Hare airport are substantially better than conditions near other major airports in the country because land use control has been applied.

"EXAMINATION OF aerial photographs show that land near the (O'Hare) airport has been built up but it has largely been for noise-compatible industrial use rather than residential," he said.

He also pointed out that airports bring a steady rise in land values. For example, the city of Chicago originally acquired the land for O'Hare in 1947 at a cost as low as $400 per acre.

By 1960, the cost of neighboring farm land needed for airport expansion had risen to $20,000 per acre. Today, he said, the cost is as high as $50,000 per acre.

"We ask the communities affected by aircraft noise to recognize and accept their responsibility for requiring land use compatible with noise exposure under flight paths used for landings and take-offs by nearby airports," vonKann said.

"MEANINGFUL reduction in aircraft noise annoyance cannot be achieved without this community action," vonKann concluded.

"This is white-wash we have all heard before," answered Rep. Joseph C. DiCarlo, D-Mass. The audience roared its approval to his statement.

"You talk about land compatibility," charged DiCarlo, "these residential areas were there before the airports. You have complete disregard for people who live in the area."

DiCarlo charged the airlines have shown no cooperation or concern for the lives of people in the vicinity and insisted that the fight for noise abatement was a fight against a powerful lobby.

RALPH E. SIRIANNI, also D-Mass., charged that the runways at airports have extended to accommodate jets and not to reduce noise as vonKann had suggested. VonKann denied the statement.

During the organizational part of the committee meeting, an attempt was made by representatives of various towns to pass a resolution opposing further government financing of supersonic transport planes. After discussion on the topic, it was tabled and referred to a committee to be chosen by Goedike and Casco.

Introduce Jet Noise Bill

Washington — A new bill was introduced in Congress yesterday to return power and control to the states and localities in the fight against jet noise. The bill would remain in effect until the Federal Aviation Agency sets standards for the noise level. The purpose of the bill is to force the FAA to take immediate action.

Congressman John W. Wylder, R-Nassau County, New York, introduced the bill at a special meeting on Capitol Hill of state and local officials from all across the United States.

The Wylder bill on jet noise is designed to amend P190-411 which was passed in 1968. The original bill allowed the FAA to issue regulations limiting the jet noise.

"The original legislation was sponsored by me," Wylder said, "and it was an important first step in the fight against jet noise."

HE ADDED, "Unfortunately, no rules or regulations have been issued by the FAA to date. Until they are issued, the law will be of no help to those suffering from the problem of jet noise."

The bill would return to local authorities the right to make and enforce rules and regulations controlling jet noise and sonic boom until such time as the FAA issued its regulations.

At the present time, the FAA is in the process of considering limitations on the jet noise allowable by aircraft now in production but not yet flying, the so-called jumbo jets.

The research being done in that field will not affect present aircraft which are flying over local areas and causing the noise problem, Wylder said. He added that his bill would fill this gap by giving local areas the power to protect their citizens.

WYDLER ANNOUNCED his bill at a special conference called in Washington by Supervisor Ralph Casco of Hempstead, N.Y., and attended by Chicago area officials from suburbs surrounding O'Hare Field. Among those present at the conference was Bensenville Village Pres. John Varble who was named to a special committee to study the problems of noise from aircraft.

Varble was expected back in Bensenville Thursday night in time to address the board of trustees on his findings. While in Washington, he also met with Sen. Charles Percy and Ralph Smith and Rep. John Erlenborn. All three pledged their support of programs which would put federal limitations on jet noise.

Even Smith, who is normally opposed to any kind of big government interference, said he felt, "It's not reasonably possible to keep the federal government out of this."

Clark Refuses Job

The prime candidate for the job of village administrator in Wood Dale has declined the job, it was announced yesterday.

Barry Clark, currently an assistant village manager in the Trenton, N.J., area, accepted another position on the east coast, according to Village Councilman Dino Janis.

Janis said yesterday there were "reasons other than money" listed by Clark in turning down Wood Dale's offer.

The candidate had been offered $12,000 plus a variety of fringe benefits totaling more than the offer made by the unnamed choice of Clark, Janis said.

JANIS SAID THE next step is "to start all over again" in the search for a village administrator. He added that this time the village council will play a greater role in advertising, application review and screening of interested persons than was previously done.

Janis was clearly disappointed in what he called "procrastination" of the special screening committee set up by the council when it was agreed to hire an administrator. About four months' time was used in the selection process, Janis said.

The committee and the council interviewed eight applicants and narrowed the field to Clark last Saturday. Janis earlier this week expressed some confidence that Clark would come to Wood Dale.

"NOW WE START ALL over again, advertising for a village administrator," the councilman said yesterday, "and this time the council will play a more active role in the selection of a candidate."

He did not define the role precisely, but it seems clear that the screening committee will be working with the council, rather than independently.

What effect it will have on committee members is not certain.

Start Sewage Treatment Plant Design

At a calm, short, and poorly attended Bloomingdale Village Board meeting Wednesday night, trustees concentrated on sewer and water problems.

Ralph F. Gross, village engineer, reported the plans for the trunk sewers have been laid out and the lines are properly oversized for the entire village. He will now proceed with the design for the sewage treatment plant.

Gross also made an optimistic report on the village's existing sewage plant. A recent 14-day meter check indicated the plant's intake had increased 10,000 gallons per day within the last two years. The plant which was built for a maximum of 200,000 gallons of water per day is now handling 135,000 gallons per day.

HOWEVER, CONDITION of the effluent

after treatment rather than amount of flow, is the main concern of the state sanitary water board, Gross said.

The Bloomingdale plant's effluent meets state standards, he added, citing results from recent tests done by Larry Freier, superintendent of public works.

Freier will conduct more tests on the content of the stream on which the plant is located. He will collect samples both upstream and downstream from the plant to determine just how much the plant effects the oxygen content of the stream and how much independent users affect it after plant effluent has been accounted for.

RALPH JOHNSTON, one of three trustees at the meeting and chairman of the public works department, announced a special committee meeting to be held Thursday to discuss flooding problems at Suncrest unit four, north of Lake and east of Circle Avenue.

The new pump for the lift station on Pleasant Street which had been promised by the manufacturer this week after two delays has not arrived.

In final motions the board passed a resolution of intent stating Bloomingdale would cooperate with studies done regarding the proposed $3 million county trunk line from Roselle to Glen Ellyn Heights.

Firemen To Hold Open House Day

An open house will be held at the Bensenville Fire Station from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Sunday in conjunction with National Fire Prevention Week, Oct. 4 through 11.

Movies on fire prevention and tours of the building will be going on continuously and a demonstration of fire extinguishers will take place at 11 a.m.

Balloons will be handed out and the name of poster contest winners will be announced. More than 1,500 posters urging fire prevention were entered in the contest by grade school children.

DURING THE last week, firemen Al Quinn and Walter Kehoe have shown films and given lectures at several schools in Bensenville. Fire Chief Armin Korthauer reported that the number of visitors to the station this week has been high.

The firemen will also celebrate the 75th anniversary of the company Oct. 19.

current line, unused, was partially paid for by residents who will not benefit from the CMD arrangement. Nottke was concerned about the possibility that abandonment of the line would bring legal problems to future users of the present line.

HE EXPLAINED that the existing line, a 27-inch main, is four feet too high in the ground, and that the new line would have to go directly under it.

"You tell me how we can do that without disturbing the present line," Nottke said to Petherbridge.

"I'd take the 27-inch line out and put a bigger one in," came the reply.

Further discussion revealed that future use by property owners affected by but not involved in the CMD line, would not add excessive load to the proposed new line.

Payment of the line would be through tap-on fees via the village to CMD. Those who have paid for the current line in part include "the Gould property and Roth Rubber."

WITH THAT, Petherbridge entered a motion which was eventually accepted by the board. It called for abandonment of the present line, and installation of a new line in its place, four feet lower in the ground. Those who had helped pay for the old line will not have to contribute to the new one, although usual tap on fees for new additions will be charged as usual.

Wood Dale To Hold Police Examinations

More patrolmen's examinations will be held in Wood Dale tomorrow afternoon as that community continues to rebuild its police force.

Several more men are needed in the wake of mass resignations by five policemen last month. The resignations followed a strike by most of the force during September and the filing of charges against officers who called in sick to protest wages and working conditions.

The department hired several new officers immediately prior to the resignations and is now seeking to fill out the force to its full strength of 10 men.

NOISE Fight Set

by MARY DRESSER

Special to Paddock Publications

WASHINGTON — NOISE, a new committee to fight jet aircraft noise and insure safe environments, was formed yesterday following a hearing before the House Committee on Science and Astronautics. Bensenville's Village Pres. John Varble was named to the temporary steering committee which also includes Mayor William Goodie of Inglewood, Calif., supervisor Ralph Casco of Hempstead, N.Y., and Mayor Stanley Olson of Ridgefield, Minn.

Varble and other political leaders from the northwest suburbs were appearing in Washington to focus legislative attention on the problems of jet noise at O'Hare Airport. During the two days of intensive meetings and policy-setting discussions, the representatives from various states met with their congressmen to plead for a concerned attack on the problem.

THE ILLINOIS delegation led by Varble, took its case to Rep. John Erlenborn and senators Charles Percy and Ralph Smith in meetings Tuesday, Wednesday and yesterday. Erlenborn said he would release a statement backing noise abatement.

Other representatives from Illinois include Dr. Ralph Madonia, William Warnock and George Franks of Wood Dale and Donald Connelly of Roselle.

The Illinois representatives met with both Percy and Smith in their offices on Wednesday.

"This is the biggest crowd I've had in my office since I arrived," joked Smith, the newly appointed senator to replace the late Sen. Everett Dirksen.

Smith said he will back federal action to cut jet noise in spite of his long-standing position opposing big government interference.

"IT IS NOT reasonably possible to keep the federal government out of this," he said. "I will cooperate in any conceivable way I can," he added.

Smith asked for a concise memorandum from the group outlining suggested solutions to the problem.

During the group's interview with Percy, the senator said he was confident an answer could be found to the noise problem.

Percy said he would be in the Chicago area this weekend and is ready and willing to hear citizens' complaints. The senator said he believes a third airport in the Chicago area might help eliminate the O'Hare noise problem, adding that at this time he favors an airport in the Joliet vicinity.

HE PROMISED he would immediately contact the Federal Aviation Agency and demand that the FAA release an overdue study on acceptable noise level standards. He also said he would contact Boeing, Douglas and Lockheed airplane manufacturers to discover what each company is doing to solve the problem of noise.

"I'll tell them they're going to have a tough time getting contracts if they don't do it," he said grimly.

Throughout the two days of meetings, representatives of the FAA were conspicuously absent. During the public hearing, supervisor Casco charged, "This is an FAA boycott and it's an insult. Even an underling could have been sent."

Clifton F. vonKam of the Air Transport Association of America estimated it would cost the airlines approximately $800 million to put noise-reducing devices on the airplanes now in existence. He also said it would take four to five years to do the job and could not promise noise would be re-

Tempers Flare Up Over Sewer Issue

Tempers were frayed a bit on the usually diplomatic Itasca Village Board Tuesday night as the panel went another round of planning on the Prospect-Thorndale sewer line, supposedly nearing conclusion.

The line, to be financed by the Central Manufacturing District, can't be built until a contract between CMD and the village defining mutual efforts is completed.

As discussion of one of Mayor Will Nottke's favorite projects continued, Trustee Roy Petherbridge suggested that because the board is not aware of the complete situation, the matter should be discussed later.

USUALLY DIPLOMATIC, Nottke blasted the trustee for the remark.

"I have no idea what's going on," Petherbridge said during the course of discussion.

"Well, maybe you ought to be excused from the conversation," Nottke said.

Petherbridge was complaining about complexities in the contract and planning.

Nottke maintained that the matter is "simple." He was seeking a recommendation from the board about an existing but unused line along the same route as the new proposed sewer.

Nottke suggested abandonment of the line, but pointed out potential legal problems involved. Petherbridge finally gave up trying to figure out what was going on and suggested that other courses of action be taken.

THESE INCLUDED a meeting to clarify the entire project or having those involved in the planning — primarily Nottke and Village Atty. Lawrence Traeger — determine the best course of action for the entire project and bring the whole package back to the board for approval.

Nottke, angry with the comment, began to explain further, bringing a fresh batch of questions about the proposed sewer line from the rest of the board.

Again Petherbridge pointed out confusion: "We're talking about the last 200 feet of a sewer line. How about the first 2,000 feet? You've been working day and night on this; perhaps you should figure out what needs to be done and then bring back the whole thing to the board."

NOTTKE RETORTED, "What do you want? If we talk about it you say we shouldn't, and if we don't talk about it you complain."

Petherbridge said he wasn't trying to offend anyone, and repeated the suggestion.

"Look," Nottke fumed, "I make a lot of decisions about this village every day you don't ever know about."

Petherbridge responded, "You've tried to bring this to a point. You're asking the board to approve part of a project when we don't know what the total project is."

The particulars appeared to be that the

JOHN D. VARBLE

Itasca Fights Noise Battle In Home Area

While Bensenville Mayor John Varble and representatives of the O'Hare Area Noise and Air Pollution Abatement Council are seeking to bend influential ears in Washington, D.C., the Village of Itasca is content to work through congressmen and senators.

Noting an expression of thanks from Council Chairman George Franks, Itasca Mayor Will Nottke said his community didn't send anyone to Washington because "we already have a representative there — John Erlenborn." Erlenborn is the congressman from the 14th district, including DuPage and Will counties.

Trustee Roy Petherbridge loosed an attack on the efforts of Varble, commenting that the Bensenville mayor is seeking headlines.

"EVEN THOUGH he's a personal friend of mine," the trustee said, "Varble is a Johnny-come-lately to the problem (of air and noise pollution)."

"He went running off to Washington, but he hasn't done his homework. You get results through the sort of action we took, and not by wielding headlines."

Petherbridge was referring to a resolution passed by the Itasca Village Board calling on Sen. Charles Percy to initiate legislation that would curb noise and air pollution from O'Hare International Airport.

Franks is representing the council of 19 communities who wrote the resolution, while Varble is representing the Village of Bensenville.

Lawrence Springborn

Springborn Dies On Jamaican Trip

Lawrence Springborn, DuPage County sheriff, died late Wednesday while on vacation in Jamaica. The cause of the death was listed as a heart attack.

Springborn, who was to have celebrated his 56th birthday tomorrow, served as county sheriff for two terms. He served from 1958 to 1962 and then served a term as county treasurer from 1962 to 1966. Under the laws of the state, a county sheriff cannot succeed himself in office.

A staunch conservative in Republican politics, Springborn was a top vote-getter and received his strongest support from older citizens and those of long residential standing in the county.

HE WAS EXPECTED to make a bid in the 1970 elections for another term as county treasurer, and was considered by many as a sure winner. His only political setback came in 1968 when he failed in a bid for the office of county coroner.

The announcement of his candidacy for treasurer was expected at a press conference scheduled for Oct. 17. Another press conference to be held today by Chief Deputy Wayne Shimp has been canceled. Speculation has been that Shimp intended to announce his candidacy for county sheriff to succeed Springborn.

Springborn, a lifelong resident of Naperville, also served as deputy sheriff for 16 years and as a constable in Naperville Township for 12 years.

As county sheriff, Springborn initiated the merit commission and a new training program which included police psychology. He was considered innovative and progressive by many.

ACTIVE IN BOTH Boy Scout and Girl Scout work, Springborn also served as a committeeman in Precinct 4 of Naperville for 28 years and retired as a lieutenant in the Naperville Fire Department after 24 years of service.

Springborn is survived by his widow, Jeanette; three sons, Larry Jr., 10, at home, Richard, 28, of Edmonton, Alberta, Canada, and James, 26, serving with the Army in California; daughter-in-law, Roberta, and a granddaughter, Stacy; a daughter Jeanne, 20, at home, and three brothers, Donald of Naperville and Howard and Glenn of Aurora.

The Springborns maintained their private home in Naperville, but lived in Wheaton in a residence at the county jail.

Under state statute, the DuPage County coroner is to execute the duties of the sheriff until a new chief is appointed. Dr. Samuel K. Lewis, DuPage County coroner, will be acting sheriff.

Funeral arrangements were incomplete yesterday. A spokesman for Friedrich's Funeral Home in Naperville said the home has not heard from Jamaican authorities on when Springborn's body will be returned here. The spokesman said the funeral could not possibly take place before Monday or Tuesday of next week.

A combined Roselle Boy Scout paper drive will be held tomorrow.

Now that voters of Wood Dale School Dist. 7 have sanctioned a $250,000 bond issue and a $425,000 interest-free loan from the Illinois Building Commission, residents of the Wood Dale area have once again shown that, in spite of some kidding, they can get things done.

This is more than some of the neighboring communities and other school districts have achieved lately.

And there will be more of this in the future as Wood Dale's burgeoning population buckles down and meets the challenge of the needs the community will face, whether it be educational in both parochial and public schools, or at the local government level.

Varble was expected back in Bensenville Thursday night in time to address the board of trustees on his findings. While in Washington, he also met with Sen. Charles Percy and Ralph Smith and Rep. John Erlenborn. All three pledged their support of programs which would put federal limitations on jet noise.

Even Smith, who is normally opposed to any kind of big government interference, said he felt, "It's not reasonably possible to keep the federal government out of this."

Clark Refuses Job

The prime candidate for the job of village administrator in Wood Dale has declined the job, it was announced yesterday.

Barry Clark, currently an assistant village manager in the Trenton, N.J., area, accepted another position on the east coast, according to Village Councilman Dino Janis.

Janis said yesterday there were "reasons other than money" listed by Clark in turning down Wood Dale's offer.

The candidate had been offered $12,000 plus a variety of fringe benefits totaling more than the offer made by the unnamed choice of Clark, Janis said.

JANIS SAID THE next step is "to start all over again" in the search for a village administrator. He added that this time the village council will play a greater role in a reviewing, application review and screening of interested persons than was previously done.

Janis was clearly disappointed in what he called "procrastination" of the special screening committee set up by the council when it was agreed to hire an administrator. About four months' time was used in the selection process, Janis said.

The committee and the council interviewed eight applicants and narrowed the field to Clark last Saturday. Janis earlier this week expressed some confidence that Clark would come to Wood Dale.

"NOW WE START ALL over again, advertising for a village administrator," the councilman said yesterday. "and this time the council will play a more active role in the selection of a candidate."

He did not define the role precisely, but it seems clear that the screening committee will be working with the council, rather than independently.

What effect it will have on committee members is not certain.

Start Sewage Treatment Plant Design

At a calm, short, and poorly attended Bloomingdale Village Board meeting Wednesday night, trustees concentrated on sewer and water problems.

Ralph F. Gross, village engineer, reported the plans for the trunk sewers have been laid out and the lines are properly oversized for the entire village. He will now proceed with the design for the sewage treatment plant.

Gross also made an optimistic report on the village's existing sewage plant. A recent 14-day meter check indicated the plant's intake had increased 10,000 gallons per day within the last two years. The plant which was built for a maximum of 200,000 gallons of water per day is now handling 135,000 gallons per day.

HOWEVER, CONDITION of the effluent

after treatment rather than amount of flow, is the main concern of the state sanitary water board, Gross said.

The Bloomingdale plant's effluent meets state standards, he added, citing results from recent tests done by Larry Freier, superintendent of public works.

Freier will conduct more tests on the content of the stream on which the plant is located. He will collect samples both upstream and downstream from the plant to determine just how much the plant effects the oxygen content of the stream and how much independent users affect it after plant effluent has been accounted for.

RALPH JOHNSTON, one of three trustees at the meeting and chairman of the public works department, announced a special committee meeting to be held Thursday to discuss flooding problems at Suncrest unit four, north of Lake and east of Circle Avenue.

The new pump for the lift station on Pleasant Street which had been promised by the manufacturer this week after two delays has not arrived.

In final motions the board passed a resolution of intent stating Bloomingdale would cooperate with studies done regarding the proposed $3 million county trunk line from Roselle to Glen Ellyn Heights.

Firemen To Hold Open House Day

An open house will be held at the Bensenville Fire Station from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Sunday in conjunction with National Fire Prevention Week, Oct. 4 through 11.

Movies on fire prevention and tours of the building will be going on continuously and a demonstration of fire extinguishers will take place at 11 a.m.

Balloons will be handed out and the name of poster contest winners will be announced. More than 1,500 posters urging fire prevention were entered in the contest by grade school children.

DURING THE last week, firemen Al Quinn and Walter Kehoe have shown films and given lectures at several schools in Bensenville. Fire Chief Armin Korthauer reported that the number of visitors to the station this week has been high.

The firemen will also celebrate the 75th anniversary of the company Oct. 19.

current line, unused, was partially paid for by residents who will not benefit from the CMD arrangement. Notke was concerned about the possibility that abandonment of the line would bring legal problems to future users of the present line.

HE EXPLAINED that the existing line, a 27-inch main, is four feet too high in the ground, and that the new line would have to go directly under it.

"You tell me how we can do that without disturbing the present line," Notke said to Petherbridge.

"I'd take the 37-inch line out and put a bigger one in," came the reply.

Further discussion revealed that future use by property owners affected by but not involved in the CMD line, would not add excessive load to the proposed new line.

Payment of the line would be through tap-on fees via the village to CMD. Those who have paid for the current line in part include "the Gould property and Roth Rubber."

WITH THAT, Petherbridge entered a motion which was eventually accepted by the board. It called for abandonment of the present line, and installation of a new line in its place, four feet lower in the ground. Those who had helped pay for the old line will not have to contribute to the new one, although usual tap on fees for new additions will be charged as usual.

Wood Dale To Hold Police Examinations

More patrolmen's examinations will be held in Wood Dale tomorrow afternoon as that community continues to rebuild its police force.

Several more men are needed in the wake of mass resignations by five policemen last month. The resignations followed a strike by most of the force during September and the filing of charges against officers who called in sick to protest wages and working conditions.

The department hired several new officers immediately prior to the resignations and is now seeking to fill out the force to its full strength of 10 men.

Springborn Dies On Jamaican Trip

Lawrence Springborn, DuPage County sheriff, died late Wednesday while on vacation in Jamaica. The cause of the death was listed as a heart attack.

Springborn, who was to have celebrated his 58th birthday tomorrow, served as county sheriff for two terms. He served from 1958 to 1962 and then served a term as county treasurer from 1962 to 1966. Under the laws of the state, a county sheriff cannot succeed himself in office.

A staunch conservative in Republican politics, Springborn was a top vote-getter and received his strongest support from older citizens and those of long residential standing in the county.

HE WAS EXPECTED to make a bid in the 1970 elections for another term as county treasurer, and was considered by many as a sure winner. His only political setback came in 1968 when he failed in a bid for the office of county coroner.

The announcement of his candidacy for treasurer was expected at a press conference scheduled for Oct. 17. Another press conference to be held today by Chief Deputy Wayne Shimp has been canceled. Speculation has been that Shimp intended to announce his candidacy for county sheriff to succeed Springborn.

Springborn, a lifelong resident of Naperville, also served as deputy sheriff for 16 years and as a constable in Naperville Township for 12 years.

As county sheriff, Springborn initiated the merit commission and a new training program which included police psychology. He was considered innovative and progressive by many.

ACTIVE IN BOTH Boy Scout and Girl Scout work, Springborn also served as a committeeman in Precinct 4 of Naperville for 28 years and retired as a lieutenant in the Naperville Fire Department after 24 years of service.

Springborn is survived by his widow, Jeanette; three sons, Larry Jr., 10, at home, Richard, 28, of Edmonton, Alberta, Canada, and James, 26, serving with the Army in California; daughter-in-law, Roberta, and a granddaughter, Stacy; a daughter, Jeanne, 20, at home, and three brothers, Donald of Naperville and Howard and Glenn of Aurora.

The Springborns maintained their private home in Naperville, but lived in Wheaton in a residence at the county jail. Under state statute, the DuPage County coroner is to execute the duties of the sheriff until a new chief is appointed. Dr. Samuel K. Lewis, DuPage County coroner, will be acting sheriff.

Funeral arrangements were incomplete yesterday. A spokesman for Freidrich's Funeral Home in Naperville said the home has not heard from Jamaican authorities on when Springborn's body will be returned here. The spokesman said the funeral could not possibly take place before Monday or Tuesday of next week.

NOISE Fight Set

by MARY DRESSER
Special to Paddock Publications

WASHINGTON — NOISE, a new committee to fight jet aircraft noise and insure safe environments, was formed yesterday following a hearing before the House Committee on Science and Astronautics. Bensenville's Village Pres. John Varble was named to the temporary steering committee which also includes Mayor William Goedike of Inglewood, Calif., supervisor Ralph Casco of Hempstead, N.Y., and Mayor Stanley Olson of Ridgefield, Minn.

Varble and other political leaders from the northwest suburbs were appearing in Washington to focus legislative attention on the problems of jet noise at O'Hare Airport. During the two days of intensive meetings and policy-setting discussions, the representatives from various states met with their congressmen to plead for a concerned attack on the problem.

THE ILLINOIS delegation led by Varble, took its case to Rep. John Erlenborn and senators Charles Percy and Ralph Smith in meetings Tuesday, Wednesday and yesterday. Erlenborn said he would release a statement backing noise abatement.

Other representatives from Illinois include Dr. Ralph Madonna, William Warnock and George Franks of Wood Dale and Donald Connelly of Roselle.

The Illinois representatives met with both Percy and Smith in their offices on Wednesday.

"This is the biggest crowd I've had in my office since I arrived," joked Smith, the newly appointed senator to replace the late Sen. Everett Dirksen.

Smith said he will back federal action to cut jet noise in spite of his long-standing position opposing big government interference.

"IT IS NOT reasonably possible to keep the federal government out of this," he said. "I will cooperate in any conceivable way I can," he added.

Smith asked for a concise memorandum from the group outlining suggested solutions to the problem.

During the group's interview with Percy, the senator said he was confident an answer could be found to the noise problem.

Percy said he would be in the Chicago area this weekend and is ready and willing to hear citizens' complaints. The senator said he believes a third airport in the Chicago area might help eliminate the O'Hare noise problem, adding that at this time he favors an airport in the Joliet vicinity.

HE PROMISED he would immediately contact the Federal Aviation Agency and demand that the FAA release an overdue study on acceptable noise level standards. He also said he would contact Boeing, Douglas and Lockheed airplane manufacturers to discover what each company is doing to solve the problem of noise.

"I'll tell them they're going to have a tough time getting contracts if they don't do it," he said grimly.

Throughout the two days of meetings, representatives of the FAA were conspicuously absent. During the public hearing, supervisor Casco charged, "This is an FAA boycott and it's an insult. Even an underling could have been sent."

Clifton F. vonKann of the Air Transport Association of America estimated it would cost the airlines approximately $800 million to put noise-reducing devices on the airplanes now in existence. He also said it would take four to five years to do the job and could not promise noise would be reduced.

Tempers Flare Up Over Sewer Issue

Tempers were frayed a bit on the usually diplomatic Itasca Village Board Tuesday night as the panel went another round of planning on the Prospect-Thorndale sewer line, supposedly nearing conclusion.

The line, to be financed by the Central Manufacturing District, can't be built until a contract between CMD and the village defining mutual efforts is completed.

As discussion of one of Mayor Will Nottke's favorite projects continued, Trustee Roy Petherbridge suggested that because the board is not aware of the complete situation, the matter should be discussed later.

USUALLY DIPLOMATIC, Nottke blasted the trustee for the remark.

"I have no idea what's going on," Petherbridge said during the course of discussion.

"Well, maybe you ought to be excused from the conversation," Nottke said.

Petherbridge was complaining about complexities in the contract and planning.

Nottke maintained that the matter is "simple." He was seeking a recommendation from the board about an existing but unused line along the same route as the new proposed sewer.

Nottke suggested abandonment of the line, but pointed out potential legal problems involved. Petherbridge finally gave up trying to figure out what was going on and suggested that other courses of action be taken.

THESE INCLUDED a meeting to clarify the entire project or having those involved in the planning — primarily Nottke and Village Atty. Lawrence Traeger — determine the best course of action for the entire project and bring the whole package back to the board for approval.

Nottke, angry with the comment, began to explain further, bringing a fresh batch of questions about the proposed sewer line from the rest of the board.

Again Petherbridge pointed out confusion: "We're talking about the last 200 feet of a sewer line. How about the first 2,000 feet? You've been working day and night on this; perhaps you should figure out what needs to be done and then bring back the whole thing to the board."

NOTTKE RETORTED, "What do you want? If we talk about it you say we shouldn't, and if we don't talk about it you complain."

Petherbridge said he wasn't trying to offend anyone, and repeated the suggestion.

"Look," Nottke fumed, "I make a lot of decisions about this village every day you don't even know about."

Petherbridge responded, "You've tried to bring this to a point. You're asking the board to approve part of a project when we don't know what the total project is."

The particulars appeared to be that the

JOHN D. VARBLE

Itasca Fights Noise Battle In Home Area

While Bensenville Mayor John Varble and representatives of the O'Hare Area Noise and Air Pollution Abatement Council are seeking to bend influential ears in Washington, D.C., the Village of Itasca is content to work through congressmen and senators.

Noting an expression of thanks from Council Chairman George Franks, Itasca Mayor Will Nottke said his community didn't send anyone to Washington because "we already have a representative there — John Erlenborn." Erlenborn is the congressman from the 14th district, including DuPage and Will counties.

Trustee Roy Petherbridge loosed an attack on the efforts of Varble, commenting that the Bensenville mayor is seeking headlines.

"EVEN THOUGH he's a personal friend of mine," the trustee said, "Varble is a Johnny-come-lately to the problem (of air and noise pollution)."

"He went running off to Washington, but he hasn't done his homework. You get results through the sort of action we took, and not by wielding headlines."

Petherbridge was referring to a resolution passed by the Itasca Village Board calling on Sen. Charles Percy to initiate legislation that would curb noise and air pollution from O'Hare International Airport.

Franks is representing the council of 19 communities who wrote the resolution, while Varble is representing the Village of Bensenville.

Village Beat

Syd Jamieson

Now that voters of Wood Dale School Dist. 7 have sanctioned a $250,000 bond issue and a $125,000 interest-free loan from the Illinois Building Commission, residents of the Wood Dale area have once again shown that, in spite of some kidding, they can get things done.

This is more than some of the neighboring communities and other school districts have achieved lately.

And there will be more of this in the future as Wood Dale's burgeoning population buckles down and meets the challenge of the needs the community will face, whether it be educational in both parochial and public schools, or at the local government level.

WOOD DALE OVER the years has weathered defeat, but lately the pendulum has swung to the other side.

Sure, it could swing the other way, but for the present the citizenry of Wood Dale has taken the bit and is running with it.

Residents will admit taxes are creeping up, but where aren't they?

Where else do you find a 60 per cent discount to water users who pay their quarterly bills on time?

How would your community like to get bona gratis two new fire engines — one a snorkel — and a site for a new fire station?

WHERE ELSE HAVE the residents experienced an additional sewage treatment plant without a bond issue? The same is true for an additional water reservoir.

Where else has the community received a land donation on which to build a new village hall and perhaps a community recreational center, let alone nearly a quarter of a million dollars in cold cash from which it will build a community swimming pool?

Poor little old Wood Dale — that's what some people have been saying.

Where else has a community paid for a street-widening program out of its own treasury without state or federal highway funds allocated for that purpose?

SURE, PART OF THE funding comes from motor fuel tax allotments, but the rest is from local financing.

Poor little old Wood Dale — that's what some people have been saying.

What about the new village hall now under construction? Who paid for that facility? Sure, it was village funds, but what about the interest that has been saved by paying cash rather than through a bond issue?

Who started the ball rolling to get neighboring villages together to form a noise abatement council to fight what one local resident called "Jet-itis?"

SOME COMMUNITIES may say they were in the fight long before little old Wood Dale, but it was little old Wood Dale who got everyone together as a group to coordinate a plan of action. And it appears that the council with its appointed representatives and committee members are moving in for real and not just for words.

People will forget these things and look more toward the other side of the ledger, like its recent problems with scavengers and local police force or its running battle with Georgetown.

But things may settle down, and Georgetown has been a boon to Wood Dale, particularly from the municipal sales tax received each month by the village.

A few years back the monthly take was less than $1,500. Today it's around $8,000 and is growing all the time. The increase has been due primarily to Georgetown Square, now in its third phase of construction.

Poor little old Wood Dale, that's what some people have been saying!

Smith, Percy Promise Support

duced significantly to pacify the communities involved.

VonKANN PRODUCED several suggestions which he said the airlines would find acceptable. He said the airlines are now working to reduce the noise at its source by redesigning and modifying aircraft engines.

The airlines also would be willing to attempt reducing people's exposure to noise by using noise abatement methods which would keep airplanes at a further distance from the ground, vonKann added.

The aircraft spokesman said this would require a certain degree of limitations on flight.

flight.

VonKann threw part of the noise problem into the laps of the citizens by saying aircraft modifications would not completely solve the problem until residents in the area made efforts to insulate buildings and houses against noise, and control the use of land under departure and arrival paths.

He said that conditions around O'Hare airport are substantially better than conditions near other major airports in the country because land use control has been applied.

"EXAMINATION OF aerial photographs show that land near the (O'Hare) airport has been built up but it has largely been for noise-compatible industrial use rather than residential," he said.

He also pointed out that airports bring a steady rise in land values. For example, the city of Chicago originally acquired the land for O'Hare in 1947 at a cost as low as $400 per acre.

By 1960, the cost of neighboring farm land needed for airport expansion had risen to $20,000 per acre. Today, he said, the cost is as high as $50,000 per acre.

"We ask the communities affected by aircraft noise to recognize and accept their responsibility for requiring land use compatible with noise exposure under flight paths used for landings and take-offs by nearby airports," vonKann said.

"MEANINGFUL reduction in aircraft noise annoyance cannot be achieved without this community action," vonKann concluded.

"This is white-wash we have all heard before," answered Rep. Joseph C. DiCarlo, D-Mass. The audience roared its approval to his statement.

"You talk about land compatibility," charged DiCarlo, "these residential areas were there before the airports. You have complete disregard for people who live in the area."

DiCarlo charged the airlines have shown no cooperation or concern for the lives of people in the vicinity and insisted that the fight for noise abatement was a fight against a powerful lobby.

RALPH E. SIRIANNI, also D-Mass., charged that the runways at airports have been extended to accommodate jets and not to reduce noise as vonKann had suggested. VonKann denied the statement.

During the organizational part of the committee meeting, an attempt was made by representatives of various towns to pass a resolution opposing further government financing of supersonic transport planes. After discussion on the topic, it was tabled and referred to a committee to be chosen by Goedike and Casco.

Introduce Jet Noise Bill

Washington — A new bill was introduced in Congress yesterday to return power and control to the states and localities in the fight against jet noise. The bill would remain in effect until the Federal Aviation Agency sets standards for the noise level. The purpose of the bill is to force the FAA to take immediate action.

Congressman John W. Wylder, R-Nassau County, New York, introduced the bill at a special meeting on Capitol Hill of state and local officials from all across the United States.

The Wylder bill on jet noise is designed to amend P190-411 which was passed in 1968. The original bill allowed the FAA to issue regulations limiting the jet noise.

"The original legislation was sponsored by me," Wylder said, "and it was an important first step in the fight against jet noise."

HE ADDED, "Unfortunately, no rules or regulations have been issued by the FAA to date. Until they are issued, the law will be of no help to those suffering from the problem of jet noise."

The bill would return to local authorities the right to make and enforce rules and regulations controlling jet noise and sonic boom until such time as the FAA issued its regulations.

At the present time, the FAA is in the process of considering limitations on the jet noise allowable by aircraft now in production but not yet flying, the so-called jumbo jets.

The research being done in that field will not affect present aircraft which are flying over local areas and causing the noise problem, Wylder said. He added that his bill would fill this gap by giving local areas the power to protect their citizens.

WYDLER ANNOUNCED his bill at a special conference called in Washington by Supervisor Ralph Casco of Hempstead, N.Y., and attended by Chicago area officials from suburbs surrounding O'Hare Field. Among those present at the conference was Bensenville Village Pres. John Varble who was named to a special committee to study the problems of noise from aircraft.

Varble was expected back in Bensenville Thursday night in time to address the board of trustees on his findings. While in Washington, he also met with Sen. Charles Percy and Ralph Smith and Rep. John Erlenborn. All three pledged their support of programs which would put federal limitations on jet noise.

Even Smith, who is normally opposed to any kind of big government interference, said he felt, "It's not reasonably possible to keep the federal government out of this."

Clark Refuses Job

The prime candidate for the job of village administrator in Wood Dale has declined the job, it was announced yesterday.

Barry Clark, currently an assistant village manager in the Trenton, N.J., area, accepted another position on the east coast, according to Village Councilman Dino Janis.

Janis said yesterday there were "reasons other than money" listed by Clark in turning down Wood Dale's offer.

The candidate had been offered $12,000 plus a variety of fringe benefits totaling more than the offer made by the unnamed choice of Clark, Janis said.

JANIS SAID THE next step is "to start all over again" in the search for a village administrator. He added that this time the village council will play a greater role in a reviewing, application review and screening of interested persons than was previously done.

Janis was clearly disappointed in what he called "procrastination" of the special screening committee set up by the council when it was agreed to hire an administrator. About four months' time was used in the selection process, Janis said.

The committee and the council interviewed eight applicants and narrowed the field to Clark last Saturday. Janis earlier this week expressed some confidence that Clark would come to Wood Dale.

"NOW WE START ALL over again, advertising for a village administrator," the councilman said yesterday, "and this time the council will play a more active role in the selection of a candidate."

He did not define the role precisely, but it seems clear that the screening committee will be working with the council, rather than independently.

What effect it will have on committee members is not certain.

Start Sewage Treatment Plant Design

At a calm, short, and poorly attended Bloomingdale Village Board meeting Wednesday night, trustees concentrated on sewer and water problems.

Ralph F. Gross, village engineer, reported the plans for the trunk sewers have been laid out and the lines are properly oversized for the entire village. He will now proceed with the design for the sewage treatment plant.

Gross also made an optimistic report on the village's existing sewage plant. A recent 14-day meter check indicated the plant's intake had increased 10,000 gallons per day within the last two years. The plant which was built for a maximum of 200,000 gallons of water per day is now handling 125,000 gallons per day.

HOWEVER, CONDITION of the effluent

after treatment rather than amount of flow, is the main concern of the state sanitary water board, Gross said.

The Bloomingdale plant's effluent meets state standards, he added, citing results from recent tests done by Larry Freier, superintendent of public works.

Freier will conduct more tests on the content of the stream on which the plant is located. He will collect samples both upstream and downstream from the plant to determine just how much the plant effects the oxygen content of the stream and how much independent users affect it after plant effluent has been accounted for.

RALPH JOHNSTON, one of three trustees at the meeting and chairman of the public works department, announced a special committee meeting to be held Thursday to discuss flooding problems at Suncrest unit four, north of Lake and east of Circle Avenue.

The new pump for the lift station on Pleasant Street which had been promised by the manufacturer this week after two delays has not arrived.

In final motions the board passed a resolution of intent stating Bloomingdale would cooperate with studies done regarding the proposed $3 million county trunk line from Roselle to Glen Ellyn Heights.

Firemen To Hold Open House Day

An open house will be held at the Bensenville Fire Station from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Sunday in conjunction with National Fire Prevention Week, Oct. 4 through 11.

Movies on fire prevention and tours of the building will be going on continuously and a demonstration of fire extinguishers will take place at 11 a.m.

Balloons will be handed out and the name of poster contest winners will be announced. More than 1,500 posters urging fire prevention were entered in the contest by grade school children.

DURING THE last week, firemen Al Quinn and Walter Kehoe have shown films and given lectures at several schools in Bensenville. Fire Chief Armin Korthauer reported that the number of visitors to the station this week has been high.

The firemen will also celebrate the 75th anniversary of the company Oct. 19.

current line, unused, was partially paid for by residents who will not benefit from the CMD arrangement. Nottke was concerned about the possibility that abandonment of the line would bring legal problems to future users of the present line.

HE EXPLAINED that the existing line, a 27-inch main, is four feet too high in the ground, and that the new line would have to go directly under it.

"You tell me how we can do that without disturbing the present line," Nottke said to Petherbridge.

"I'd take the 27-inch line out and put a bigger one in," came the reply.

Further discussion revealed that future use by property owners affected by but not involved in the CMD line, would not add excessive load to the proposed new line.

Payment of the line would be through tap-on fees via the village to CMD. Those who have paid for the current line in part include "the Gould property and Roth Rubner."

WITH THAT, Petherbridge entered a motion which was eventually accepted by the board. It called for abandonment of the present line, and installation of a new line in its place, four feet lower in the ground. Those who had helped pay for the old line will not have to contribute to the new one, although usual tap on fees for new additions will be charged as usual.

Wood Dale To Hold Police Examinations

More patrolmen's examinations will be held in Wood Dale tomorrow afternoon as that community continues to rebuild its police force.

Several more men are needed in the wake of mass resignations by five policemen last month. The resignations followed a strike by most of the force during September and the filing of charges against officers who called in sick to protest wages and working conditions.

The department hired several new officers immediately prior to the resignations and is now seeking to fill out the force to its full strength of 10 men.

Springborn Dies On Jamaican Trip

Lawrence Springborn, DuPage County sheriff, died late Wednesday while on vacation in Jamaica. The cause of the death was listed as a heart attack.

Springborn, who was to have celebrated his 56th birthday tomorrow, served as county sheriff for two terms. He served from 1958 to 1962 and then served a term as county treasurer from 1962 to 1966. Under the laws of the state, a county sheriff cannot succeed himself in office.

A staunch conservative in Republican politics, Springborn was a top vote-getter and received his strongest support from older citizens and those of long residential standing in the county.

HE WAS EXPECTED to make a bid in the 1970 elections for another term as county treasurer, and was considered by many as a sure winner. His only political setback came in 1968 when he failed in a bid for the office of county coroner.

The announcement of his candidacy for treasurer was expected at a press conference scheduled for Oct. 17. Another press conference to be held today by Chief Deputy Wayne Shimp has been canceled. Speculation has been that Shimp intended to announce his candidacy for county sheriff to succeed Springborn.

Springborn, a lifelong resident of Naperville, also served as deputy sheriff for 16 years and as a constable in Naperville Township for 12 years.

As county sheriff, Springborn initiated the merit commission and a new training program which included police psychology. He was considered innovative and progressive by many.

ACTIVE IN BOTH Boy Scout and Girl Scout work, Springborn also served as a committeeman in Precinct 4 of Naperville for 28 years and retired as a lieutenant in the Naperville Fire Department after 24 years of service.

Springborn is survived by his widow, Jeanette; three sons, Larry Jr., 10, at home, Richard, 28, of Edmonton, Alberta, Canada, and James, 26, serving with the Army in California; daughter-in-law, Roberta, and a granddaughter, Stacy; a daughter Jeanne, 20, at home, and three brothers, Donald of Naperville and Howard and Glenn of Aurora.

The Springborns maintained their private home in Naperville, but lived in Wheaton in a residence at the county jail.

Under state statute, the DuPage County coroner is to execute the duties of the sheriff until a new chief is appointed. Dr. Samuel K. Lewis, DuPage County coroner, will be acting sheriff.

Funeral arrangements were incomplete yesterday. A spokesman for Freidrich's Funeral Home in Naperville said the home has not heard from Jamaican authorities on when Springborn's body will be returned here. The spokesman said the funeral could not possibly take place before Monday or Tuesday of next week.

NOISE Fight Set

by MARY DRESSER

Special to Paddock Publications

WASHINGTON — NOISE, a new committee to fight jet aircraft noise and insure safe environments, was formed yesterday following a hearing before the House Committee on Science and Astronautics. Bensenville's Village Pres. John Varble was named to the temporary steering committee which also includes Mayor William Goedike of Inglewood, Calif., supervisor Ralph Casco of Hempstead, N.Y. and Mayor Stanley Olson of Ridgely, Minn.

Varble and other political leaders from the northwest suburbs were appearing in Washington to focus legislative attention on the problems of jet noise at O'Hare Airport. During the two days of intensive meetings and policy-setting discussions, the representatives from various states met with their congressmen to plead for a concerned attack on the problem.

THE ILLINOIS delegation led by Varble, took its case to Rep. John Erlenborn and senators Charles Percy and Ralph Smith in meetings Tuesday, Wednesday and yesterday. Erlenborn said he would release a statement backing noise abatement.

Other representatives from Illinois include Dr. Ralph Madonia, William Warnock and George Franks of Wood Dale and Donald Connelly of Roselle.

The Illinois representatives met with both Percy and Smith in their offices on Wednesday.

"This is the biggest crowd I've had in my office since I arrived," joked Smith, the newly appointed senator to replace the late Sen. Everett Dirksen.

Smith said he will back federal action to cut jet noise in spite of his long-standing position opposing big government interference.

"IT IS NOT reasonably possible to keep the federal government out of this," he said. "I will cooperate in any conceivable way I can," he added.

Smith asked for a concise memorandum from the group outlining suggested solutions to the problem.

During the group's interview with Percy, the senator said he was confident an answer could be found to the noise problem.

Percy said he would be in the Chicago area this weekend and is ready and willing to hear citizens' complaints. The senator said he believes a third airport in the Chicago area might help eliminate the O'Hare noise problem, adding that at this time he favors an airport in the Joliet vicinity.

HE PROMISED he would immediately contact the Federal Aviation Agency and demand that the FAA release an overdue study on acceptable noise level standards. He also said he would contact Boeing, Douglas and Lockheed airplane manufacturers to discover what each company is doing to solve the problem of noise.

"I'll tell them they're going to have a tough time getting contracts if they don't do it," he said grimly.

Throughout the two days of meetings, representatives of the FAA were conspicuously absent. During the public hearing, supervisor Casco charged, "This is an FAA boycott and it's an insult. Even an underling could have been sent."

Clifton F. vonKann of the Air Transport Association of America estimated it would cost the airlines approximately $800 million to put noise-reducing devices on the airplanes now in existence. He also said it would take four to five years to do the job and could not promise noise would be re-

Tempers Flare Up Over Sewer Issue

Tempers were frayed a bit on the usually diplomatic Itasca Village Board Tuesday night as the panel went another round of planning on the Prospect-Thorndale sewer line, supposedly nearing conclusion.

The line, to be financed by the Central Manufacturing District, can't be built until a contract between CMD and the village defining mutual efforts is completed.

As discussion of one of Mayor Will Nottke's favorite projects continued, Trustee Roy Petherbridge suggested that because the board is not aware of the complete situation, the matter should be discussed later.

USUALLY DIPLOMATIC, Nottke blasted the trustee for the remark.

"I have no idea what's going on," Petherbridge said during the course of discussion.

"Well, maybe you ought to be excused from the conversation," Nottke said.

Petherbridge was complaining about complexities in the contract and planning.

Nottke maintained that the matter is "simple." He was seeking a recommendation from the board about an existing but unused line along the same route as the new proposed sewer.

Nottke suggested abandonment of the line, but pointed out potential legal problems involved. Petherbridge finally gave up trying to figure out what was going on and suggested that other courses of action be taken.

THESE INCLUDED a meeting to clarify the entire project or having those involved in the planning — primarily Nottke and Village Atty. Lawrence Traeger — determine the best course of action for the entire project and bring the whole package back to the board for approval.

Nottke, angry with the comment, began to explain further, bringing a fresh batch of questions about the proposed sewer line from the rest of the board.

Again Petherbridge pointed out confusion: "We're talking about the last 200 feet of a sewer line. How about the first 2,000 feet? You've been working day and night on this; perhaps you should figure out what needs to be done and then bring back the whole thing to the board."

NOTTKE RETORTED, "What do you want? If we talk about it you say we shouldn't, and if we don't talk about it you complain."

Petherbridge said he wasn't trying to offend anyone, and repeated the suggestion.

"Look," Nottke fumed, "I make a lot of decisions about this village every day you don't even know about."

Petherbridge responded, "You've tried to bring this to a point. You're asking the board to approve part of a project when we don't know what the total project is."

The particulars appeared to be that the

JOHN D. VARBLE

Itasca Fights Noise Battle In Home Area

While Bensenville Mayor John Varble and representatives of the O'Hare Area Noise and Air Pollution Abatement Council are seeking to bend influential ears in Washington, D.C., the Village of Itasca is content to work through congressmen and senators.

Noting an expression of thanks from Council Chairman George Franks, Itasca Mayor Will Nottke said his community didn't send anyone to Washington because "we already have a representative there — John Erlenborn." Erlenborn is the congressman from the 14th district, including DuPage and Will counties.

Trustee Roy Petherbridge loosed an attack on the efforts of Varble, commenting that the Bensenville mayor is seeking headlines.

"EVEN THOUGH he's a personal friend of mine," the trustee said, "Varble is a Johnny-come-lately to the problem (of air and noise pollution)."

"He went running off to Washington, but he hasn't done his homework. You get results through the sort of action we took, and not by wielding headlines."

Petherbridge was referring to a resolution passed by the Itasca Village Board calling on Sen. Charles Percy to initiate legislation that would curb noise and air pollution from O'Hare International Airport.

Franks is representing the council of 19 communities who wrote the resolution, while Varble is representing the Village of Bensenville.

Village Beat

Syd Jamieson

Now that voters of Wood Dale School Dist. 7 have sanctioned a $250,000 bond issue and a $425,000 interest-free loan from the Illinois Building Commission, residents of the Wood Dale area have once again shown that, in spite of some kidding, they can get things done.

This is more than some of the neighboring communities and other school districts have achieved lately.

And there will be more of this in the future as Wood Dale's burgeoning population buckles down and meets the challenge of the needs the community will face, whether it be educational in both parochial and public schools, or at the local government level.

WOOD DALE OVER the years has weathered defeat, but lately the pendulum has swung to the other side.

Sure, it could swing the other way, but for the present the citizenry of Wood Dale has taken the bit and is running with it.

Residents will admit taxes are creeping up, but where aren't they?

Where else do you find a 60 per cent discount to water users who pay their quarterly bills on time?

How would your community like to get bone gratis two new fire engines — one a snorkel — and a site for a new fire station?

WHERE ELSE HAVE the residents experienced an additional sewage treatment plant without a bond issue? The same is true for an additional water reservoir.

Where else has the community received a land donation on which to build a new village hall and perhaps a community recreational center, let alone nearly a quarter of a million dollars in cold cash from which it will build a community swimming pool?

Poor little old Wood Dale — that's what some people have been saying.

Where else has a community paid for a street-widening program out of its own treasury without state or federal highway funds allocated for that purpose?

SURE, PART OF THE funding comes from motor fuel tax allotments, but the rest is from local financing.

Poor little old Wood Dale — that's what some people have been saying.

What about the new village hall now under construction? Who paid for that facility? Sure, it was village funds, but what about the interest that has been saved by paying cash rather than through a bond issue?

Who started the ball rolling to get neighboring villages together to form a noise abatement council to fight what one local resident called "Jet-itis?"

SOME COMMUNITIES may say they were in the fight long before little old Wood Dale, but it was little old Wood Dale who got everyone together as a group to coordinate a plan of action. And it appears that the council with its appointed representatives and committee members are moving in for real and not just for words.

People will forget these things and look more toward the other side of the ledger, like its recent problems with scavengers and local police force or its running battle with Georgetown.

But things may settle down, and Georgetown has been a boon to Wood Dale, particularly from the municipal sales tax received each month by the village.

A few years back the monthly take was less than $1,500. Today it's around $8,000 and is growing all the time. The increase has been due primarily to Georgetown Square, now in its third phase of construction.

Poor little old Wood Dale, that's what some people have been saying!

Smith, Percy Promise Support

duced significantly to pacify the communities involved.

VONKANN PRODUCED several suggestions which he said the airlines would find acceptable. He said the airlines are now working to reduce the noise at its source by redesigning and modifying aircraft engines.

The airlines also would be willing to attempt reducing people's exposure to noise by using noise abatement methods which would keep airplanes at a further distance from the ground, vonKann added.

The aircraft spokesman said this would require a certain degree of limitations on flight.

VONKANN threw part of the noise problem into the laps of the citizens by saying aircraft modifications would not completely solve the problem until residents in the area made efforts to insulate buildings and houses against noise, and control the use of land under departure and arrival paths.

He said that conditions around O'Hare airport are substantially better than conditions near other major airports in the country because land use control has been applied.

"EXAMINATION OF aerial photographs show that land near the (O'Hare) airport has been built up but it has largely been for noise-compatible industrial use rather than residential," he said.

He also pointed out that airports bring a steady rise in land values. For example, the city of Chicago originally acquired the land for O'Hare in 1947 at a cost as low as $400 per acre.

By 1960, the cost of neighboring farm land needed for airport expansion had risen to $20,000 per acre. Today, he said, the cost is as high as $50,000 per acre.

"We ask the communities affected by aircraft noise to recognize and accept their responsibility for requiring land use compatible with noise exposure under flight paths used for landings and take-offs by nearby airports," vonKann said.

"MEANINGFUL reduction in aircraft noise annoyance cannot be achieved without this community action," vonKann concluded.

"This is white-wash we have all heard before," answered Rep. Joseph C. DiCarlo, D-Mass. The audience roared its approval to his statement.

"You talk about land compatibility," charged DiCarlo, "these residential areas were there before the airports. You have complete disregard for people who live in the area."

DiCarlo charged the airlines have shown no cooperation or concern for the lives of people in the vicinity and insisted that the fight for noise abatement was a fight against a powerful lobby.

RALPH E. SIRIANNI, also D-Mass., charged that the runways at airports have extended to accommodate jets and not to reduce noise as vonKann had suggested. VonKann denied the statement.

During the organizational part of the committee meeting, an attempt was made by representatives of various towns to pass a resolution opposing further government financing of supersonic transport planes. After discussion on the topic, it was tabled and referred to a committee to be chosen by Goedike and Casco.

Introduce Jet Noise Bill

Washington — A new bill was introduced in Congress yesterday to return power and control to the states and localities in the fight against jet noise. The bill would remain in effect until the Federal Aviation Agency sets standards for the noise level. The purpose of the bill is to force the FAA to take immediate action.

Congressman John W. Wylder, R-Nassau County, New York, introduced the bill at a special meeting on Capitol Hill of state and local officials from all across the United States.

The Wylder bill on jet noise is designed to amend P190-411 which was passed in 1968. The original bill allowed the FAA to issue regulations limiting the jet noise.

"The original legislation was sponsored by me," Wylder said, "and it was an important first step in the fight against jet noise."

HE ADDED, "Unfortunately, no rules or regulations have been issued by the FAA to date. Until they are issued, the law will be of no help to those suffering from the problem of jet noise."

The bill would return to local authorities the right to make and enforce rules and regulations controlling jet noise and sonic boom until such time as the FAA issued its regulations.

At the present time, the FAA is in the process of considering limitations on the jet noise allowable by aircraft now in production but not yet flying, the so-called jumbo jets.

The research being done in that field will not affect present aircraft which are flying over local areas and causing the noise problem, Wylder said. He added that his bill would fill this gap by giving local areas the power to protect their citizens.

WYDLER ANNOUNCED his bill at a special conference called in Washington by Supervisor Ralph Casco of Hempstead, N.Y., and attended by Chicago area officials from suburbs surrounding O'Hare Field. Among those present at the conference was Bensenville Village Pres. John Varble who was named to a special committee to study the problems of noise from aircraft.

Varble was expected back in Bensenville Thursday night in time to address the board of trustees on his findings. While in Washington, he also met with Sen. Charles Percy and Ralph Smith and Rep. John Erlenborn. All three pledged their support of programs which would put federal limitations on jet noise.

Even Smith, who is normally opposed to any kind of big government interference, said he felt, "It's not reasonably possible to keep the federal government out of this."

Clark Refuses Job

The prime candidate for the job of village administrator in Wood Dale has declined the job, it was announced yesterday.

Barry Clark, currently an assistant village manager in the Trenton, N.J., area, accepted another position on the east coast, according to Village Councilman Dino Janis.

Janis said yesterday there were "reasons other than money" listed by Clark in turning down Wood Dale's offer.

The candidate had been offered $12,000 plus a variety of fringe benefits totaling more than the offer made by the unnamed choice of Clark, Janis said.

JANIS SAID THE next step is "to start all over again" in the search for a village administrator. He added that this time the village council will play a greater role in advertising, application review and screening of interested persons than was previously done.

Janis was clearly disappointed in what he called "procrastination" of the special screening committee set up by the council when it was agreed to hire an administrator. About four months' time was used in the selection process, Janis said.

The committee and the council interviewed eight applicants and narrowed the field to Clark last Saturday. Janis earlier this week expressed some confidence that Clark would come to Wood Dale.

"NOW WE START ALL over again, advertising for a village administrator," the councilman said yesterday, "and this time the council will play a more active role in the selection of a candidate."

He did not define the role precisely, but it seems clear that the screening committee will be working with the council, rather than independently.

What effect it will have on committee members is not certain.

Start Sewage Treatment Plant Design

At a calm, short, and poorly attended Bloomingdale Village Board meeting Wednesday night, trustees concentrated on sewer and water problems.

Ralph F. Gross, village engineer, reported the plans for the trunk sewers have been laid out and the lines are properly oversized for the entire village. He will now proceed with the design for the sewage treatment plant.

Gross also made an optimistic report on the village's existing sewage plant. A recent 14-day meter check indicated the plant's intake had increased 10,000 gallons per day within the last two years. The plant which was built for a maximum of 200,000 gallons of water per day is now handling 135,000 gallons per day.

HOWEVER, CONDITION of the effluent

after treatment rather than amount of flow, is the main concern of the state sanitary water board, Gross said.

The Bloomingdale plant's effluent meets state standards, he added, citing results from recent tests done by Larry Freier, superintendent of public works.

Freier will conduct more tests on the content of the stream on which the plant is located. He will collect samples both upstream and downstream from the plant to determine just how much the plant effects the oxygen content of the stream and how much independent users affect it after plant effluent has been accounted for.

RALPH JOHNSTON, one of three trustees at the meeting and chairman of the public works department, announced a special committee meeting to be held Thursday to discuss flooding problems at Suncrest unit four, north of Lake and east of Circle Avenue.

The new pump for the lift station on Pleasant Street which had been promised by the manufacturer this week after two delays has not arrived.

In final motions the board passed a resolution of intent stating Bloomingdale would cooperate with studies done regarding the proposed $3 million county trunk line from Roselle to Glen Ellyn Heights.

Firemen To Hold Open House Day

An open house will be held at the Bensenville Fire Station from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Sunday in conjunction with National Fire Prevention Week, Oct. 4 through 11.

Movies on fire prevention and tours of the building will be going on continuously and a demonstration of fire extinguishers will take place at 11 a.m.

Balloons will be handed out and the name of poster contest winners will be announced. More than 1,500 posters urging fire prevention were entered in the contest by grade school children.

DURING THE last week, firemen Al Quinn and Walter Kehoe have shown films and given lectures at several schools in Bensenville. Fire Chief Armin Korthauer reported that the number of visitors to the station this week has been high.

The firemen will also celebrate the 75th anniversary of the company Oct. 19.

Sewer Talk Gets Heated

current line, unused, was partially paid for by residents who will not benefit from the CMD arrangement. Nottke was concerned about the possibility that abandonment of the line would bring legal problems to future users of the present line.

HE EXPLAINED that the existing line, a 27-inch main, is four feet too high in the ground, and that the new line would have to go directly under it.

"You tell me how we can do that without disturbing the present line," Nottke said to Petherbridge.

"I'd take the 27-inch line out and put a bigger one in," came the reply.

Further discussion revealed that future use by property owners affected by but not involved in the CMD line, would not add excessive load to the proposed new line.

Payment of the line would be through tap-on fees via the village to CMD. Those who have paid for the current line in part include "the Gould property and Roth Rubber."

WITH THAT, Petherbridge entered a motion which was eventually accepted by the board. It called for abandonment of the present line, and installation of a new line in its place, four feet lower in the ground. Those who had helped pay for the old line will not have to contribute to the new one, although usual tap on fees for new additions will be charged as usual.

Wood Dale To Hold Police Examinations

More patrolmen's examinations will be held in Wood Dale tomorrow afternoon as that community continues to rebuild its police force.

Several more men are needed in the wake of mass resignations by five policemen last month. The resignations followed a strike by most of the force during September and the filing of charges against officers who called in sick to protest wages and working conditions.

The department hired several new officers immediately prior to the resignations and is now seeking to fill out the force to its full strength of 10 men.

CHICAGO — An order for 2,000 Illinois National Guardsmen to stand by for duty in Chicago to cope with disturbances by demonstrators was issued yesterday by Gov. Richard Ogilvie.

The move to bulwark Chicago's defense against demonstrators came on the second day of a threatened four-day protest led by a militant faction of the Students for a Democratic Society.

Year's a Record Breaker

TWO MEN WERE KILLED in a three-car collision on Central Road, just west of Busse Road, in Mount Prospect early yesterday. The death vehicle, pictured above, was driven by Gary Spohn, 22, who recently moved from Buffalo Grove to Kansas. Both Spohn and a passenger, David Bethards, 23, of Racine, Wis., were killed instantly. Two others were seriously injured in the crash. Police said Spohn's car was traveling nearly 100 miles an hour at the time of impact.

Two Men Killed in Two-Car Collision

Two men were killed and two others seriously injured in a two-car collision on Central Road just west of Busse Road in Mount Prospect early yesterday.

Marine Lt. Gary Spohn, 22, a Vietnam veteran who recently moved from Buffalo Grove to Kansas, was pronounced dead on arrival at Northwest Community Hospital. A passenger in Spohn's car, 23-year-old David Bethards of Racine, Wis. was also killed in the crash.

Lee Cunningham, 27, of Rolling Meadows, is listed in serious condition at Northwest Community Hospital after the car he was driving apparently collided with Spohn's car. Both cars were traveling westbound on Central Road, according to police.

POLICE ESTIMATED that Spohn was driving in the outer lane at approximately 100 miles per hour when Cunningham's car, traveling at a low rate of speed, drifted into the outer lane and collided with Spohn's car.

Police estimated from evidence found at the scene of the accident, that Spohn's car jumped the northwest curb of the parkway, struck a fire hydrant and flipped over one and a half times before hitting a tree 278 feet from the crash.

A second passenger in Spohn's auto, Edward Springhoff, 22, of Kenosha, Wis., is listed in serious condition with multiple injuries at Holy Family Hospital in Des Plaines.

DEBRIS FROM THE collision struck a third vehicle driven by Paul Dumke, 21, of Arlington Heights. Dumke told police he was traveling east on Central Road near the Bruning Co. plant when he heard an explosion and then his car was hit with debris from the accident.

Dumke, who was not injured, told police he did not see the cars collide.

For Wooley The War Is Over

by TOM JACHIMIEC
Former Army Specialist Jerry Wooley just returned from a trip to "hell." The 21-year-old, softspoken ex-GI recently completed a 14½-month tour of duty in Vietnam.

Last Friday he came home to his folks house at 502 Woodview, Elk Grove Township. He is separated from active duty now and for him the war is over.

"I'M GLAD to be home," said Wooley, "A lot others would be glad too if we'd pull out."

His last comment is indicative of how Wooley feels about the entire situation in Vietnam.

He hates it and says it's a mess. He also hates the army and the career soldiers it is made up of. But he also realizes he got himself into it by enlisting for three years, something he'd never do again. "I think it's a worthless cause," Wooley said. "The South Vietnamese want total victory, but they don't want to fight for it."

Swimming Classes Are Still Not Full

Most of the swim classes have openings at the Elk Grove Park District, according to Jack Bolger, aquatics director.

The swimming lessons program seems to be the one most lacking in registrants. "There was an error in the fall and winter program sent to the residents which gave the starting date as Dec. 11," Bolger explained.

The program, which provides four lesson periods each Saturday at 10 and 11 a.m. and 1 and 2 p.m., begins tomorrow.

The park district also offers a competitive swim program, adult lessons, synchronized swim classes, recreational swimming, a teen social swim and sauna facilities for adults.

THE COMPETITIVE swim program is open to youngsters 8-years-old and up. Practice is daily, Monday through Friday, from 4:45 to 5 p.m. "Anyone interested can try out any day at 4:30 p.m. They should check with the person in charge of the pool that day," Bolger said.

Bill Hlavin is coaching the team which is scheduled to host two Amateur Athletic Union (AAU) meets this winter. Team members must have a season pass.

Adult swimming lessons, beginning Monday, are scheduled for Monday or Wednesday evenings from 8:30 to 9:30 p.m. "We have openings on both days but many for the Monday session," Bolger said. Adult lessons cost $5 for the session from Oct. 11 to Dec. 20.

The synchronized swim classes, or water ballet for girls, are held every Saturday morning at 9 a.m. Lessons are $5.

Bolger announced that the pool is open every afternoon and evening for recreation swimming. It is open Monday through Friday from 4:30 to 4:45 p.m., Saturday from 3 to 5 p.m., and Sunday from 2 to 4 p.m. It is open all evenings from 7 to 8:30 p.m. The price is $1.50 for adults and 75 cents for children.

A TEEN SOCIAL swim every Friday evening from 8:30 to 9:30 p.m. opens the pool to teens only during this hour.

Adult-only swims are scheduled for Tuesdays and Thursdays from 8:30 to 9:30 p.m. Sessions are the regular $1.50 fee.

Sauna baths which are part of the new indoor facilities are for adult use only at no fee. "They must pay the daily swim fee or have a membership pass for the pool, but there will be no additional fee," Bolger explained.

Single membership season's passes are $9. Family season passes are $20. The season ends June 1.

LIGHTS ERECTED — Flood lights for the Elk Grove High School football field finally arrived and were being erected Thursday. Planned to light the field for the first game of the season, the lights were delayed in transportation. They will be ready for the Grenadier's last home game Oct. 17 against Palatine. The lights were financed by the Green and Gold Lights Inc., a group of parents who organized activities to raise funds for the lights.

VIETNAM VETERAN Jerry "Butch" Wooley returned home one week ago after having been overseas for 14½ months. Wooley surprised his parents by arriving home before they could put up a large "Welcome Home" sign in front of their residence at 502 Woodview, Elk Grove Township.

Bookstore Bookie Booked

by BARRY SIGALE
Palatine police Wednesday closed down a local bookmaker whose yearly intake ranged from $45,000 to $75,000.
Charged with keeping a gambling place was Arthur Ziarkowski, of 4907 Bluebird Court, Crystal Lake. He is the owner of the Palatine Book Shop, where police said bets were taken on horse races.
They estimated that between $150 and $250 in bets were taken in each day for five days a week and possibly six.
In a raid on the book store, police confiscated 12 betting slips, containing names of three or four horses running at Belmont, Hawthorne and other race tracks throughout the country, according to Robert Centner, police chief.
ALSO PICKED UP was over $200 in cash, which was apparently taken in from bettors and kept separate from the cash register, which held the day's receipts, police said.

Wednesday, police questioned some of the persons involved in placing bets, which apparently was only conducted in person, and from that information they had one of the bettors make another bet while they waited for the transaction to occur.
The man went inside, exchanged his money with Ziarkowski for betting slips and the police followed to make the arrest. The bettor then showed police where the book was located containing other betting slips.
Centner said there was no evidence that Ziarkowski was involved with a syndicate operation and that no pickup man was observed at any time.
"AS FAR AS WE KNOW, he was only making bets on horse racing. There is no indication that he had anything to do with football or baseball gambling."

Ziarkowski was released after posting 10 per cent of the $300 bond. He is scheduled to appear in Arlington Heights court Nov. 7.
Police said they began their investigation of the bookstore this spring and noted that the same persons had been seen each day entering and leaving the store. Their license numbers were recorded and the surveillance continued until the Arlington race track opened.
According to Centner, fewer persons who were coming in from day to day came to the store after the track opened, probably because bets could be placed directly.
The investigation was then resumed, according to police, when the track closed. Plainclothes officers failed in an attempt to place bets at the store, Centner said, indicating that betting was closed to the general public.
THE SAME ROUTINE was repeated after the track closed. There were a few hard-core bettors coming in every day, some twice a week, said Centner. Photographs were taken of the people who came in regularly.
"As long as scratch sheets keep coming out," said Centner, "and bettors can get this information daily, we are going to get this sort of set up. If they didn't get this information, we could stop this from happening."
Several members of the police department were involved in the investigation, which was led by Lt. Frank Ortiz and Sgt. Walter Schoenfeld.
Ziarkowski owned the book store for about three or four years, according to Centner. The store is located at Palatine Road and Bothwell.

Fire Prevention Is Planned

The following story on the Elk Grove Village Fire Prevention Bureau was prepared by Lt. Charles Henlel in conjunction with fire prevention week Oct. 5-11.
Fire-safe design and construction starts on the drafting board.
Items that must be taken into consideration are the height, area, construction and interior finish, exit facilities, type of structural assemblies, type of occupancy, and fire protection features such as sprinklers.
Also, standpipes and extinguishers, exposure protection, access around the building for firefighting and the ability of the local fire department to handle any potential fire that might develop in the building.
The Elk Grove Village Fire Department bureau of fire prevention reviews building plans to see that all of the items are taken into consideration when a building is constructed.
Through cooperation with the building department all plans for new buildings, additions and alterations for other than one and two family dwellings are submitted to the bureau for review and comment.
MANY TIMES THE building department and the bureau of fire prevention meet with architects, builders and developers to assist them in designing fire safety into their buildings so that when the final plans are submitted all the necessary fire safety features are designed into the building.
The prime concern in designing buildings for life safety is adequate exits. Can the people get out of the building in an emergency?

This becomes a real problem with the large one-story buildings that are being constructed in the village.
More and more demands are being made for this type of building and the bureau must always be evaluating what are reasonable limits that will still provide safe exiting in terms of lengths of travel and the amount of time it takes to get out of a building.
MANY OTHER FEATURES must be designed into a building which greatly affect fire safety.
Another consideration which must be included is to provide adequate space around the buildings and openings such as windows and doors to provide access for firefighting operations. Proper fire separations within the buildings help to confine a fire thus making it easier for the fire department to put out the fire.
There are many new concepts and ideas being used in building designs which are being brought about by the ever expanding economy. These designs are greatly increasing the fire dangers in some buildings.
"Center core design" and "unlimited area" are two that come to mind.
In center core design we find that there are only two exits located in the center of the building. In most cases these exits are located approximately 10 to 20 feet apart.
A fire emergency in the center core area results in the people not being able to use the exits and people could become trapped in the building.
UNLIMITED AREA buildings provide massive structures with tremendous undivided floor areas all under one roof. This provides for large losses to goods and merchandise and creates extreme problems in firefighting operations.
The Bureau of Fire Prevention works with developers, contractors and builders to provide fire safe buildings keeping in mind what kind of design will provide the most economic investment for them as well as the taxpayers living in the village.
A building designed with adequate fire detection and extinguishing systems properly inspected four times a year will provide one of the best investments for Elk Grove Village.
Fire Prevention is your Best Investment as a taxpayer.

For Wooley The War Is Over

there is really messed up. There's so much money being wasted."
The black market, Wooley says, is really something. It's costing Americans a fortune.
"Any money from the black market eventually ends up in Communist hands," says Wooley, adding that most of the goods sold in the black market have been stolen from the United States.
"There's also a lot of people who are right in the U.S. who are getting richer because we're over there," he said.
"I HEARD ON television last night that we're spending $36 billion on the war. We could be doing a lot over here with that money."
Wooley said, "The Vietnamese don't give a damn about the Americans."
"The people over there won't do anything for themselves. I noted on various occasions where they don't want to fight. They run the other way."
Wooley believes any continued troop involvement in Viet Nam is only prolonging the war. Even if the Americans did pull out all at once, Wooley says, the Communists would take over in one week.
A helicopter scout-observer, Wooley spent many a day flying over the jungles of Viet Nam, mostly in the central highlands near Pleiku and Anson, outside of Qui Nhon, and in the Anlow Valley.
What he experienced he didn't like.
He lost some friends in combat, something he says one has to get used to in war.
For 5½ months he was one of a crew of four whose job was to "find the gooks," the GI's term for the Viet Cong.
"WE FLEW as close to the ground as we could get to find out what they were doing and where they were living," Wooley said.
"We'd look for their hooches and trails and decide how long they lived there. We'd watch to see if they set up a pattern."

At times, Wooley said, the helicopter was fired upon.
"We fired back," he said. "We were really exceptionally lucky, mainly because the gooks didn't aim when they shot. They saw us coming and they were just scared."
He added that quite a few helicopters were shot down.
Many times the Viet Cong would hide their casualties to make it difficult for Americans to get an accurate body count.
"I REMEMBER shooting one gook," Wooley said. "By the time we made the turn to confirm the kill, his body was gone."
One mission he flew was to check for bomb damage.

"Bombing kept Charlie awake all night," Wooley said. Other than that, he didn't think it did any good.
On the go from 12 to 18 hours a day, seven days a week was bad enough, said Wooley. What he hated most was the harassment he said the enlisted men had thrown at them from "lifers" or career soldiers.
Wooley said he couldn't see any sense to the "silly inspections" and jobs the enlisted men would be given after a hard day in the field.
WOOLEY ADMITS he had a bitter hate for the career men.
"It was ridiculous. all the harassment," Wooley said. "I couldn't see any sense to it, because we were at war."

Warman Backers Organize

A local group to elect Democrat Edward Warman to Congress is being formed in Elk Grove Village.
The group, called Independent Citizens of Elk Grove for the Election of Edward Warman to Congress, is being formed into a committee by Daniel Gilbert, Elk Grove Park District board member.
"I am not endorsing Warman in my capacity as a public official, but as an individual," Gilbert stressed.
"The committee is being formed to offer an alternative for Republicans and individuals who feel that the Republican candidate will not truly represent their views in Congress."
"IT WILL STRESS positive programs advocated by Warman in areas of suburban transportation problems, the fight against inflation and the Vietnam War, he explained.
Gilbert said he formulated the idea of a Warman committee after looking over Tuesday's election results. The Republican primary Tuesday was won by Phillip Crane, a conservative from Winnetka Warman is from Skokie.

Gilbert said if people of the district would take the time to study the diametrically opposed viewpoints of the two candidates, Warman would emerge as the winner in November.
"I am asking those who wish to work for the election of Warman to call 437-5087," Gilbert said.

Mrs. Jicha Adds Political Feathers to Hat

by ED MURNANE

Two new feathers have been added to the political bonnet of Mrs. Glen-Ann Jicha of Palatine within the past few weeks.

The first was the appointment of the Palatine Township Republican committeewoman to the post of Illinois Director of Heritage Groups for the Republican National Committee by Mrs. Hope McCormick, Republican National Committeewoman from Illinois.

And the second was this week's Republican primary victory by Philip M. Crane of Winnetka.

Mrs. Jicha, already one of this area's most well-known Republican women by virtue of her service as an alternate delegate to the 1968 Republican National Convention in Miami, is chairman of the woman's division of the Crane for Congress committee.

SHE CALLED Crane's victory a "people's election."

"He won without a single newspaper endorsement," Mrs. Jicha said. "The newspapers were out talking to the politicians and to each other, not to the people, and the people elected Phil."

Crane has been more than "just another candidate to support" for Mrs. Jicha.

She met the handsome conservative professor in 1964 when both were working for Sen. Barry Goldwater in his bid for President and the Crane and Jicha families have been close friends ever since.

"We visit each other quite a bit," Mrs. Jicha said. "Phil and his family spent Labor Day weekend with us and it was a real joy to see him enjoy himself by playing basketball with the boys and golf with Art (her husband) without the constant ringing of the telephone."

GLEN-ANN NOT only directed the woman's campaign for Crane, she also was one of the reasons he chose to seek the GOP nomination for Congress.

She, and others, urged him to run, and the first major boost his campaign received was his endorsement by the Palatine Township Republican Organization.

Mrs. Jicha was one of the backbones behind that endorsement and, as Crane himself has admitted, the organization endorsement gave his campaign "the legitimacy needed to get the ball rolling."

Palatine Township had been expected to endorse Samuel Young of Glenview but gave the nod to Crane after several ballots. Had Young been endorsed, chances are Crane would not be gearing up a campaign against Democrat Edward Warman right now. Crane defeated Young by 2,100 votes in Palatine Township, and that was the exact margin he defeated the runner-up Young throughout the district.

MRS. JICHA SEES "a long future of representing the 13th District" for Crane. She predicted the wounds of the primary will be held by the next primary in March, and said one of Crane's objectives would be to build the party strength throughout the district.

That "other" feature — Mrs. Jicha's appointment to the Heritage Groups division of the national party — is going to keep her pretty busy throughout the state.

The purpose of the committee is to get immigrant and first and second generation Americans active in the government and political process of the United States.

There are two national meetings each year in Washington, which Mrs. Jicha must attend, and two state meetings a year which she must organize and direct.

THE JICHA'S have been active in Palatine Township politics since the late 1950's when they moved to the township from Evanston.

They worked in the Nixon campaign in 1960 and worked for former committeeman Alex MacArthur in 1962. When he was elected, he appointed Mrs. Jicha committeewoman, a position she has held ever since.

But politics hasn't been her only inter-

Group Sets Plans

Educators and ministers from the Lake Park High School Dist. 108 area met yesterday to discuss methods of attacking drug abuse in the community before it becomes a serious problem.

The meeting, called by Dist. 108 Supt. Carl Forrester, concluded with plans for definite action on the issue and the prospect that the group will become active in other important community matters.

The group of 20 ministers and elementary school superintendents, designated Forrester to appoint a committee which will begin researching various ways a narcotics education program could be instituted in the schools.

ON NOV. 13, the study committee will report back to the group which will review its tentative findings. Forrester said he would appoint the committee today.

No Lake Park students have been found in the school under the influence of drugs or with possession of drugs, Forrester told the group, but he added, "We would be naive if we thought the problem doesn't exist."

Forrester went on to describe the Lake Park area as "relatively free of the problem and unusually fortunate because of this." His original purpose in calling the group together was to establish "some type of coordinated community activity, including the churches and schools."

MEMBERS OF THE group agreed steps had to be taken and initiated at the elementary school level. Another consideration of a community-wide program would be reaching the parents. Many parents are unable to recognize the symptoms of drug usage and their children can become addicts without parental knowledge.

Besides learning the medical and technical aspects of drugs, the program could help parents understand why their children resort to drugs.

Although he had no formal statistics, Forrester said he knew from talking with high school superintendents that approximately 75 per cent of the schools in the Northwest suburbs have serious drug problems.

LAST YEAR a program for Lake Park and its coterminous elementary school districts sponsored by the National Council for the Prevention of Drug Addiction was canceled because the organization's regional representative was discredited by a court conviction.

The program, which brought in former addicts to talk to the students on their level, advising them of the hazards of drug usage, is supposedly very reputable, Forrester said, but he doubted whether the community or schools would accept it.

The study committee's job will be to look for or formulate a substitute program on drug education.

Dialogue between the various community leaders was so fruitful, the group expressed a desire to meet regularly as a coordinating body to discuss social and community issues ranging from alcoholism and sex to land development and planning.

Local Band Competition

Jobs, jobs, jobs, will be the topic of discussion at the Jobs Fair Sunday at the Northwest Opportunity Center in Rolling Meadows. The fair will be from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Representatives from approximately 20 companies in the northwest suburbs will be there to talk with low-income persons concerning employment and training programs.

The fair will be the first of this type to be held in this area, according to Don Maldonado, director of the Opportunity Center.

"Each company will have a separate booth at the center, where representatives can talk about employment opportunities," he said. "The emphasis will be on discussing company training programs."

The fair is sponsored by the Opportunity Center, the Manpower Division of the Cook County Office of Economic Opportunity, the local Headstart Office and the Illinois State Employment Service.

HERE ARE some things in which the skill of well-trained, long-experienced hands excels anything that modern machinery can contrive. High among these is the art of fine tailoring . . . tailoring as performed by the devoted craftsmen who create for us the masterworks known as Hickey-Freeman Customized® Clothes. To Fight Noise with NOISE

by MARY DRESSER
Special to Padlock Publications

WASHINGTON — NOISE, a new committee to fight jet aircraft noise and insure safe environments, was formed yesterday following a hearing before the House Committee on Science and Astronautics. Bensenville's Village Pres. John Varble was named to the temporary steering committee which also includes Mayor William Goedike of Inglewood, Calif., supervisor Ralph Casco of Hempstead, N.Y., and Mayor Stanley Olson of Ridgely, Minn.

Varble and other political leaders from the northwest suburbs were appearing in Washington to focus legislative attention on the problems of jet noise at O'Hare Airport. During the two days of intensive meetings and policy-setting discussions, the representatives from various states met with their congressmen to plead for a concerned attack on the problem.

THE ILLINOIS delegation led by Varble, took its case to Rep. John Erlenborn and senators Charles Percy and Ralph Smith in meetings Tuesday, Wednesday and yesterday. Erlenborn said he would release a statement backing noise abatement.

Other representatives from Illinois include Dr. Ralph Madonia, William Warnock and George Franks of Wood Dale and Donald Connelly of Roselle.

The Illinois representatives met with both Percy and Smith in their offices on Wednesday.

"This is the biggest crowd I've had in my office since I arrived," joked Smith, the newly appointed senator to replace the late Sen. Everett Dirksen.

Smith said he will back federal action to cut jet noise in spite of his long-standing position opposing "big government interference."

"IT IS NOT reasonably possible to keep the federal government out of this," he said. "I will cooperate in any conceivable way I can," he added.

Smith asked for a concise memorandum from the group outlining suggested solutions to the problem.

During the group's interview with Percy, the senator said he was confident an answer could be found to the noise problem.

Percy said he would be in the Chicago area this weekend and is ready and willing to hear citizens' complaints. The senator said he believes a third airport in the Chicago area might help eliminate the O'Hare noise problem, adding that at this time he favors an airport in the Joliet vicinity.

HE PROMISED he would immediately contact the Federal Aviation Agency and demand that the FAA release an overdue study on acceptable noise level standards. He also said he would contact Boeing, Douglas and Lockheed airplane manufacturers to discover what each company is doing to solve the problem of noise.

"I'll tell them they're going to have a tough time getting contracts if they don't do it," he said grimly.

Throughout the two days of meetings, representatives of the FAA were conspicuously absent. During the public hearing, supervisor Casco charged, "This is an FAA boycott and it's an insult. Even an underling could have been sent."

Clifton F. vonKann of the Air Transport Association of America estimated it would cost the airlines approximately $800 million to put noise-reducing devices on the airplanes now in existence. He also said it would take four to five years to do the job and could not promise noise would be reduced significantly to pacify the communities involved.

VONKANN PRODUCED several suggestions which he said the airlines would find acceptable. He said the airlines are now working to reduce the noise at its source by redesigning and modifying aircraft engines.

The airlines also would be willing to attempt reducing people's exposure to noise by using noise abatement methods which would keep airplanes at a further distance from the ground, vonKann added.

The aircraft spokesman said this would require a certain degree of limitations on flight.

VonKann threw part of the noise problem into the laps of the citizens by saying aircraft modifications would not completely solve the problem until residents in the area made efforts to insulate buildings and houses against noise, and control the use of land under departure and arrival paths.

He said that conditions around O'Hare airport are substantially better than conditions near other major airports in the country because land use control has been applied.

"EXAMINATION OF aerial photographs show that land near the (O'Hare) airport has been built up but it has largely been for noise-compatible industrial use rather than residential," he said.

He also pointed out that airports bring a steady rise in land values. For example, the city of Chicago originally acquired the land for O'Hare in 1947 at a cost as low as $400 per acre.

By 1960, the cost of neighboring farm land needed for airport expansion had risen to $20,000 per acre. Today, he said, the cost is as high as $50,000 per acre.

"We ask the communities affected by aircraft noise to recognize and accept their responsibility for requiring land use compatible with noise exposure under flight paths used for landings and take-offs by nearby airports," vonKann said.

"MEANINGFUL reduction in aircraft noise annoyance cannot be achieved without this community action," vonKann concluded.

"This is white-wash we have all heard before," answered Rep. Joseph C. DiCarlo, D-Mass. The audience roared its approval to his statement.

"You talk about land compatibility," DiCarlo charged DiCarlo, "these residential areas were there before the airports. You have complete disregard for people who live in the area."

DiCarlo charged the airlines have shown no cooperation or concern for the lives of people in the vicinity and insisted that the fight for noise abatement was a fight against a powerful lobby.

RALPH E. SIRIANNI, also D-Mass., charged that the runways at airports have extended to accommodate jets and not to reduce noise as vonKann had suggested. VonKann denied the statement.

During the organizational part of the committee meeting, an attempt was made by representatives of various towns to pass a resolution opposing further government financing of supersonic transport planes. After discussion on the topic, it was tabled and referred to a committee to be chosen by Goedike and Casco.

Plane Noise Bill Posed to Congress

Washington — A new bill was introduced in Congress yesterday to return power and control to the states and localities in the fight against jet noise. The bill would remain in effect until the Federal Aviation Agency sets standards for the noise level. The purpose of the bill is to force the FAA to take immediate action.

Congressman John W. Wylder, R-Nassau County, New York, introduced the bill at a special meeting on Capitol Hill of state and local officials from all across the United States.

The Wylder bill on jet noise is designed to amend P190-411 which was passed in 1968. The original bill allowed the FAA to issue regulations limiting the jet noise.

"The original legislation was sponsored by me," Wylder said, "and it was an important first step in the fight against jet noise."

HE ADDED, "Unfortunately, no rules or regulations have been issued by the FAA to date. Until they are issued, the law will be of no help to those suffering from the problem of jet noise."

The bill would return to local authorities the right to make and enforce rules and regulations controlling jet noise and sonic boom until such time as the FAA issued its regulations.

At the present time, the FAA is in the process of considering limitations on the jet noise allowable by aircraft now in production but not yet flying, the so-called jumbo jets.

The research being done in that field will not affect present aircraft which are flying over local areas and causing the noise problem, Wylder said. He added that his bill would fill this gap by giving local areas the power to protect their citizens.

WYDLER ANNOUNCED his bill at a special conference called in Washington by Supervisor Ralph Casco of Hempstead, N.Y., and attended by Chicago area officials from suburbs surrounding O'Hare Field. Among those present at the conference was Bensenville Village Pres. John Varble who was named to a special committee to study the problems of noise from aircraft.

Varble was expected back in Bensenville Thursday night in time to address the board of trustees on his findings. While in Washington, he also met with Sen. Charles Percy and Ralph Smith and Rep. John Erlenborn. All three pledged their support of programs which would put federal limitations on jet noise.

Even Smith, who is normally opposed to any kind of big government interference, said he felt, "It's not reasonably possible to keep the federal government out of this."

Norwesco Elects 2

Norwesco members Alan Dimenn and Mrs. Ruth Helbig were elected Wednesday to represent Norwesco on the advisory board of the Northwest Opportunity Center in Rolling Meadows.

The advisory board is comprised of 15 members, five each from Norwesco, Schaumburg Opportunity Council and Palatine Opportunity Council. Norwesco still must fill two vacancies on the board.

The election of new members was necessary because of the resignation of one member and the fact that those previously elected have not been attending advisory board meetings regularly.

"WE HAVE HAD difficulty getting a quorum at our meetings," said Robert Coddington, Norwesco representative on the center advisory board.

In other action, Norwesco elected Reynoldo Salazar and Mrs. Maria Torres to the board of directors of Norwesco. The action was necessary because of the resignations of the Rev. Roger Boekenbauer and Bertha Salinas.

Norwesco also passed a motion extending full Norwesco membership to all parents of children enrolled in the local Head Start program. The parents will not be required to pay a membership fee.

Board members also decided to revise Norwesco by-laws so that maximum membership will be 500, instead of 60 as at present. This motion will be adopted formally at the next Norwesco meeting.

Planning Trip to Atlanta a Success

Dr. Rod McLennan, assistant superintendent in High School Dist. 214, told the Herald yesterday that his trip to Atlanta to lay the groundwork for a team visit later this month to study the city's 12-month school year was successful.

The purpose of the trip was to set up schedules and meetings, obtain accommodations and generally plan to make the trip as fruitful as possible, he said.

McLennan said his group will leave Chicago on Oct. 19, and return Oct. 23. On Sunday evening the group will host a dinner of seven or eight members of the Atlanta school system.

McLennan has arranged visits with the central administration and individual building librarians and plant personnel. The group will also confer with police departments to study traffic problems, McLennan said, and it will examine the relationship between the school system and the Atlanta park district system.

The group will split up and visit four of the high schools in the city for one-half day each.

McLennan stressed that it was a rewarding visit for him. He visited two of the Atlanta high schools in suburban areas that were economically and socially similar to Arlington Heights and Elk Grove.

THOSE INCLUDED in the trip are three observers from High School Dist. 211: Leonard Newendorp, principal of Palatine High School, and board members James Humphrey and Carolyn Mullins.

Dist. 214 representatives include board members Richard Bachhuber and Richard Stamm; Principal Tom Shirley from Wheeling High School; district instructional coordinator Reuben Conrad; faculty members Dennis Olenik of Hersey and Herbert Laubenstein of Prospect High School, and citizens James DeLill and Martin Hering.

The Atlanta school system recently went into a year-round program for its high schools. It allows the schools to be used on a year-round basis, with students off about one-quarter of the year. Communities surrounding Atlanta have gone to the high school year-round program, too.

Men Present Other Side To Kindergarteners

by JOAN KLUSMANN

Young children in Arlington Heights School Dist. 25 usually think of teachers in terms of skirts, pearls and perfume.

Second-grade girls, exchanging confidences on new teachers, ask, "Is she young or old, does she wear a wig, is she pretty?"

Not many men seek teaching positions below the junior high school level; those who do are generally placed in the fifth grade where the "father image" may help with any possible discipline problems in the rapidly developing youngsters.

BOTH THE school district and the Arlington Teachers Association have hoped that more men would be attracted to the lower grades so that young children will confront both men and women educators shortly after they begin their school life. Administrators were delighted this year when two men requested assignments to kindergarten and second grade classrooms.

While the two have plans for the future which will eventually take them out of the classrooms, they both will still be active with early childhood education. In the meantime, they are enjoying their work and the kids.

JOHN JOHNSTON, who currently reigns supreme in an Olive kindergarten room cheerfully decorated with scores of Chinese lanterns, is a recent graduate of the University of Texas. Planning to be a university professor in education some day, he decided "to find out what it is all about" before entering graduate school.

He picked kindergarten because he liked student teaching at that level and because "this is where the creative teaching is happening." He plans to start work on his masters degree in January, taking courses at nights and during the summers.

PERFECTLY AT ease with his young charges, he gives equal space to boy-type equipment in the kindergarten room. A bicycle and a huge box of tools is behind the play refrigerator, sink and stove. While the majority of the boys were lured to the screwdrivers and the girls to pots and pans, two five-year-old girls hurried over for their turn with wrench and hammer as soon as the boys left the scene.

The room is filled with music. Schubert and Sousa marches on the record player are followed by Johnston playing his guitar for children's sing-alongs. A student teacher, Mrs. Marilyn Graf from Northeastern University, assists Johnston in the mornings and while she will be searching for a kindergarten job herself when she graduates in December, she praises the presence of a man in the kindergarten world.

DOWN THE Olive corridor Joe Barthel provides pretty music of his own when he plays his violin for second graders. After working in the accounting field for more than 20 years, he decided in 1964 that he wanted to teach and went back to school for a degree in education.

After teaching the seventh and fifth grades, he requested a stint with the second grade this year. Now attending classes which will equip him for guidance and counseling work, he hopes to continue working on the elementary level.

He says his current experience will help him to recognize problems in this age group. "If students are going to have difficulties, they are certainly already in existence in the lower grades and we can do something about them."

GROUPING HIS students in tables of four so they can help one another at times, he is in quiet, soft-spoken command of the second grade.

Dist. 25 children at Ridge School have no men assigned to classrooms this year, but they do have a male substitute. James Cox, a United Air Lines pilot, spends part of his layover time each month in elementary school classrooms.

After he received his education degree, he entered the Air Force, learned to fly and eventually joined United. He still loves to teach, however, and finds the substitute arrangement a good way to keep his hand in and stay abreast of what his own children are learning in the lower grades.

BOTH TEACHERS and administrators say that the lack of prestige in the community for a male educator in the lower grades keeps many men from seeking the role. They hope the pendulum is beginning to swing in the other direction and that more applications from men will reach the school system.

Johnston says that lower grade teaching for men is becoming more acceptable. However, he still receives smirks and stares from some when he says he teaches kindergarten. "Oh yeah, what else do you do," they ask. For someone who has guided over 50 five-year-olds through an active day, this can be rough.

OLIVE SCHOOL kindergarten teacher, John Johnston, holds a guitar session and songfest for Arlington Heights youngsters. The children are also encouraged to tell stories, describing personal experiences in their own words. The results, together with crayoned illustrations by the kids, are bound in book form. Johnston and his student assistant have found that the depth and continuity of the mini-essays increase as the school term progresses. Music is prevalent at Olive School. Down the hall from the kindergarten, second-grade teacher Joe Barthel plays the violin and assists his students in learning new tunes.

Byrn Witt Is Elected AAMD Chairman

Byrn Witt, executive director of Clearbrook Center for the Retarded in Rolling Meadows, has been elected chairman for the Illinois Chapter of the American Association of Mental Deficiency (AAMD).

The Illinois Chapter, which has 600 members, held its first annual meeting Oct. 2-3 in Springfield.

Witt previously served as chairman of the steering committee instrumental in forming the Illinois Chapter, which is the first state chapter to be organized.

The AAMD is a professional organization concerned with the problem of mental deficiency on a regional, national and international level.

"The Illinois Chapter of the AAMD hopes to provide a structure in communications among professional workers in mental retardation and become involved in the development of programs at both state and community levels," Witt said.

Witt added that the Illinois Chapter of AAMD intends to work closely with the Illinois Association for Retarded Children and the Council for Exceptional Children.

Dr. D.C. Wilkerson, consultant psychiatrist at Clearbrook Center, presented a professional paper on "The Role of the Psychiatrist in Evaluation, Diagnosis and Program in a Day Center for the Retarded" at the state meeting.

Health Fair Is Oct. 18

Northwest Community Hospital, approaching its 10th anniversary, will sponsor a Health Fair from Oct. 18-23. The fair, which will take place in the hospital, will be open from noon until 6 p.m.

The program is designed to increase residents' knowledge of health and safety procedures as well as services provided by the hospital.

The theme of the fair is "See what makes you tick," and exhibits relating to human anatomy and physiology will be displayed on the main floor of the hospital building. While most of the displays are self-explanatory, staff members will be on hand to answer specific questions.

Exhibits on "nutrition nonsense" and "mechanical quackery" will deal with problems which may arise in the future concerning the health claims of many products. The bulk of the displays are provided by the American Medical Association.

A transparent woman, similar to an exhibit at Chicago's Museum of Science and Industry, will be in the cafeteria area with an accompanying recorded presentation. A special exhibit on health careers is also planned. Another project, "Life Begins," will present the anatomy of human conception and birth.

Members of the Palatine Jaycees will assist the hospital staff in unpacking and setting up posters and exhibits.

Classes from area schools are scheduled to tour the fair during the early afternoon as part of the schools' field trip instructional program. The fair is open to all interested persons.

Fierce Conductress Teaches Sweet Music

By SHULLEN SHAW

TAIPEI (UPI) — Nationalist Chinese newspapers call her the woman tyrant. She drills the children three hours in the morning and three hours at night, rarely cracks a smile and seldom offers a compliment.

"If you pat them on the head and tell them they are doing a good job, that won't help them at all," said Miss Helen Quach, 28, one of the world's few women conductors of symphony orchestras.

Miss Quach who trained with such musical giants as Leonard Bernstein and Sir John Barbirolli, now is teaching youngsters to play Mozart, Mendelssohn, Vivaldi and Handel.

The children who play in her symphony orchestra range in age from under 10 to their early teens. The average age is 12.

"These children have a great deal of pride in what they are doing and false compliments accomplish nothing," Miss Quach said. "When a boy or girl falls behind, I tell them so. It is a challenge to them to do a better job."

Her fierce countenance when she rehearses the 65 members of her children's orchestra drives some of them to tears.

Cheng Kuan-chen, 12, won first prize in a violin contest before he met Miss Quach. But the young conductress told the boy's mother that her son would have to practice harder or be dropped from the orchestra.

"I could tell how hard my boy was fighting back the tears," the mother, Mrs. Cheng Hsin-chang, said. "When he got home, he had a good cry and then went back to practicing until he thought he was ready to face Miss Quach the next day. It hurt me. But I know he is proud, so I am proud."

The children's orchestra in Taiwan was founded four years ago. That was before Miss Quach came on the scene.

A group of mothers started the orchestra for their children with only three instruments: piano, violin and cello. They named the orchestra BBB to signify, "Best, Best and Best." The orchestra is still called the three Bs, but it now includes all symphonic instruments.

Miss Quach and the orchestra crossed paths a year or so ago.

Miss Quach, whose Chinese name is Kuo Mei-chen, was born in Saigon on July 4, 1940. Her father was a businessman. Her mother, a musician, started her on the piano at the age of 5. She grew up in Australia, studying the violin and other instruments, and graduated from Sydney Conservatory of Music at the age of 19.

She studied under Nicolai Malko, the Russian conductor, and with Carlo Zecchi and Sir John Barbirolli in Italy before becoming an assistant to Bernstein at the New York Philharmonic. She has since conducted in Australia, Japan, the Philippines and South Korea.

When Miss Quach visited Taipei, parents of the triple Bs pleaded with her to help their children.

"We knew that our children could play their instruments, but we knew they could do better if they had an expert conductor to train them," Mrs. Kao Tsung-min, a surgeon's wife and one of the orchestra founders, said.

"We begged and we begged before Miss Quach accepted the job for free."

The young conductress returned to Taipei in August to prepare the orchestra for its first trip abroad, a booking in the Philippines to play at the September opening of Manila's new cultural center.

She rehearsed the orchestra seven days a week from 9 a. m. to noon and from 7 p. m. to 10 p. m.

"I think this is the best children's symphony orchestra in the world," Miss Quach told United Press International. "It has a number of talented children, and I know of no other children's orchestra which has been subject to such long and vigorous training."

Dunne Warns Of Blazes In Forests

George W. Dunne, president of the Forest Preserve District of Cook County, has issued a fire warning to all users of the preserves.

"The extended dry period during the month of August and early part of September has caused trees in the woods to prematurely lose enough leaves to create an early fire hazard," Dunne said.

Thousands of people find the paths and trails of the district a pleasant place to walk or cycle during the fall day, Dunne said. He added that additional thousands will be traveling the highways to view the fall coloring.

PEOPLE ARE reminded that most all forest fires are due to the carelessness of man and that every fire no matter how small or seemingly insignificant, can and does destroy many small tree seedlings and other vegetation desirable in the forest complex, Dunne continued.

Individuals spotting a fire in the preserves are urged to go to the nearest telephone and report the location of the fire. The operator should be told it is a collect call to report a fire and she will reverse the charges to the district. The numbers to call are CO 1-8400 or FO 9-9420.

Kickin' It Around

IF IT RAINS IN Baltimore Saturday for the start of the 1969 World Series, nobody will get too excited, unless it's the television people and they're a pretty excitable bunch anyway.

If it rains both Saturday and Sunday, there admittedly will be more concern because that's just not supposed to happen to this annual October spectacular.

What would that do to the ratings? Curt Gowdy would have to replace Tony Kubek with Harry Volkman and John Coleman could work the stands.

Doesn't everyone know that when the World Series starts, the clouds should hang lifeless in the October sky, barely drifting in a light southern breeze as the temperature works its way into the low 80s.

But isn't it possible that it could just start raining Saturday and keep raining, in Baltimore and New York?

Impossible, you say. That's never happened in a World Series, you say. Maybe a little rain now and then but nothing steady for days.

Let's just turn that calendar back many years to 1911. Did you ever hear about the World Series that was washed out for days by rain, and how that rain touched off a bitter feud that almost wrecked the friendly relations between the American and National leagues for all time?

That break in the weather in the fall of 1911 caused more than just the mere postponement of a ball game. It almost washed out World Series play for good.

In the Series of 1911, play alternated from day to day between the Polo Grounds in New York and Shibe Park in Philadelphia.

Buck Herzog and Frank Baker, both native Marylanders, were the rival third basemen.

The first two games ran off smoothly, without any unusual incidents, but in the third game, tough Herzog, a great money player and the Giants' star in four World Series championship battles, touched off the fireworks.

Sliding into third base on a close play, he spiked the famous Philadelphia star, "Home Run" Baker. At the end of the game, the Athletics began to grumble that Herzog was out to maim and cripple their infielders.

That spiking incident might have been completely forgotten in the next game, the following day. But there was no game the following day. It had begun to rain.

It rained that day, and the next, and the next. It rained for six consecutive days.

After the first rainy day, the baseball reporters had nothing left to do but rehash the playing of the third game. Of course, the spiking incident was the leading topic.

On the first day of rain, the Athletics made charges and accused the Giants of playing "dirty ball." The Giants retorted with defiance.

On the second day of rain, some strong remarks about the rough play of Buck Herzog were credited to Connie Mack, Athletics manager.

On the third day of rain, blustering John McGraw, Giant manager, pushed himself into the controversy. He replied to Mack's charges in the usual McGraw manner, giving the lean Philadelphia both barrels and mining no words.

And the newspaper loved it. They had their stories. There was no game on the field but these battles were becoming just as interesting.

On the fourth day of rain, Ben Johnson, president of the American League, got into the argument. Never the man for soft words, Johnson exploded with a violent public statement labelling the Giants as a gang of no-goods turned loose in peaceful Philadelphia.

At the same time, Connie Mack, having read the McGraw statement, became a roaring lion and issued another of his own, making out a strong case against Herzog, McGraw, and the entire Giant team.

The Series itself? People were starting to forget about what started as an ordinary championship series between two fine clubs.

And it kept raining. On the fifth day of rain, Thomas Lynch, president of the National League, came into the argument, and took up the defense of the league, McGraw, and the Giants.

Words and accusations were now flying throughout the day. The air was loaded with bitterness and hate. Sides were being sharply drawn and it looked like real war between the two leagues.

On the sixth day of rain, Charley Ebbets, owner of the Brooklyn Dodgers, came out with a public appeal for armistice.

"Gentlemen, let us all be reasonable," his statement read. "This thing will start a bitter war between the leagues which may mean the end of the game."

But they were still shouting and the shouts were louder and louder.

On the seventh day the rain stopped at last.

The skies cleared and the fourth game of the 1911 World Series finally took place. There was some shouting from both benches and the fans at first but when Chief Bender won from Christy Mathewson the bitter feud was completely lost and forgotten in the excitement created by fresh incidents.

It took almost two weeks for that memorable World Series to end.

Many years have gone by since then, and the 1911 series is just another entry now in the dusty old record books.

But it's a story that still circulates at World Series time, a story of how six days of rain almost wrecked the game of baseball, six dangerous wet and rainy days that almost blew up the American and National leagues and washed out World Series play for all time.

Let's be optimistic.

The sun will shine in Baltimore tomorrow.

The trading of Richie Allen to the St. Louis Cardinals has to be good news for Greg Luzinski of Prospect Heights, the muscular area product who's a first baseman in the Philadelphia Phillies' farm system. The Phillies have to be looking closely now at the first basemen on their minor league clubs, and Luzinski just completed another fine season, slamming 31 homers, driving in 92 runs in 128 games, and hitting .290 in the Carolina League.

Ten Years Ago...

Jim Ruffer scored two touchdowns and George Bork passed for 145 yards with 13 completions as Arlington remained unbeaten with a 20-13 victory over Riverside-Brookfield. Prospect pounded Proviso West 26-6 with four Fred Lussow completions covering 124 yards and picking up two markers, and Palatine posted its first win as soph Andy Merutka ran for two scores and 115 yards in 20 carries in 18-13 conquest of Dundee.

Vikings, Hersey To Collide

by LARRY MLYNCZAK

In kitchens they call it "the whole slice of cheese." In churches it's "the whole ball of wax." On street corners it's "for all the marbles."

And at Hersey and Fremd High Schools it's for the big "numero uno." Well, not really. Like Berlin, the Huskies and the Vikings may have to settle for half . . . half of the title of Number One.

Saturday afternoon on Hale Hildebrandt Field, Hersey's and Fremd's football teams will be playing for the cheese, wax, marbles, prettiest co-eds, niftiest mascots and a few other intangibles, not to mention first place in the Mid-Suburban League. The winner of the contest will be tied for the top slot in the standings with Palatine unless Palatine somehow gets knocked off by winless Prospect.

At Fremd

Preliminary game at 12 noon. Varsity game at 2 p.m.

PLACE: Fremd High School's Hale Hildebrandt Field, Quentz Road, half mile south of Palatine Road in Palatine.

COACHES: Hersey: Len Burt. Fremd: Al Ratcliff

Both teams lost their season openers, Hersey 25-0 to St. Viator and Fremd 27-24 to New Trier West. Since that disastrous day, Hersey has beaten Prospect 28-6, Elk Grove 19-6 and Wheeling 26-16. Fremd, in the meantime, has nipped Forest View 20-14, Prospect 7-6 and Elk Grove 13-6.

For both Hersey and Fremd, this is the game. Hersey is playing its first year of varsity football and has never been involved in a game of such importance. Fremd, which has never had a 3-0 record in conference play before, and coach Al Ratcliff calls Saturday's game, "The biggest game in Fremd High School's history."

The Huskies and the Vikings have had a distinct advantage in speed over each of their foes but this week there will be no advantage to either side — both squads are extremely quick.

After watching Hersey win three games quite convincingly, many Mid-Suburban League observers insist that the Huskies have a fine football team. But Fremd? The Vikings barely got by Elk Grove and Prospect while the Huskies beat both teams worse. Are the Vikings for real? Are they sneaking by with actually nothing?

Ratcliff smiles at that suggestion. "They can think that all they want," he says. "That's fine with me. But people kind of forget that we scored 20 points on Forest View and nobody else has done that. And we held Prospect to six points and they scored 21 points against a good defensive team like Conant last week. Sure, we'll let those people keep thinking like that. It makes it a lot easier for us."

Fremd's offense, though inconsistent at times, has been explosive at other times. Bob Moloznik, who gained 200 yards against Forest View and 144 against Elk Grove, is a halfback with few peers and quarterback Tommy Bruns likes to throw long bombs to speedster Mike Menick. That spells explosiveness.

PATCH WEAVER. Rick Weaver lowers the boom on Palatine's Tom Patch during Mid-Suburban League football action Friday night between the Pirates and the Forest View Falcons. Patch was the game's leading ball carrier with 97 yards on seven carries as Palatine won 16-0. Also in on the play are Forest View's Rich Posinger, 25, Palatine's Jeff Frost making block, Palatine's Scott Harris looking for a block and Forest View's Gary Werner coming up to assist on the tackle in jersey number 83.

Forest View at Arlington — It won't be a bloodbath, but a birdbath that the Falcons and Cardinals will hook up in. And Arlington will get in a few more splashes, to mingle with the Forest View tears.

Elk Grove at Conant — As a homecoming feast, the Cougars should devour the luckless Grenadiers.

Hersey at Fremd — Huskies and Vikings can both stand cooler climates. The question is, by just what degree the hosts will find the visitors too hot to handle.

Prospect at Palatine — A gala celebration to welcome the roving Pirates home. And after Saturday, their contraband should be enhanced by the addition of some hastily vacated armor.

Glenbard North at Wheeling — After too many losing fights, the Panthers have little fur left. That being the case, the Wildcats should be tearing away a little hide instead Friday.

Fenton at Wheaton North — The Bisons will come off a little better than last week. The Falcons though, will be a little better than a little better.

Elmwood Park at Lake Park — The Lancers are riding a mighty steed this year by name of Damato. The Tigers will wish they never left their lair.

St. Viator at St. Joseph — The Chargers might wish they went by the name of Retreaters when the Lions conclude another mauling.

Since the opening game, Hersey has been successful with its offensive display. The Huskies, of course, have sprinter-power back Skip Peterson who has been widely acclaimed but they also have Bruce Frase who has gained 200 yards against MSL opponents — only nine yards less than Peterson.

Hersey coach Len Burt said that, Steve Schuler and Scott Feige "came into their own" against Wheeling and will be fine contributors to the Huskie offense against Fremd.

The Huskie line was considered to be a question mark before the season started but ends Jerry Johst and Kurt Kieffer, tackles Bob Weber and Steve Toner, guards Glenn Matke and Ken Morales and center Tom Anderson have been pleasant surprises to the Hersey coaching staff.

Directing the operation has been quarterback Dick Powell. Powell is not an outstanding passer, but he calls a good game, has confidence, can run and, yes, he can scare defensive backs with an occasional pass.

Defensively, the teams are equal — both have given less than 60 points against the same caliber of opponents.

Hersey and Fremd are equal in a lot of other departments. And they will be playing "for all the chips." You might say that Len Burt and Al Ratcliff would settle for a tie. But, then, neither played for Ara Parseghian.

Pankey Cards Ace

Richard D. Pankey, 515 Juniper Drive, Palatine, Ill., may win $1,000 and two tickets to Scotland in the Rusty Nail Hole-in-One Sweepstakes as a result of scoring an ace recently at the Cary Country Club in Cary, Ill. The winner will be announced early next year.

three of 17 tries for 26 yards and one interception. Despite some aid by second string signal caller Joe Smith, the Grove dropped its homecoming game, 13-6.

Happy Schaumburg Mayor Robert O. Atcher presided yesterday at groundbreaking festivities for Woodfield Mall.

THE Groundbreaking of the Season

by MARY REIFSCHEIDER

It was a groundbreaking that surpassed all others.

But then it was for Woodfield Mall, Schaumburg's shopping center that will surpass all other shopping centers.

Under a red and white striped tent, set on the dusty 191 acres at Route 53 and Golf Road, several hundred businessmen, government officials and members of the press gathered Wednesday morning to hear just how superlative Woodfield Mall will be.

A. Alfred Taubman, chairman of The Taubman Co., developer and manager for Woodfield Associates, said now the largest center to his knowledge has 1.4 million square feet of leasable space. Woodfield will have 1.7 million.

"WOODFIELD MALL is designed with the newest and freshest thinking to come in the past 20 years. It was designed with the theory that the closer the proximity of the stores, the better for all tenants," Taubman said.

Woodfield will have 160 satellite stores spaced between the three department stores — Sears, Roebuck and Co., J. C. Penney, and Marshall Field.

By using interlocking malls between the three levels, the center will give maximum exposure to shops and save on walking time for customers.

Taubman said every major Chicago area store has made inquiries about leasing space in Woodfield and major fashion stores from the east and west coasts are also interested.

THE CENTER'S volume in the first year will be in excess of $180 million, Taubman said.

C. J. Kennedy, representing Sears, said it's going to be a "magnificent center. We're proud to be part of it."

Erald P. Savage, president of Marshall Field's, said, "This is going to be some kind of development we'll be a good neighbor."

J. C. Penney is "looking forward with pleasure to opening its Woodfield store," H. W. Wright, regional vice president, said. This will be the largest of Penney's 1,700 stores.

The Field's and Sears stores will also be the largest in the Chicago area.

SCHAUMBURG MAYOR Robert O. Atcher told the audience "Schaumburg is a planned community. We started with plowed ground. There was no development. We took five years to plan before we opened it to development."

"We've had phenomenal success in fulfilling that plan. Schaumburg will not be a bedroom to Chicago," he said.

He gave a special thank-you to Sears for being the "first to see the potential" of the shopping site.

Outside the tent, the crowd watched fireworks go off as the first shovels of dirt were turned and caterpillars moved earth. The $90 million center will be completed by late 1971 or early 1972. It will employ some 6,000 persons and serve 70,000 to 80,000 shoppers per day.

TODAY THE SITE is within 10 minutes driving time of 600,000 people living in Northwest Cook County and North DuPage County. By 1975, the 10 minute population is estimated at 800,000.

Plans Unit Busy

It was a busy night for the Hoffman Estates Plan Commission Wednesday as four major developments were taken up.

An estimated 35 home owners from the Highpoint area also attended the meeting to question Peter Robin's development west of their homes.

The Highpoint residents, from Oakmont Road, attended the meeting seeking information on the Peter Robin development going in behind their homes between Golf and Higgins roads.

They had been under the impression that four-story apartment buildings were going to be built 30 feet behind their back property lines.

NICK BEZANIS, the group spokesman, was looking for a change.

He discovered that the buildings will not be built any closer than 120 feet from the Oakmont Road residents because an extension of Springguth Road, to be 100 feet wide, is planned to come in behind the homes.

The homeowners also wanted to know what safety precautions will keep children away from heavy construction equipment in the Peter Robin development.

Peter Robin representatives told them their insurance requires a full-time watchman to keep people away from the equipment.

A temporary fence will be constructed to discourage children from entering the construction area, he added.

ONCE THE AREA is developed, shrubbery will be planted to give the apartment complex an attractive appearance, he said.

A final plat of subdivision and a plat for open spaces for the first phase of the Peter Robin development was approved by the commission.

It will be located 400 feet northwest of the Oakmont Road homes, just south of Higgins Road. The commission also accepted a letter stating Peter Robin intent to dedicate the 100-foot-wide strip for Springguth Road.

The total complex to be built over a 10-year period is expected to boost the village's population by 16,000 persons.

The Multicon complex is planned north and northeast of the Peter Robin site.

Roy Whitehead, Multicon's new area representative, requested approval of first phase plans for the development.

Phase one includes 560 units north of

Conant Heads Home

Hoping to put the Elk Grove Grenadiers completely "underwater," Conant High School Cougar fans will meet in Chino Park at 7 tonight for the annual homecoming bonfire and pep rally.

The queen and her four class attendants, selected at coronation assemblies this afternoon, will reign over all homecoming activities this weekend.

The theme of the 1969 Conant High School Homecoming is "Underwater."

TOMORROW MORNING 21 units will line up at Chino Park for the homecoming parade through Hoffman Estates. A color guard and the Conant High School Band "A" will lead class and club floats, cars full of cheerleaders, National Honor Society students and the school's foreign exchange student, the Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg Fire Departments, and the drill team and Band "B" out of Chino Park at 9:30 a.m.

The parade will move from Evanston Street onto Flagstaff, down Flagstaff to Arizona, Arizona to Ashland, Ashland to Thacker, and Thacker to the east side of the parking lot.

Floats will line-up along the tennis courts for judging based on originality, appropriateness to the theme, float characters, and accuracy and neatness in construction.

THE HOMECOMING carnival in the east parking lot will feature 10 food booths, including a German beer garden serving bratwurst and root beer, and game booths set up by school clubs. The food booths will be open from 10:30 a.m. to 4 p.m., the game booths from 10:30 a.m. to 12 noon.

The junior varsity football game with Elk Grove will begin at 12:30 p.m. Tickets for it and the varsity football game at 2 p.m. will be available at the gate.

At halftime ceremonies in the varsity game, the queen and court will be presented, parade winners will be announced, and the marching band will perform.

Tomorrow night Conant students and alumni are invited to the Homecoming dance from 8 to 11 in the gym. Music will be provided by The Lively Set.

TICKETS FOR THE dance are $2 per couple and can be purchased at the door.

Homecoming committee chairmen include general chairman, Jan Mersmann, dance committee, Della Magno and Holly Thorsen; publicity, Cherry Hicks; assemblies, Debby Stewart; parade, Karen Slaxman; halftime ceremony, Nancy Parker; bonfire, Mari Procido, and floats, Andy Grimes.

Cougars Gotta Win

by LARRY MLYNCZAK

Tomorrow is Homecoming at Conant High School in Hoffman Estates.

But all the elaborate floats, all the pretty queens and courts, all the corsages and all the arrangements hardly mean anything unless the football team wins the Homecoming Game.

A year ago Conant went through the whole apparatus of floats, queens, courts, corsages and arrangements but the Cougars lost the Homecoming Game 37-20 to Prospect. Despite the festivities, Conant was not a place for a festival after the loss.

Homecoming Week is at Conant High School once again and this week the opponent will be Elk Grove. An unpleasant reminder — Conant lost to Elk Grove 31-27 in 1968.

The Cougar football team has had reasonable success this season — defeating Glenbard North 44-8 and Prospect 31-21, tying Tri-County Conference leader Lake Park 6-6 and losing to Forest View 7-0.

Elk Grove, in the meantime, has lost to Addison Trail, Hersey, Fremd and Wheeling. The Cougars are favored to beat the Grenadiers this Saturday.

The basis of the favorite's role for Conant is based on the Cougars' explosive offense, sometimes, and a strong defense most of the time.

Jim McGraw, who is up for All-State consideration, is hailed as the best running back in the Mid-Suburban League. The 6-1, 185 pounder has gained 165 yards, 179. 123 and 117 in his first four games. He has gained more than 1,500 yards in his career.

Joining McGraw in the backfield will be John Whiteford, Tom Rambo and junior southpaw quarterback John MacDonald.

The line will have Steve Nelson and Mike Peters at ends, Jim Orendorff and Fred Beasley at tackles, Duke Martin and Tom Caprice at guards and Brian Rucks at center.

Elk Grove which has won just one game (against the Cougars, by the way) in its last 13. The Grenadiers seemed to improve last week by giving Mid-Suburban League leader Fremd a good scare before falling 13-6.

The Grenadiers are winless, but, then, they were winless last year when they upset the Conant Cougars. This Saturday the Cougars are hoping that the outcome will be different, or all the floats, queens, courts, corsages and arrangements won't mean much anymore.

Double Crown for Queen

The Conant High School 1969 Homecoming Queen will be crowned twice today in two coronation assemblies which begin weekend homecoming activities.

Juniors and seniors will be the first to watch her coronation at a 1 p.m. assembly in the school gym. The queen will be selected from five senior girls voted on by the total student body. Earlier this week each class nominated five girls for class attendant for the queen's court.

At the second assembly at 2 p.m., necessary because of crowded conditions at Conant, sophomores and freshmen will watch the queen and attendant coronation.

SENIOR CLASS nominees for queen and senior attendant are Jo Klemma, Char

Merchant, Jan Mersmann, Gail Parker, and Vicki Ramsey. One of them will reign over tonight's bonfire, and tomorrow's parade, carnival, game, and homecoming dance.

Juniors, sophomores and freshmen also voted this week for their homecoming court attendant. Junior nominees are Sue Cassidy, Wanda Dick, Bonnie Farinosi, Pat Gibson and Denise Robertson.

Sophomore nominees are Peggy Barcik, Nancy Brooks, Flo Cummings, Karen Horrell, and Mary O'Malley.

Freshman nominees for the freshman attendant on the 1969 homecoming court are Nancy Ehrenberg, Nancy Gelardi, Donna Vom Brack, Barb Witt and Kathy Ziegler.

State Rules Today On Classroom Loan

Dist. 54's application for an interest-free loan to construct three 21-room elementary schools will be acted upon by the Illinois School Building Commission (ISBC) today in Joliet. Approval of the loan is considered to be routine.

Last October, Dist. 54 voters approved a $70,000 annual tax levy to repay a loan from the ISBC for 40 classrooms. However, the school district learned earlier this year that it is eligible for more classrooms due to the growing enrollment.

On Sept. 27, Dist. 54 residents approved a $60,000 rent levy referendum which entitled the elementary district to a loan for constructing 23 classrooms.

THE TOTAL LOAN scheduled to be approved by the ISBC to Dist. 54 will be about $1,877,400. This amount will be repaid in 16 2/3 years. No interest charges are involved.

The three elementary schools, which will have the same building design, will be constructed in Highpoint between Golf and Higgins roads; Weathersfield Unit 14; and Lancer's Carlisle-Benwick subdivision. Construction is scheduled to begin next year.

Opening of bids for contracts on the three projects is scheduled on Dec. 2 at 8 p.m. at the ISBC office in Joliet. The three identical schools will be named after the Apollo 11 astronauts — Neil Armstrong, Edwin Aldrin and Michael Collins.

ISBC is a state agency created by the Illinois Legislature in 1957 to aid school districts unable to meet building needs through local effort alone.

IN ORDER TO qualify for ISBC loans, school districts must have exhausted their bonding power of 5 per cent of the district's assessed valuation.

Funds received from the ISBC are paid back at the rate of 6 per cent of the principal per year. Yearly leases of schools financed by the ISBC run from July 1 to June 30 each year.

In order to be accepted by the ISBC construction bids must not exceed a ceiling of $6.80 per square foot or $28,800 per classroom, whichever figure is lower. A grant of $1,000 per classroom for fixed equipment is also given to districts receiving loans.

BOTH COMBINED and separate bids will be received on the three identical schools to be constructed by Dist. 54.

Construction of the Jane Addams Junior High and a 14-room addition to Winston Churchill School in Dist. 54 will be completed in November, ending double sessions at Churchill and Robert Frost Junior High.

Dist. 54 has an enrollment of 11,680 this year.

Higgins Road and west of the proposed Springinguth road extension.

APPROVAL WAS hampered when it was brought out that a boulevard planned to run through the Multicon development does not line up with the Springinguth Road extension at Higgins Road.

Whitehead said that if plans are altered to line his road with Springinguth, he may have to sacrifice his financing.

"Financiers are making their own rules with the money situation the way it is. Any alterations in our plan could cost us our financing," Whitehead said.

"We have the community at large to think of," said Carl Schumaker in suggesting the approval be delayed until the road alignment can be agreed upon.

"You won't be able to build anything until some compromise is reached," said chairman James Kopp. "And if you did, it would be impossible for people to get out of your development in the morning."

The plan commission was advised that the state won't allow the Multicon's boulevard and the Springinguth extension run into Higgins Road only 350 feet apart.

Multicon expects to build 2,700 apartment units in its over-all plan, plus an 18-hole golf course.

A ONE-WEEK DELAY was taken on action concerning Kaufman and Broad's industrial park at Barrington and Hassel Roads.

Kaufman and Broad hope to relocate Hassel Road 600 feet to the north of the present access. Planned for the intersection at the old Hassel Road intersection with Barrington Road is a 10-acre site for a national chain motel and a service station.

Representatives of the Century Towers were asked for a right of way for the extension of Salem Road.

The commission was assured by Century Towers representatives that an agreement can be reached for the extension.

Century Towers is planned as a 1,500-unit complex with 264 units to be built in the initial phase.

PTL Group To Meet

The Parent-Teacher League at St. Peter Lutheran School in Schaumburg will meet 8 p.m. Tuesday in the school auditorium.

All parents are invited to attend the meeting and participate in a discussion on "Discipline in the Family."

Warman Backers Organize

A local group to elect Democrat Edward Warman to Congress is being formed in Elk Grove Village.

The group, called Independent Citizens of Elk Grove for the Election of Edward Warman to Congress, is being formed into a committee by Daniel Gilbert, Elk Grove Park District board member.

"I am not endorsing Warman in my capacity as a public official, but as an individual," Gilbert stressed.

"The committee is being formed to offer an alternative for Republicans and individuals who feel that the Republican candidate will not truly represent their views in Congress.

"IT WILL STRESS positive programs advocated by Warman in areas of suburban transportation problems, the fight against inflation and the Vietnam War, he explained.

Gilbert said he formulated the idea of a Warman committee after looking over Tuesday's election results. The Republican primary Tuesday was won by Phillip Crane, a conservative from Winnetka. Warman is from Skokie.

Gilbert said if people of the district would take the time to study the diametrically opposed viewpoints of the two candidates, Warman would emerge as the winner in November.

"I am asking those who wish to work for the election of Warman to call 437-5067," Gilbert said.

Streamwood Man Is Electrocuted

The accident occurred about 4 p.m., police said.

Are you willing to go as low as '1939* for a new VW?

We don't sell status. Just a car. One that gets up to 27 mpg, hardly uses oil between changes, and goes a long way on a set of tires.

Two Men Killed in Two-Car Collision

Two men were killed and two others seriously injured in a two-car collision on Central Road just west of Busse Road in Mount Prospect early yesterday. The death vehicle, pictured above, was driven by Gary Spohn, 22, who recently moved from Buffalo Grove to Kansas. Both Spohn and a passenger, David Bethards, 23, of Racine, Wis., were killed instantly. Two others were seriously injured in the crash. Police said Spohn's car was traveling nearly 100 miles an hour at the time of impact.

Two Men Killed in Two-Car Collision

Two men were killed and two others seriously injured in a two-car collision on Central Road just west of Busse Road in Mount Prospect early yesterday.

Marine Lt. Gary Spohn, 22, a Vietnam veteran who recently moved from Buffalo Grove to Kansas, was pronounced dead on arrival at Northwest Community Hospital.

A passenger in Spohn's car, 23-year-old David Bethards of Racine, Wis. was also killed in the crash.

Lee Cunningham, 27, of Rolling Meadows, is listed in serious condition at Northwest Community Hospital after the car he was driving apparently collided with Spohn's car. Both cars were traveling westbound on Central Road, according to police.

POLICE ESTIMATED that Spohn was driving in the outer lane at approximately 100 miles per hour when Cunningham's car, traveling at a low rate of speed, drifted into the outer lane and collided with Spohn's car.

Police estimated from evidence found at the scene of the accident, that Spohn's car jumped the northwest curb of the parkway, struck a fire hydrant and flipped over one and a half times before hitting a tree 278 feet from the crash.

A second passenger in Spohn's auto, Edward Springhoff, 22, of Kenosha, Wis., is listed in serious condition with multiple injuries at Holy Family Hospital in Des Plaines.

DEBRIS FROM THE collision struck a third vehicle driven by Paul Dumke, 21, of Arlington Heights. Dumke told police he was traveling east on Central Road near the Brunning Co. plant when he heard an explosion and then his car was hit with debris from the accident.

Dumke, who was not injured, told police he did not see the cars collide.

Ida Vogelei Park Christened

A 10-acre site at Higgins and Jones roads was christened Ida B. Vogelei Community Park and Recreational Center by Hoffman Estates park directors this week.

Purchased from Mrs. Ida Vogelei at a cost of $150,000 the land is scheduled for development into a major recreational facility.

According to Park Pres. Robert L. Schuhr, the district's administrative offices will be moved to Vogelei Park sometime prior to Jan. 1.

Late last summer, the board authorized the sale of $230,000 in bonds to finance purchase and needed repairs on the property.

THIS WEEK, board members deferred action on awarding contracts for plumbing and heating work at Vogelei Park pending further study but approved the expenditure of $525 to complete roof repairs.

Plumbing bids were received from five firms and a decision is expected within 15 days. Heating estimates were received from two local firms which were asked to submit separate bids for air conditioning. Both proposals have been referred to committee for review.

Authorization for sewer and water installation has been approved by the village and plans prepared for the park district by Westerberg Engineering Co. have been submitted to the Chicago Metropolitan Sanitary District.

Board members anticipate final approval within about two weeks and plan to have work completed as soon as possible.

Chesterfield Is a 'Hit'

The show was a hit at last week's Buffalo Grove plan commission public hearing. And it went over just as well at a public hearing held by the village board Wednesday night.

Subject of the hearings was the proposed annexation and development of about 31 acres on the northeast corner of Arlington Heights and Lake-Cook roads. Chesterfield Development Corp. wants to build a planned development on the property with a neighborhood shopping center on the corner.

The "show" consisted of the presentation made by Chesterfield representatives concerning the proposed development. Just as he had a week earlier with the village plan commission, Arthur Salzman, president of Chesterfield, attended Wednesday's hearing with seven other spokesmen.

THE VILLAGE BOARD made no decision on the proposed annexation Wednesday. Instead it will discuss the matter further at future village board meetings before finally deciding on the proposal.

Of the 31 acres, 27 will be used for an apartment complex. On the remaining four acres, a small shopping center will be built.

In the apartment complex will be 435 one- and two-bedroom apartments in 18 two-story buildings. The buildings will surround recreational facilities. No less than 40 per cent of the apartments will be one-bedroom.

Village Pres. Don Thompson told builders he will want a stipulation on the annexation agreement that "they would either wait until the (water works and sewerage) bond issue is sold, or else complete their own water facilities."

THOMPSON SAID A new village well near the development is complete. However, work on a reservoir and pump is incomplete. He said that if the bonds go unsold after the development is built, Chesterfield "would be asked to defray proportionate costs of finishing the facility."

Thompson also asked that the builders be limited to a building height of 25 feet. To this they readily agreed. The anticipated height of the buildings is 21 feet.

Thompson asked for that agreement because the height limitation on apartment buildings in planned developments is currently being reconsidered by the village.

Representatives of the builder also took care to point out that Chesterfield plans to retain ownership of the development after it is complete.

"Chesterfield has a policy of managing the apartments it builds," said Fred Hillman, vice president of the company.

BUT THE DEVELOPERS saved their best for last. "Their best" was a 23-page report compiled by the Institute of Urban Life, detailing the "financial impact of the proposed apartment-commercial development on Buffalo Grove and school districts 96 and 125."

Essentially the report said that Buffalo Grove would "receive net financial benefits from the subject property being developed under the proposed apartment-commercial plan, but the village would incur net financial costs if this property were to be developed with single-family homes."

When it was over, there were few questions from trustees. No one at the hearing testified against the proposed development.

Court Date Is Postponed

A Libertyville company will have its day in court to demand payment for the Wheeling veteran's memorial monument, but that day will be two weeks later than expected.

The two-week delay is a welcome one to Wheeling citizens who are trying to raise $2,100 and interest still owed on the monument, which was purchased in 1967 for $3,040.

Working hardest of all is Gene Hicks, the citizen who promoted the idea of the monument in the first place. He is the man being sued for the remainder of the money by Simpson Granite Works of Libertyville.

HICKS TOLD THE Herald Wednesday that he received a call from the clerk of court in Libertyville who said by mistake his case had been scheduled for Wednesday when court is not in session. Instead, the date should have been yesterday.

Upon learning the date was to be changed, Hicks asked for two more weeks so he could raise more money.

The court date was delayed until Oct. 24. Hicks said that a variety of organizations in the village have volunteered to help. These include Wheeling's Jaycees and the Chamber of Commerce.

Donations to help pay for the granite monument, which is in Heritage Park, are tax deductible. They may be sent to VFW Post 7178, Box 235, Wheeling.

Crash Kills 2

Two men were killed and two others seriously injured in a two-car collision on Central Road just west of Busse Road in Mount Prospect early yesterday.

Marine Lt. Gary Spohn, 22, a Vietnam veteran who recently moved from Buffalo Grove to Kansas, was pronounced dead on arrival at Northwest Community Hospital. A passenger in Spohn's car, 23-year-old David Bethards of Racine, Wis., was also killed in the crash.

Lee Cunningham, 27, of Rolling Meadows, is listed in serious condition at Northwest Community Hospital after the car he was driving apparently collided with Spohn's car. Both cars were traveling westbound on Central Road, according to police.

POLICE ESTIMATED that Spohn was driving in the outer lane at approximately 100 miles per hour when Cunningham's car, traveling at a low rate of speed, drifted into the outer lane and collided with Spohn's car.

Police estimated from evidence found at the scene of the accident, that Spohn's car jumped the northwest curb of the parkway, struck a fire hydrant and flipped over one and a half times before hitting a tree 278 feet from the crash.

A second passenger in Spohn's auto, Edward Springhoff, 22, of Kenosha, Wis., is listed in serious condition with multiple injuries at Holy Family Hospital in Des Plaines.

DEBRIS FROM THE collision struck a third vehicle driven by Paul Dumke, 21, of Arlington Heights. Dumke told police he was traveling east on Central Road near the Bruning Co. plant when he heard an explosion and then his car was hit with debris from the accident.

Dumke, who was not injured, told police he did not see the cars collide.

Sorry, Wrong Number

One of the phone numbers which persons may use to receive ticket information about a speech next Tuesday by the Rev. Paul Lindstrom was incorrectly listed in yesterday's Herald.

The correct phone numbers are 537-7430 and 537-3193.

RIGHT IN STEP. The Wheeling High School marching band will be one of eight bands from Illinois and Indiana competing in the fourth annual Chicagoland Marching Band Festival Saturday. Wheeling High School is hosting the event, which will be held on the WHS football field at 7 p.m. Trophies will be awarded to the top competing bands.

'Sliceway' Adds Rail?

Another step has been taken in plans to construct a six-lane expressway that will slice across the Northwest suburbs from Evanston to Palatine, and possibly divide Prospect Heights in half.

Wednesday night, O. V. Anderson, representative of the Lochner Consulting firm which is preparing the plans, told the Arlington Heights Planning Commission that a rail rapid transit might be included with the expressway.

Anderson said the Lochner firm is now exploring the possibility of combining a mass transportation facilities with free-way facilities.

The finished product might be something like the transit system being constructed in the center of the Kennedy Expressway.

Residents in Prospect Heights have been listening to rumors for two years that one route considered for the expressway will run west from Evanston paralleling Golf Road, turn north paralleling Rand Road, one and one-half miles to the east, and finally terminate at Route 53 in Palatine.

The Lochner firm has developed 12 to 15 plans, partly in an effort to appease the protest of communities that will be divided by the Golf-Rand route.

According to state highway officials

some decision should be reached this year or early next year on the route.

Arlington Heights residents are leaders in condoning the Golf-Rand route. Prospect Heights and Glenview have been leading a protest to stop this route.

In June, 1,000 residents from Glenview protested the Golf-Rand expressway at a meeting sponsored by the City Committee on the North Suburban Expressway.

The eastern arm of the expressway is projected to roughly parallel Golf Road, which runs slightly south of Glenview.

Glenview residents are in favor of a more northern route running along Willow Road (Palatine Road) and terminating at Route 53.

According to Bill DeWaal, president of the Prospect Heights-Euclid-Lake Homeowners Association, "Our organization feels strongly too that Palatine Road would be a better route."

The Euclid-Lake association will make no formal objection to the Rand-Golf route until they know definitely where the expressway will go. They have formed a "watchdog" committee to wait for the Lochner firm's decision said DeWaal.

Concerning the additional plans for a rapid rail transit, DeWaal said, "My own personal observation is that a transit system sounds like a good idea. The important question is where will it go."

T. N. Lefebvre, member of the Randwood Homeowners Association and a representative to the Northwest Suburban Council agreed with DeWaal saying, "I think a rail rapid transit is a worthwhile addition. We are going to have to wait and see where they propose to put it."

Lefebvre also said that at a coffee held at his home last week Rep. Eugene Schlickman suggested that the expressway could be developed along Rand Road itself. His second proposal was to utilize Northwest Highway and terminate the expressway at Route 53.

Edward Grodsky, Dist. 23 school superintendent, said, "If a commuter line is put in the planned expressway it would probably bring more residents into the community. I hope to see our community saturated so we can better predict how many schools will be needed in the district."

Concerning the proposed Golf-Rand route which would slice diagonally across the Dist. 23 three-school campus site at Palatine Road and Schoenbeck Road, he said, "I don't know if it can be done legally. It is not like condemning a home. This is public property."

TWO MEN WERE KILLED in a three-car collision on Central Road, just west of Busse Road, in Mount Prospect early yesterday. The death vehicle, pictured above, was driven by Gary Spohn, 22, who recently moved from Buffalo Grove to Kansas. Both Spohn and a passenger, David Bethards, 23, of Racine, Wis., were killed instantly. Two others were seriously injured in the crash. Police said Spohn's car was traveling nearly 100 miles an hour at the time of impact.

Scout Outlet Will Benefit

(Editor's Note: The 1969 United Fund campaign in the Wheeling-Buffalo Grove area will be conducted next week. Last year campaigners collected $12,000, which was distributed among seven local organizations. This year, the fund raisers hope to collect $14,400. Continuing today is the fourth in a five-part series on the recipients of United Fund proceeds.)

by SUE CARSON

Young people of the area can find a constructive outlet for their energy and enthusiasm in three local youth programs — the Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts and Campfire Girls.

Currently 20 Boy Scout troops are operating in the Wheeling-Buffalo Grove area; seven more Scout units are scheduled to start within the next several months.

A variety of programs is undertaken by the Boy Scout units, aimed at building character, encouraging physical fitness and promoting citizenship training.

THE WHEELING-BUFFALO GROVE Scout units belong to the North Star District of the Boy Scouts of America.

Money collected from the United Fund goes to the Northwest Suburban Council of the Boy Scouts of America, which serves communities throughout the Northwest suburbs.

The council, with offices in Des Plaines, provides services to Scout groups.

A professional staff of volunteer commissioners from that office can offer suggestions to units to which they are assigned.

The office also helps organize new Scout units and provides training to prospective Scout leaders.

"WE TRAIN LEADERS to be successful," Totzke said. "Our feeling is that no one takes on the job to be a failure."

Cub Scout leaders once a month may attend a round-table, or program planning session.

United Fund money also helps to operate two Boy Scout summer camps in Wisconsin, which are attended by many boys from the Wheeling-Buffalo Grove area.

Approximately 10,000 Campfire Girls in Cook County are serviced by the Campfire Girls' council headquarters in Chicago.

Approximately 150 of these girls are from the Wheeling-Buffalo Grove area, where there are now 16 troops.

In the past year these girls have performed such projects as cleaning up litter around Buffalo Grove Creek and making Christmas gifts for elderly persons at Adolorata Villa in Wheeling.

Money from the United Fund is used by the Chicago office to pay staff salaries, provide training programs for Campfire leaders, program research, and to operate a summer camp in Westfield, Wis.

A SMALL BRANCH SERVICE center is located in Arlington Heights. Two field directors from this center provide ideas and assistance to Campfire units in the northern suburbs.

Making toys for children's homes and entertaining residents of local homes for the elderly are two activities undertaken recently by the Girl Scouts of the Wheeling-Buffalo Grove area. At present, 1,213 girls in the area belong to the Girl Scouts. There are 59 troops and 118 adult leaders.

These troops are under the jurisdiction of the Girl Scout Council of Northwest Cook County, which serves 19 area communities.

Money from the Wheeling-Buffalo Grove United Fund will be used by the professional staff of the council to aid volunteer leaders in developing their local Scout programs, for staff salaries and for maintaining the council office, which is located in Des Plaines.

A large portion of the council's funds is used to maintain and operate 11 Girl Scout camps.

TWO OF THESE ARE overnight camps. Camp Norwesco, located in New Auburn, Wis., is open each year from June through August.

Happy Hollow Camp, located in East Troy, Wis., may be reserved by individual troops for hikes, cook-outs, and horseback riding.

The council also operates nine Girl Scout summer day camps. Most Scouts from the Wheeling-Buffalo Grove area attend the day camp in Potawatomi Woods near Wheeling.

Money for the council is received from the Metropolitan Crusade of Mercy, of which the United Fund is a part. Financial support also comes from membership enrollment, gifts and annual cookie sale.

Groundbreaking Is Area's Tops

by MARY REIFSCHNEIDER

It was a groundbreaking that surpassed all others.

But then it was for Woodfield Mall, Schaumburg's shopping center that will surpass all other shopping centers.

Under a red and white striped tent, set on the dusty 191 acres at Route 53 and Golf Road, several hundred businessmen, government officials and members of the press gathered Wednesday morning to hear just how superlative Woodfield Mall will be.

A. Alfred Taubman, chairman of The Taubman Co., developer and manager for Woodfield Associates, said now the largest center to his knowledge has 1.4 million square feet of leasable space. Woodfield will have 1.7 million.

"WOODFIELD MALL is designed with the newest and freshest thinking to come in the past 20 years. It was designed with the theory that the closer the proximity of the stores, the better for all tenants," Taubman said.

Woodfield will have 160 satellite stores spaced between the three department stores — Sears, Roebuck and Co., J. C. Penney, and Marshall Field.

By using interlocking malls between the three levels, the center will give maximum exposure to shops and save on walking time for customers.

Taubman said every major Chicago area store has made inquiries about leasing space in Woodfield and major fashion stores from the east and west coasts are also interested.

THE CENTER'S volume in the first year will be in excess of $180 million, Taubman said.

C. J. Kennedy, representing Sears, said it's going to be a "magnificent center. We're proud to be part of it."

Erald P. Sivage, president of Marshall Field's, said, "This is going to be some kind of development. We'll be a good neighbor."

J. C. Penney is "looking forward with pleasure to opening its Woodfield store," H. W. Wright, regional vice president, said. This will be the largest of Penney's 1,700 stores.

The Field's and Sears stores will also be the largest in the Chicago area.

SCHAUMBURG MAYOR Robert O. Atcher told the audience "Schaumburg is a planned community. We started with plowed ground. There was no development. We took five years to plan before we opened it to development."

"We've had phenomenal success in fulfilling that plan. Schaumburg will not be a bedroom to Chicago," he said.

He gave a special thank-you to Sears for being the "first to see the potential" of the shopping site.

Outside the tent, the crowd watched fireworks go off as the first shovels of dirt were turned and caterpillars moved earth. The $90 million center will be completed by late 1971 or early 1972. It will employ some 6,000 persons and serve 70,000 to 80,000 shoppers per day.

TODAY THE SITE is within 10 minutes driving time of 600,000 people living in Northwest Cook County and North DuPage County. By 1975, the 10 minute population is estimated at 800,000.

day for distributing unauthorized literature, the day was spent in study hall. They received in-school suspensions which keep them in the building but do not permit them to go to classes for three to five days.

"THE COMPLAINTS these students made are being discussed through regular channels now," Weimer said. "I have put one of the girls on the principal's advisory council."

The advisory council is made up of students and faculty appointed and elected by the students and administrators faculty, and the principal. It meets bi-monthly to discuss student complaints and problems.

"I think this has shown the students we will not allow school to be disrupted," Weimer said. "I'm glad nothing serious happened."

3-Minute Walkout a 'Non'

by JUDY BRANDES

It was 10 a.m.

A few cars with curious mothers in them drove slowly past William Fremd High School. They were watching the front door — for the expected walkout.

The walkout was to protest the school dress code, the closed campus policy and the lack of a smoking area in the school.

Four of the long windows in the new addition opened and heads popped out. The blinds in rooms on the first floor of the high school went up and faces peeked out.

A couple of teachers walked out the front door with a school photographer to watch.

THE DRIVER EDUCATION teacher and three students walked out and got in the marked cars sitting in front of the school.

A woman in the brown house across the street came out to shake her rugs.

From the outside, nothing happened at Fremd High School yesterday when second period ended.

Inside, when classes changed 35 students gathered at one end of the first floor east corridor. Some sat down.

Principal Carl Weimer was in conference with a salesman and came late to the "meeting."

ASSISTANT PRINCIPAL Thomas Hillesheim walked up to the group, composed primarily of juniors and a few sophomores.

"You have three minutes to get back to classes," he said. "Tardiness won't be counted until three minutes has passed. If any of you want to leave, you will be suspended until your parents come in for a conference."

The group broke up. Apparently none decided to leave, for tardy and absence slips sent to the office for third period didn't show anyone missing. The crisis was over.

"We've had a lot of support from parents who said not to back down on discipline," Principal Weimer said. "My phone rang constantly yesterday afternoon."

"I'M HAPPY THAT school wasn't disrupted," Hillesheim said. "I think the kids were smart to go back to class."

The threatened walkout affected very few of the school's 1,800 students. One mother kept her two boys home because of the possible walkout. A couple of students didn't come to school at all because they wanted to participate and thought it would be better to stay out the whole day.

For the five students suspended yesterday

Warman Backers Organize

A local group to elect Democrat Edward Warman to Congress is being formed in Elk Grove Village.

The group, called Independent Citizens of Elk Grove for the Election of Edward Warman to Congress, is being formed into a committee by Daniel Gilbert, Elk Grove Park District board member.

"I am not endorsing Warman in my capacity as a public official, but as an individual," Gilbert stressed.

"The committee is being formed to offer an alternative for Republicans and individuals who feel that the Republican candidate will not truly represent their views in Congress.

"IT WILL STRESS positive programs

advocated by Warman in areas of suburban transportation problems, the fight against inflation and the Vietnam War, he explained.

Gilbert said he formulated the idea of a Warman committee after looking over Tuesday's election results. The Republican primary Tuesday was won by Phillip Crane, a conservative from Winnetka. Warman is from Skokie.

Gilbert said if people of the district would take the time to study the diametrically opposed viewpoints of the two candidates, Warman would emerge as the winner in November.

"I am asking those who wish to work for the election of Warman to call 437-5087," Gilbert said.

Master Plan May Change

Wheeling's village manager is planning to update the village's general development master plan and its zoning and official map.

Matthew Golden, the village manager, told The Herald that a detailed study of the village will be conducted by Thompson Dyke, village planner from Harlan Bartholomew and Associates.

Golden said that the village board will approve the new study in the near future.

A public hearing on proposed changes will be held after Dyke completes his study.

Currently, the village has a master plan and amended zoning and official maps based on a 1961 study by Storton and Rockwell Associates, and a 1963 study by M.F. Rupp Associates.

IN ADDITION to the two maps which have been updated by village planning commission and zoning board hearings periodically, Dyke will revise the main study, which includes recommendations for industrial development, estimates of predicted population growth, eventual boundaries for the village, recommendations for types of housing developments and their locations, a study of the labor market and other factors.

Golden said the revisions are needed because the village's population has doubled since that study was made.

Some of the recommendations in the original study are now either impossible or not logical because of developments and building in surrounding villages and unincorporated areas.

Edwin Majkowski, who is in charge of the scenery and props for the show, said the council put on its first program in 1961 and has done several since then.

"I HOPE EVERY chair in the Little Theater will be filled so that the youths of the area will receive maximum benefit," he said.

Directing the show are Mr. and Mrs. Don Heideman, assisted by Mrs. Edwin Majkowski and Bob Rymer.

Tickets for the show may be purchased at the door or from Mrs. Majkowski, 537-4472.

Guard Put on Alert

CHICAGO — An order for 2,000 Illinois National Guardsmen to stand by for duty in Chicago to cope with disturbances by demonstrators was issued yesterday by Gov. Richard Ogilvie.

The move to bulwark Chicago's defense against demonstrators came on the second day of a threatened four-day protest led by a militant faction of the Students for a Democratic Society.

Lodge Called Home

WASHINGTON — President Nixon, embarking on a new round of discussions with his top Vietnam advisors, summoned Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge home from the Paris peace talks, the White House announced yesterday.

Press Secretary Ronald Ziegler said the President would meet with Lodge and his chief deputy at the talks with the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong, Philip Hlabib, sometimes next week.

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS CHILDREN will be able to climb over, stand in and hide behind seven castles made by Forms, Inc., next year. The Arlington Heights park district has purchased seven of the castles made of five modular

Annual Appeal Is On

October has been chosen by the Prospect Heights Annual Appeal for a month-long collection campaign. The appeal is part of an annual drive for the Metropolitan Crusade of Mercy.

Every resident will be contacted by volunteers from the community. According to Don Colby, president of the Prospect Heights organization, approximately 150 volunteers are collecting donations now.

"As a participant in the Metropolitan Crusade of Mercy, residents need only make one donation, either at their place of employment or at home," said Ralph Decker, campaign chairman.

A GOAL OF $12,500 has been set. The money will be sent to the Metropolitan Crusade of Mercy headquarters in Chicago and disbursed back to individual community charities.

"We will send the money to local organizations in different installments during the year. Some of the organizations which will receive funds are the Clearbrook Center for the Retarded, various Scouting groups, schools for the blind and Little City," said Colby.

The 15-member board for the Prospect Heights annual appeal will meet periodically during the year to distribute the funds.

According to Bill DeWaal, president of the Prospect Heights-Euclid-Lake Homeowners Association, "Our organization feels strongly too that Palatine Road would be a better route."

The Euclid-Lake association will make no formal objection to the Rand-Golf route until they know definitely where the expressway will go. They have formed a "watchdog" committee to wait for the Lochner firm's decision said DeWaal.

Concerning the additional plans for a rapid rail transit, DeWaal said, "My own personal observation is that a transit system sounds like a good idea. The important question is where will it go."

T. N. Lefebvre, member of the Randwood Homeowners Association and a representative to the Northwest Suburban

Council agreed with DeWaal saying, "I think a rail rapid transit is a worthwhile addition. We are going to have to wait and see where they propose to put it."

Lefebvre also said that at a coffee held at his home last week Rep. Eugene Schlickman suggested that the expressway could be developed along Rand Road itself. His second proposal was to utilize Northwest Highway and terminate the expressway at Route 53.

Edward Grodzky, Dist. 23 school superintendent, said, "If a commuter line is put in the planned expressway it would probably bring more residents into the community. I hope to see our community saturated so we can better predict how many schools will be needed in the district."

Concerning the proposed Golf-Rand route which would slice diagonally across the Dist. 23 three-school campus site at Palatine Road and Schoenbeck Road, he said, "I don't know if it can be done legally. It is not like condemning a home. This is public property."

MacArthur to Sell Magazines In Oct.

MacArthur Junior High School has launched its second annual magazine sales campaign in cooperation with the Curtis Publications Co. It will run until Oct. 24.

Fund earned from the campaign will be used for completion of landscaping in the school's court yard. In addition, several tape recorders and tapes will be purchased to be used in the social studies curriculum.

Magazines will be sold door-to-door after school by the students at standard advertised prices. First copies will be delivered within ten weeks.

According to Gerald McGovern, school principal, "The campaign will provide the Student Senate, the sponsor of the project, with a source of revenue to promote worthwhile activities. It will also provide our students with an opportunity for training in salesmanship and business education."

Trailer Is Stolen

Wheeling police are investigating the theft of a 20-foot-long flatbed trailer.

The trailer was taken from 112 Mockingbird Lane sometime after 10 a.m. Friday, police said. It belonged to Pederson Masonry, Inc., of Park Ridge.

Police said a truck cab would have been needed to haul the trailer away.

PR Board Meets Today

Wheeling's Public Relations Commission will meet tonight at 8:30 p.m. in the municipal building at 255 W. Dundee Road.

The meeting was postponed one week from its normal meeting date.

TWO MEN WERE KILLED in a three-car collision on Central Road, just west of Busse Road, in Mount Prospect early yesterday. The death vehicle, pictured above, was driven by Gary Spohn, 22, who recently moved from Buffalo Grove to Kansas. Both Spohn and a passenger, David Bethards, 23, of Racine, Wis., were killed instantly. Two others were seriously injured in the crash. Police said Spohn's car was traveling nearly 100 miles an hour at the time of impact.

Scout Outlet Will Benefit

(Editor's Note: The 1969 United Fund campaign in the Wheeling-Buffalo Grove area will be conducted next week. Last year campaigners collected $12,000, which was distributed among seven local organizations. This year, the fund raisers hope to collect $14,400. Continuing today is the fourth in a five-part series on the recipients of United Fund proceeds.)

by SUE CARSON

Young people of the area can find a constructive outlet for their energy and enthusiasm in three local youth programs — the Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts and Campfire Girls.

Currently 20 Boy Scout troops are operating in the Wheeling-Buffalo Grove area; seven more Scout units are scheduled to start within the next several months.

A variety of programs is undertaken by the Boy Scout units, aimed at building character, encouraging physical fitness and promoting citizenship training.

THE WHEELING-BUFFALO Grove Scout units belong to the North Star District of the Boy Scouts of America.

Money collected from the United Fund goes to the Northwest Suburban Council of the Boy Scouts of America, which serves communities throughout the Northwest suburbs.

The council, with offices in Des Plaines, provides services to Scout groups.

A professional staff of volunteer commissioners from that office can offer suggestions to units to which they are assigned.

The office also helps organize new Scout units and provides training to prospective Scout leaders.

"WE TRAIN LEADERS to be successful," Totzke said. "Our feeling is that no one takes on the job to be a failure."

Cub Scout leaders once a month may attend a round-table, or program planning session.

United Fund money also helps to operate two Boy Scout summer camps in Wisconsin, which are attended by many boys from the Wheeling-Buffalo Grove area.

Approximately 10,000 Campfire Girls in Cook County are serviced by the Campfire Girls' council headquarters in Chicago.

Approximately 150 of these girls are from the Wheeling-Buffalo Grove area, where there are now 16 troops.

In the past year these girls have performed such projects as cleaning up litter around Buffalo Grove Creek and making Christmas gifts for elderly persons at Adolorata Villa in Wheeling.

Money from the United Fund is used by the Chicago office to pay staff salaries, provide training programs for Campfire leaders, program research, and to operate a summer camp in Westfield, Wis.

A SMALL BRANCH SERVICE center is located in Arlington Heights. Two field directors from this center provide ideas and assistance to Campfire units in the northern suburbs.

Making toys for children's homes and entertaining residents of local homes for the elderly are two activities undertaken recently by the Girl Scouts of the Wheeling-Buffalo Grove area. At present, 1,218 girls in the area belong to the Girl Scouts. There are 59 troops and 118 adult leaders.

These troops are under the jurisdiction of the Girl Scout Council of Northwest Cook County, which serves 19 area communities.

Money from the Wheeling-Buffalo Grove United Fund will be used by the professional staff of the council to aid volunteer leaders in developing their local Scout programs, for staff salaries and for maintaining the council office, which is located in Des Plaines.

A large portion of the council's funds is used to maintain and operate 11 Girl Scout camps.

TWO OF THESE ARE overnight camps. Camp Norwesco, located in New Auburn, Wis., is open each year from June through August.

Happy Hollow Camp, located in East Troy, Wis., may be reserved by individual troops for hikes, cook-outs, and horseback riding.

The council also operates nine Girl Scout summer day camps. Most Scouts from the Wheeling-Buffalo Grove area attend the day camp in Potawatomi Woods near Wheeling.

Money for the council is received from the Metropolitan Crusade of Mercy, of which the United Fund is a part. Financial support also comes from membership enrollment, gifts and annual cookie sale.

3-Minute Walkout a 'Non'

by JUDY BRANDES

It was 10 a.m.

A few cars with curious mothers in them drove slowly past William Fremd High School. They were watching the front door—for the expected walkout.

The walkout was to protest the school dress code, the closed campus policy and the lack of a smoking area in the school.

Four of the long windows in the new addition opened and heads popped out. The blinds in rooms on the first floor of the high school went up and faces peeked out.

A couple of teachers walked out the front door with a school photographer to watch.

THE DRIVER EDUCATION teacher and three students walked out and got in the marked cars sitting in front of the school.

A woman in the brown house across the street came out to shake her rug.

From the outside, nothing happened at Fremd High School yesterday when second period ended.

Inside, when classes changed 35 students gathered at one end of the first floor east corridor. Some sat down.

Principal Carl Weimer was in conference with a salesman and came late to the "meeting."

ASSISTANT PRINCIPAL Thomas Hillesheim walked up to the group, composed primarily of juniors and a few sophomores.

"You have three minutes to get back to classes," he said. "Tardiness won't be counted until three minutes has passed. If any of you want to leave, you will be suspended until your parents come in for a conference."

The group broke up. Apparently none decided to leave, for tardy and absence slips sent to the office for third period didn't show anyone missing. The crisis was over.

"We've had a lot of support from parents who said not to back down on discipline," Principal Weimer said. "My phone rang constantly yesterday afternoon."

"I'M HAPPY THAT school wasn't disrupted," Hillesheim said. "I think the kids were smart to go back to class."

The threatened walkout affected very few of the school's 1,800 students. One mother kept her two boys home because of the possible walkout. A couple of students didn't come to school at all because they wanted to participate and thought it would be better to stay out the whole day.

For the five students suspended yesterday

day for distributing unauthorized literature, the day was spent in study hall. They received in-school suspensions which keep them in the building but do not permit them to go to classes for three to five days.

"THE COMPLAINTS these students made are being discussed through regular channels now," Weimer said. "I have put one of the girls on the principal's advisory council."

The advisory council is made up of students and faculty appointed and elected by the students and administrators faculty, and the principal. It meets bi-monthly to discuss student complaints and problems.

"I think this has shown the students we will not allow school to be disrupted," Weimer said. "I'm glad nothing serious happened."

Warman Backers Organize

A local group to elect Democrat Edward Warman to Congress is being formed in Elk Grove Village.

The group, called Independent Citizens of Elk Grove for the Election of Edward Warman to Congress, is being formed into a committee by Daniel Gilbert, Elk Grove Park District board member.

"I am not endorsing Warman in my capacity as a public official, but as an individual," Gilbert stressed.

"The committee is being formed to offer an alternative for Republicans and individuals who feel that the Republican candidate will not truly represent their views in Congress.

"IT WILL STRESS positive programs

advocated by Warman in areas of suburban transportation problems, the fight against inflation and the Vietnam War, he explained.

Gilbert said he formulated the idea of a Warman committee after looking over Tuesday's election results. The Republican primary Tuesday was won by Philip Crane, a conservative from Winnetka. Warman is from Skokie.

Gilbert said if people of the district would take the time to study the diametrically opposed viewpoints of the two candidates, Warman would emerge as the winner in November.

"I am asking those who wish to work for the election of Warman to call 437-5087," Gilbert said.

Master Plan May Change

Wheeling's village manager is planning to update the village's general development master plan and its zoning and official map.

Matthew Golden, the village manager, told The Herald that a detailed study of the village will be conducted by Thompson Dyke, village planner from Harlan Bartholomew and Associates.

Golden said that the village board will approve the new study in the near future.

A public hearing on proposed changes will be held after Dyke completes his study.

Currently, the village has a master plan and amended zoning and official maps based on a 1961 study by Stanton and Rockwell Associates, and a 1963 study by M.F. Rupp Associates.

IN ADDITION to the two maps which have been updated by village planning commission and zoning board hearings periodically, Dyke will revise the main study, which includes recommendations for industrial development, estimates of predicted population growth, eventual boundaries for the village, recommendations for types of housing developments and their locations, a study of the labor market and other factors.

Golden said the revisions are needed because the village's population has doubled since that study was made.

Some of the recommendations in the original study are now either impossible or not logical because of developments and building in surrounding villages and unincorporated areas.

Dancing, Songs In School Show

Chorus lines, comedy routines, dances and songs will be featured in "Rambling Minstrels" tonight and Saturday at Wheeling High School.

About 40 residents of the Wheeling-Buffalo Grove area will be featured in the show, which will begin at 8 p.m. both evenings. The program is sponsored by the Regina Council of the Knights of Columbus. Proceeds will be used to help finance youth activities in the area.

Edwin Majkowski, who is in charge of the scenery and props for the show, said the council put on its first program in 1961 and has done several since then.

"I HOPE EVERY chair in the Little Theater will be filled so that the youths of the area will receive maximum benefit," he said.

Directing the show are Mr. and Mrs. Don Heideman, assisted by Mrs. Edwin Majkowski and Bob Rymer.

Tickets for the show may be purchased at the door or from Mrs. Majkowski, 537-4472.

Guard Put on Alert

CHICAGO — An order for 2,000 Illinois National Guardsmen to stand by for duty in Chicago to cope with disturbances by demonstrators was issued yesterday by Gov. Richard Ogilvie.

The move to bulwark Chicago's defense against demonstrators came on the second day of a threatened four-day protest led by a militant faction of the Students for a Democratic Society.

Lodge Called Home

WASHINGTON — President Nixon, embarking on a new round of discussions with his top Vietnam advisors, summoned Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge home from the Paris peace talks, the White House announced yesterday.

Press Secretary Ronald Ziegler said the President would meet with Lodge and his chief deputy at the talks with the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong, Philip Habib, sometimes next week.

Chesterfield Is a 'Hit'

The show was a hit at last week's Buffalo Grove plan commission public hearing. And it went over just as well at a public hearing held by the village board Wednesday night.

Subject of the hearings was the proposed annexation and development of about 31 acres on the northeast corner of Arlington Heights and Lake-Cook roads. Chesterfield Development Corp. wants to build a planned development on the property with a neighborhood shopping center on the corner.

The "show" consisted of the presentation made by Chesterfield representatives concerning the proposed development. Just as he had a week earlier with the village plan commission, Arthur Salzman, president of Chesterfield, attended Wednesday's hearing with seven other spokesmen.

THE VILLAGE BOARD made no decision on the proposed annexation Wednesday. Instead it will discuss the matter further at future village board meetings before finally deciding on the proposal.

Of the 31 acres, 27 will be used for an apartment complex. On the remaining four acres, a small shopping center will be built.

In the apartment complex will be 435 one- and two-bedroom apartments in 18 two-story buildings. The buildings will surround recreational facilities. No less than 40 per cent of the apartments will be one-bedroom.

Village Pres. Don Thompson told builders he will want a stipulation on the annexation agreement that "they would either wait until the (water works and sewerage) bond issue is sold, or else complete their own water facilities."

THOMPSON SAID A new village well near the development is complete. However, work on a reservoir and pump is incomplete. He said that if the bonds go unsold after the development is built, Chesterfield "would be asked to defray proportionate costs of finishing the facility."

Thompson also asked that the builders be limited to a building height of 25 feet. To this they readily agreed. The anticipated height of the buildings is 21 feet.

Thompson asked for that agreement because the height limitation on apartment buildings in planned developments is currently being reconsidered by the village.

Representatives of the builder also took care to point out that Chesterfield plans to retain ownership of the development after it is complete.

"Chesterfield has a policy of managing the apartments it builds," said Fred Hillman, vice president of the company.

BUT THE DEVELOPERS saved their best for last. "Their best" was a 23-page report compiled by the Institute of Urban Life, detailing the "financial impact of the proposed apartment-commercial development on Buffalo Grove and school districts 96 and 125."

Essentially the report said that Buffalo Grove would "receive net financial benefits from the subject property being developed under the proposed apartment-commercial plan, but the village would incur net financial costs if this property were to be developed with single-family homes."

When it was over, there were few questions from trustees. No one at the hearing testified against the proposed development.

Court Date Is Postponed

A Libertyville company will have its day in court to demand payment for the Wheeling veteran's memorial monument, but that day will be two weeks later than expected.

The two-week delay is a welcome one to Wheeling citizens who are trying to raise $2,100 and interest still owed on the monument, which was purchased in 1967 for $3,040.

Working hardest of all is Gene Hicks, the citizen who promoted the idea of the monument in the first place. He is the man being sued for the remainder of the money by Simpson Granite Works of Libertyville.

HICKS TOLD THE Herald Wednesday that he received a call from the clerk of court in Libertyville who said by mistake his case had been scheduled for Wednesday when court is not in session. Instead, the date should have been yesterday.

Upon learning the date was to be changed, Hicks asked for two more weeks so he could raise more money.

The court date was delayed until Oct. 24. Hicks said that a variety of organizations in the village have volunteered to help. These include Wheeling's Jaycees and the Chamber of Commerce.

Donations to help pay for the granite monument, which is in Heritage Park, are tax deductible. They may be sent to VFW Post 7178, Box 235, Wheeling.

Crash Kills 2

Two men were killed and two others seriously injured in a two-car collision on Central Road just west of Busse Road in Mount Prospect early yesterday.

Marine Lt. Gary Spohn, 22, a Vietnam veteran who recently moved from Buffalo Grove to Kansas, was pronounced dead on arrival at Northwest Community Hospital. A passenger in Spohn's car, 23-year-old David Bethards of Racine, Wis., was also killed in the crash.

Lee Cunningham, 27, of Rolling Meadows, is listed in serious condition at Northwest Community Hospital after the car he was driving apparently collided with Spohn's car. Both cars were traveling westbound on Central Road, according to police.

POLICE ESTIMATED that Spohn was driving in the outer lane at approximately 100 miles per hour when Cunningham's car, traveling at a low rate of speed, drifted into the outer lane and collided with Spohn's car.

Police estimated from evidence found at the scene of the accident, that Spohn's car jumped the northwest curb of the parkway, struck a fire hydrant and flipped over one and a half times before hitting a tree 278 feet from the crash.

A second passenger in Spohn's auto, Edward Springhoff, 22, of Kenosha, Wis., is listed in serious condition with multiple injuries at Holy Family Hospital in Des Plaines.

DEBRIS FROM THE collision struck a third vehicle driven by Paul Dumke, 21, of Arlington Heights. Dumke told police he was traveling east on Central Road near the Bruning Co. plant when he heard an explosion and then his car was hit with debris from the accident.

Dumke, who was not injured, told police he did not see the cars collide.

RIGHT IN STEP. The Wheeling High School marching band will be one of eight bands from Illinois and Indiana competing in the fourth annual Chicagoland Marching Band

'Sliceway' Adds Rail?

Another step has been taken in plans to construct a six-lane expressway that will slice across the Northwest suburbs from Evanston to Palatine, and possibly divide Prospect Heights in half.

Wednesday night, O. V. Anderson, representative of the Lochner Consulting firm which is preparing the plans, told the Arlington Heights Planning Commission that a rail rapid transit might be included with the expressway.

Anderson said the Lochner firm is now exploring the possibility of combining mass transportation facilities with freeway facilities.

The finished product might be something like the transit system being constructed in the center of the Kennedy Expressway.

Residents in Prospect Heights have been listening to rumors for two years that one route considered for the expressway will run west from Evanston paralleling Golf Road, turn north paralleling Rand Road, one and one-half miles to the east, and finally terminate at Route 53 in Palatine.

The Lochner firm has developed 12 to 15 plans, partly in an effort to appease the protest of communities that will be divided by the Golf-Rand route.

According to state highway officials

some decision should be reached this year or early next year on the route.

Arlington Heights residents are leaders in condoning the Golf-Rand route. Prospect Heights and Glenview have been leading a protest to stop this route.

In June, 1,000 residents from Glenview protested the Golf-Rand expressway at a meeting sponsored by the City Committee on the North Suburban Expressway.

The eastern arm of the expressway is projected to roughly parallel Golf Road, which runs slightly south of Glenview.

Glenview residents are in favor of a more northern route running along Willow Road (Palatine Road) and terminating at Route 53.

According to Bill DeWaal, president of the Prospect Heights-Euclid-Lake Homeowners Association, "Our organization feels strongly too that Palatine Road would be a better route."

The Euclid-Lake association will make no formal objection to the Rand-Golf route until they know definitely where the expressway will go. They have formed a "watchdog" committee to wait for the Lochner firm's decision said DeWaal.

Concerning the additional plans for a rapid rail transit, DeWaal said, "My own personal observation is that a transit system sounds like a good idea. The important question is where will it go."

T. N. Lefebvre, member of the Randwood Homeowners Association and a representative to the Northwest Suburban Council agreed with DeWaal saying, "I think a rail rapid transit is a worthwhile addition. We are going to have to wait and see where they propose to put it."

Lefebvre also said that at a coffee held at his home last week Rep. Eugene Schlickman suggested that the expressway could be developed along Rand Road itself. His second proposal was to utilize Northwest Highway and terminate the expressway at Route 53.

Edward Grodzky, Dist. 23 school superintendent, said, "If a commuter line is put in the planned expressway it would probably bring more residents into the community. I hope to see our community saturated so we can better predict how many schools will be needed in the district."

Concerning the proposed Golf-Rand route which would slice diagonally across the Dist. 23 three-school campus site at Palatine Road and Schoenbeck Road, he said, "I don't know if it can be done legally. It is not like condemning a home. This is public property."

TWO MEN WERE KILLED in a three-car collision on Central Road, just west of Busse Road, in Mount Prospect early yesterday. The death vehicle, pictured above, was driven by Gary Spohn, 22, who recently moved from Buffalo Grove to Kansas. Both Spohn and a passenger, David Bethards, 23, of Racine, Wis., were killed instantly. Two others were seriously injured in the crash. Police said Spohn's car was traveling nearly 100 miles an hour at the time of impact.

Scout Outlet Will Benefit

(Editor's Note: The 1969 United Fund campaign in the Wheeling-Buffalo Grove area will be conducted next week. Last year campaigners collected $12,000, which was distributed among seven local organizations. This year, the fund raisers hope to collect $14,100. Continuing today is the fourth in a five-part series on the recipients of United Fund proceeds.)

by SUE CARSON

Young people of the area can find a constructive outlet for their energy and enthusiasm in three local youth programs — the Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts and Campfire Girls.

Currently 20 Boy Scout troops are operating in the Wheeling-Buffalo Grove area; seven more Scout units are scheduled to start within the next several months.

A variety of programs is undertaken by the Boy Scout units, aimed at building character, encouraging physical fitness and promoting citizenship training.

THE WHEELING-BUFFALO GROVE Scout units belong to the North Star District of the Boy Scouts of America.

Money collected from the United Fund goes to the Northwest Suburban Council of the Boy Scouts of America, which serves communities throughout the Northwest suburbs.

The council, with offices in Des Plaines, provides services to Scout groups.

A professional staff of volunteer commissioners from that office can offer suggestions to units to which they are assigned.

The office also helps organize new Scout units and provides training to prospective Scout leaders.

"WE TRAIN LEADERS to be successful," Totke said. "Our feeling is that no one takes on the job to be a failure."

Cub Scout leaders once a month may attend a round-table, or program planning session.

United Fund money also helps to operate two Boy Scout summer camps in Wisconsin, which are attended by many boys from the Wheeling-Buffalo Grove area.

Approximately 10,000 Campfire Girls in Cook County are serviced by the Campfire Girls' council headquarters in Chicago.

Approximately 150 of these girls are from the Wheeling-Buffalo Grove area, where there are now 16 troops.

In the past year these girls have performed such projects as cleaning up litter around Buffalo Grove Creek and making Christmas gifts for elderly persons at Adoladorita Villa in Wheeling.

Money from the United Fund is used by the Chicago office to pay staff salaries, provide training programs for Campfire leaders, program research, and to operate a summer camp in Westfield, Wis.

A SMALL BRANCH SERVICE center is located in Arlington Heights. Two field directors from this center provide ideas and assistance to Campfire units in the northern suburbs.

Making toys for children's homes and entertaining residents of local homes for the elderly are two activities undertaken recently by the Girl Scouts of the Wheeling-Buffalo Grove area. At present, 1,218 girls in the area belong to the Girl Scouts. There are 59 troops and 118 adult leaders.

These troops are under the jurisdiction of the Girl Scout Council of Northwest Cook County, which serves 19 area communities.

Money from the Wheeling-Buffalo Grove United Fund will be used by the professional staff of the council to aid volunteer leaders in developing their local Scout programs, for staff salaries and for maintaining the council office, which is located in Des Plaines.

A large portion of the council's funds is used to maintain and operate 11 Girl Scout camps.

TWO OF THESE ARE overnight camps. Camp Norwesco, located in New Auburn, Wis., is open each year from June through August.

Happy Hollow Camp, located in East Troy, Wis., may be reserved by individual troops for hikes, cook-outs, and horseback riding.

The council also operates nine Girl Scout summer day camps. Most Scouts from the Wheeling-Buffalo Grove area attend the day camp in Potawatomi Woods near Wheeling.

Money for the council is received from the Metropolitan Crusade of Mercy, of which the United Fund is a part. Financial support also comes from membership enrollment, gifts and annual cookie sale.

3-Minute Walkout a 'Non'

by JUDY BRANDES

It was 10 a.m.

A few cars with curious mothers in them drove slowly past William Fremd High School. They were watching the front door — for the expected walkout.

The walkout was to protest the school dress code, the closed campus policy and the lack of a smoking area in the school.

Four of the long windows in the new addition opened and heads popped out. The blunts in rooms on the first floor of the high school went up and faces peeked out.

A couple of teachers walked out the front door with a school photographer to watch.

THE DRIVER EDUCATION teacher and three students walked out and got in the marked cars sitting in front of the school.

A woman in the brown house across the street came out to shake her rugs.

From the outside, nothing happened at Fremd High School yesterday when second period ended.

Inside, when classes changed 35 students gathered at one end of the first floor east corridor. Some sat down.

Principal Carl Weiner was in conference with a salesman and came late to the "meeting."

ASSISTANT PRINCIPAL Thomas Hillenstein walked up to the group, composed primarily of juniors and a few sophomores.

"You have three minutes to get back to classes," he said. "Tardiness won't be counted until three minutes has passed. If any of you want to leave, you will be suspended until your parents come in for a conference."

The group broke up. Apparently none decided to leave, for tardy and absence slips sent to the office for third period didn't show anyone missing. The crisis was over.

"We've had a lot of support from parents who said not to back down on discipline," Principal Weiner said. "My phone rang constantly yesterday afternoon."

"I'M HAPPY THAT school wasn't disrupted," Hillenstein said. "I think the kids were smart to go back to class."

The threatened walkout affected very few of the school's 1,800 students. One mother kept her two boys home because of the possible walkout. A couple of students didn't come to school at all because they wanted to participate and thought it would be better to stay out the whole day.

For the five students suspended yesterday for distributing unauthorized literature, the day was spent in study hall. They received in-school suspensions which kept them in the building but do not permit them to go to classes for three to five days.

"THE COMPLAINTS these students made are being discussed through regular channels now," Weiner said. "I have put one of the girls on the principal's advisory council."

The advisory council is made up of students and faculty appointed and elected by the students and administrators faculty, and the principal. It meets bi-monthly to discuss student complaints and problems.

"I think this has shown the students we will not allow school to be disrupted," Weiner said. "I'm glad nothing serious happened."

Warman Backers Organize

A local group to elect Democrat Edward Warman to Congress is being formed in Elk Grove Village.

The group, called Independent Citizens of Elk Grove for the Election of Edward Warman to Congress, is being formed into a committee by Daniel Gilbert, Elk Grove Park District board member.

"I am not endorsing Warman in my capacity as a public official, but as an individual," Gilbert stressed.

"The committee is being formed to offer an alternative for Republicans and individuals who feel that the Republican candidate will not truly represent their views in Congress.

"IT WILL STRESS positive programs

advocated by Warman in areas of suburban transportation problems, the fight against inflation and the Vietnam War, he explained.

Gilbert said he formulated the idea of a Warman committee after looking over Tuesday's election results. The Republican primary Tuesday was won by Phillip Crane, a conservative from Winnetka. Warman is from Skokie.

Gilbert said if people of the district would take the time to study the diametrically opposed viewpoints of the two candidates, Warman would emerge as the winner in November.

"I am asking those who wish to work for the election of Warman to call 437-5087," Gilbert said.

Master Plan May Change

Wheeling's village manager is planning to update the village's general development master plan and its zoning and official map.

Matthew Golden, the village manager, told the Herald that a detailed study of the village will be conducted by Thompson Dyke, village planner from Harlan Bartholomew and Associates.

Golden said that the village board will approve the new study in the near future.

A public hearing on proposed changes will be held after Dyke completes his study.

Currently, the village has a master plan and amended zoning and official maps based on a 1961 study by Stanton and Rockwell Associates, and a 1963 study by M.F. Rupp Associates.

IN ADDITION to the two maps which have been updated by village planning commission and zoning board hearings periodically, Dyke will revise the main study, which includes recommendations for industrial development, estimates of predicted population growth, eventual boundaries for the village, recommendations for types of housing developments and their locations, a study of the labor market and other factors.

Golden said the revisions are needed because the village's population has doubled since that study was made.

Some of the recommendations in the original study are now either impossible or not logical because of developments and building in surrounding villages and unincorporated areas.

Moreover, the study fails to take note of such matters as increasing apartment construction, planned development complexes, low-cost housing and major annexations. Such matters have become important to village growth only since the first study was completed.

MANY OF WHEELING'S characteristics have also changed. More expensive homes and a crop of high-rent apartments lower the percentage of children in the village and result in a higher average income. Industrial development has boomed since the first study and the planner must now study the spread of that industry.

TODAY THE SITE is within 10 minutes driving time of 600,000 people living in Northwest Cook County and North DuPage County. By 1975, the 10 minute population is estimated at 800,000.

Area officials in attendance included Hanover Park Mayor Richard Baker, Roselle Mayor Robert Frantz, Itasca Mayor Wilbur Nottke, Elk Grove Mayor Jack Pahl, Mount Prospect Mayor Robert Teichert, Palatine Mayor Jack Moodie, Rolling Meadows City Manager James Watson, Trustee Bruce Lind of Hoffman Estates and County Commissioner Floyd Full.

Dancing, Songs In School Show

Chorus lines, comedy routines, dances and songs will be featured in "Rambling Minstrels" tonight and Saturday at Wheeling High School.

About 40 residents of the Wheeling-Buffalo Grove area will be featured in the show, which will begin at 8 p.m. both evenings. The program is sponsored by the Regina Council of the Knights of Columbus. Proceeds will be used to help finance youth activities in the area.

Edwin Majkowski, who is in charge of the scenery and props for the show, said the council put on its first program in 1961 and has done several since then.

"I HOPE EVERY chair in the Little Theater will be filled so that the youths of the area will receive maximum benefit," he said.

Directing the show are Mr. and Mrs. Don Heideman, assisted by Mrs. Edwin Majkowski and Bob Rymer.

Tickets for the show may be purchased at the door or from Mrs. Majkowski, 537-4472.

CHICAGO — An order for 2,000 Illinois National Guardsmen to stand by for duty in Chicago to cope with disturbances by demonstrators was issued yesterday by Gov. Richard Ogilvie.

The move to bolster Chicago's defense against demonstrators came on the second day of a threatened four-day protest led by a militant faction of the Students for a Democratic Society.

School's 'Journey' To Start Tonight

One of five Palatine High School seniors will begin her "journey through time" as the 1969 homecoming queen tonight when she and her four attendants are crowned at the royal rally at 7:30 p.m. in the gym, the first of Palatine High School's homecoming activities.

"Journey Through Time" is the homecoming theme carried throughout this year's homecoming rally, bonfire, parade, halftime activities and dance.

Earlier this week each class elected five nominees for class attendant on the homecoming court. The student body voted for the queen from the five senior class nominees.

SENIOR CLASS nominees for homecoming queen and senior attendant are Jane Ritchie, Kathy Emsun, Cindy Howe, Jan Dell and Pam Gale.

This will be the first year the attendants receive tiaras. Junior class nominees are Jan Faust, Beth McSweeney, Linda Pero, Sue Lonergan and Carol Lucas.

Sophomore nominees are Janet Gustafson, Pam Christopher, Lori Taylor and Lynn Kandtkinder.

Freshman nominees for the 1969 homecoming court are Mary Murphy, Mary Leake, Vicki Andriano and Sue Pain.

After the crowning, the choir will perform and the faculty will put on their annual skit. The narrative pantomime written and acted by the teachers will be "Once Upon a Time in Piratesville."

TONIGHT'S ACTIVITIES will end with a bonfire and pep rally in Community Park at 8:30.

Tomorrow morning the homecoming parade will leave Palatine High School at 10 a.m. The parade will move west on Wood Street to the public library, south on Brockway to Slade Street, east on Slade Street across the railroad tracks to Oak Street, and north on Oak Street to the high school.

The queen and her attendants, junior varsity, varsity and visiting Prospect High cheerleaders will ride in cars. Four bands, including the Palatine High School band, and grade school bands from Sanborn, Winston and Immanuel Lutheran Schools will perform.

FLOAT THEMES will combine the general homecoming theme on time with the Prospect High nickname, the Knights. Seniors have built a float on the theme "Pirates Create All Knight Destruction," juniors, "De-feet the Knights," sophomores, "Pirates Will Ship the Knights Through Time," and Freshmen, "Pirates Dub the Knights."

School clubs, the VIP's, Pom-pom girls, coaches' wives, the Countryside YMCA, cafeteria ladies and the Palatine Township Youth Organization will also participate in the parade.

At 12 noon the junior varsity will begin the Pirate competition with the Knights.

Football Has The Town on Its Ear

by LARRY MLYNCZAK

Nowadays you might think that Palatine was Tuscaloosa, Columbus, Ann Arbor, Austin or Baton Rouge. Everybody is talking about football; everybody is talking about the Pirates and the Vikings.

It's getting to be almost too much to comprehend — the Pirates and the Vikings are tied for first place in the Mid-Suburban League. Of course, there is one little catch: Hersey is tied with Palatine and Fremd for the top spot.

But, say the Viking fans, that will all end tomorrow when Fremd plays Hersey on Hale Hildebrandt Field.

COACH AL RATCLIFF'S club has beaten Forest View 20-14, Prospect 7-6 and Elk Grove 13-6 in its first three games against Mid-Suburban League opponents. Hersey, meanwhile, has knocked off Prospect 28-6, Elk Grove 19-6 and Wheeling 26-16.

Tomorrow's game will be a contest of "firsts." It is Al Ratcliff's first year at Fremd. It is Hersey's first year as a varsity football team. It is the first game between the two schools. And, yes, it is for first place.

The Viking offense, which has been halted somewhat the past two weeks, can explode at any time with a backfield of Bob Moloznik, Tommy Bruns, Chuck McGuinn and Mike Parks.

The Fremd line will have speedster Mike Menick and Scott Murphy at ends, Bill Baetzel and Tim Tuerk at tackles, Rich Bowman and Dan Dwyer at guards and Jeff Creek at center.

Defensively, the Vikings have gotten better with every game, holding their last two opponents to one touchdown each.

Between games the homecoming queen and her court will be introduced and the queen will "throw out" the football to begin the varsity game at 2 p.m.

TICKETS FOR THE game are available at the gate.

Halftime activities will include the band, pom-pom girls, and the parades, the school's baton twirling squad.

Homecoming activities will end Saturday night with a dance in the gym from 8 to 11 p.m. Dance theme is "A Time For Us."

General chairman for Homecoming activities is Roland Johnson. Other chairmen are rally and bonfire, Sue Rosenberg; bonfire lighter, John Thomas; parade, Brenda Brandelle; game activities, Wendy Grove, Jan Kiser, and Chris Koetter; and dance, Jan Dell and Lynn Wickert.

THE PIRATES, thus far, have proven to be the class of the Mid-Suburban League. Palatine has trounced Central Suburban League leader Glenbrook North 43-12, traditional power Arlington 11-0, lowly Glenbard North 60-0 and defensive minded Forest View 18-0.

Palatine is going for its first league championship since 1965 when the Pirates went 8-0 and went unscored upon in conference play. Palatine has yet to be scored upon against MSL foes in 1969.

Palatine's offense relies on the passing of Guy Zajonc to Chris Andriano, Charley Phillips and Rick Zeman, the running of Tom Patch, Scott Harris and John Keating and the blocking of Bruce Eberle, Jeff Frost, Ron McAllister, Bob Carr and John Thomas.

It seems appropriate to sound off the defensive unit which has been magnificent all year.

McAllister and Bob Hall are the ends, Chuck Drake and Mike Selsky are the tackles, Mark Thompson is the middle guard, Carr (who is up for All-State recognition) and Bill Hathaway man the line-backing posts, Harris and Keating are the cornerbacks and Andriano and Ed Meyer are the safeties.

THE PALATINE coaching staff of Arv Herstedt and Tom Walz has led the Pirates to victories in each of their last eight games.

And the Vikings have a three-game winning streak.

And they both are in first place.

And this is Palatine's Homecoming Week.

And, by golly, the village of Palatine is going nuts.

POLICE CLOSED down the Palatine Book Store Wednesday and accused the owner of keeping a gambling place. Police said bets were taken on horse races by the owner of the shop.

Nuns Will Get Keys to Car

The keys to a 1970 Chevy Sports Van will be given to the nuns of St. Teresita's Vicariate tonight at a Knights of Columbus meeting in St. Teresita's School, Palatine.

Sister Rosita and Sister Del Carmen serve the spiritual and temporal needs of Mexican-Americans in the Northwest suburbs from Santa Teresita Church in Palatine. Until this week they have used public transportation to reach the families they serve. Their charitable rounds have been limited to areas where transportation is available.

BEFORE FORMER Grand Knight Clement P. Lambert learned of their need, the two nuns had planned to work to earn money for a car.

Lambert contacted 200 members of the council asking for personal donations to help the sisters. The council raised $3,500 for the car.

With tonight's presentation, the nuns will receive a new set of snow tires and a year's paid-up auto insurance.

Business Views Community Action

(Rolling Meadows Chamber of Commerce members are weighing the possibilities of increased involvement by business and industry in local communities. What should the role of business be? In this story, staff writer Mark Cohen reports on the ideas of both business and local citizens on the topic of business and industrial involvement.)

by MARK COHEN

"Who brings Santa Claus to the people? The businessman."

"Industry does just about everything for the community," Ken Erickson executive Director of the Palatine Chamber of Commerce.

The businessman, not the local citizen, according to Erickson, is the leader of civic affairs.

"He is driven towards community involvement by a desire to interest potential patrons in his products. Because of his involvement, he hopes more people will patronize his business," Erickson said.

Erickson spoke of business sponsored Little League teams' band shows and civic programs.

"WE HAVE A transient populace in Palatine and people just don't want to get involved," he said.

Thus industrial leaders, who are entrenched in the community, become civic leaders, he explained.

Businesses have been organized for years to protect their interests.

During the New Deal era, various chambers of commerce organized to fight the encroachment of a growing federal government.

According to Erickson, a committee for industrial development in Palatine is being formed under the auspices of local government.

"What's good for the community is good for business," said Ted Small, president of Rolling Meadows chamber.

"IT IS POSSIBLE to work towards a common goal without concerning oneself totally with selfish interests. We hope to protect the city's interests and develop the community in order to create a good business climate," Small explained.

Should industry be an initiator of public programs, or only encourage its employees to work in the community?

Should it act merely as a good corporate citizen or remain totally indifferent to community problems?

Some larger corporations in Rolling Meadows feel business has an obligation to the community. All said they feel their companies should remain apolitical.

WESTERN ELECTRIC is captured by the philosophy of industrial involvement in society.

"We have an obligation to provide jobs for the disadvantaged. We want to make the curricula of colleges and high schools, relevant to the student entering the business fields. We are deeply involved in urban problems and junior achievement," said John Thorton, public relations chief.

From this, the executive said, industry attracts top employees, and the community views it as a good company.

On the other end of the spectrum was Ronald BelPedio, vice president of Mohawk Construction: "I don't know how we can initiate civic programs. This is more of a citizens responsibility."

FOR MOHAWK, construction provides necessary community development and in this way provides a service to the area.

An official of National Cash Register Data Processing, who refused to identify himself, claimed that the size of the company determines the degree of its civic involvement.

The small company just doesn't have the resources, the finances or the staff to become active in community affairs.

For some the answer to the problem of civic duty can be found through employee participation in community affairs.

"We want to live up to the standards of the community. We encourage employees to be active in the area but there is no payroll tie-up here. Employees are judged by their value on the job; we don't pay them to work in the community," said Robert Chaisinski, manager of administration and finance of Microdine Co.

And for some, industry's responsibility to the community depends on the community's responsibility to industry.

"WE DEFINITELY have a civic responsibility. But it's a two-way street. We have to be concerned with problems of pollution and maintaining our building and grounds to keep the community an attractive one.

But the local government should be responsive to our employees needs for transportation and housing," said Raymond H. Blakeman, president of Spot Nails.

Industrial leaders are aware of the public's attacks against them as political manipulators and indifferent "citizens" in communities filled with problems. Students have argued about them in college classrooms and politicians and civic leaders have shouted them to the papers.

In Rolling Meadows and Palatine, businesses have responded to the old attacks with a rebirth of public involvement. The Rolling Meadows chamber recently proposed a student intern program so youths would study business practices under skilled professionals.

Some, like Palatine's executive director, blame citizens' lack of awareness for insufficient community programs. They claim the citizens remain uninvolved and wait for businessmen to lead their programs.

"THERE IS A lack of interest; there is a lack of civic involvement by the people in the various organizations," said Ronald Reese, president of the Rolling Meadows Merchant Association and a commissioner on the park board.

Speak Out

They Like Crane

by MARIANNE BRETSNYDER

Opinions concerning the 13th District Republican primary were asked this week of residents of Palatine and Rolling Meadows. Some of the questions asked were reactions to the election and what people thought of having Phillip Crane, winner of the Republican primary, for congressman.

Mrs. Charles F. Alexander, 4360 Hoover St., Rolling Meadows, said that Crane would make a good congressman. "It's good that Crane won. I think he was the best one running in the primary." He's a Republican, I think he will be good for the district, she said.

Mrs. Christopher Baker, 1419 Joan Drive, Palatine, said "Yes, I think he would be a good congressman. I was satisfied with the election. I wasn't sure he would win, some of the other candidates had strong support," she said. "He definately has a chance of winning in November," she said.

MRS. ROBERT L. APLAND, 2711 Wilke Rd., Rolling Meadows, said she supposed Crane would be a good congressman. "I was happy with the election. I wanted him to win," she said.

Mrs. John R. Murray, 335 Windsor Lane, Palatine, said "I think Crane reflects the feelings of the people in this district." People are becoming conservative, they've had their fill of the Great Society and liberalism, she said. "I think he'd be an excellent congressman, and we're delighted he won," she said. Mrs. Murray worked for Crane in the Palatine area. "He won't have any trouble in this district in November, the Republicans will get out and vote for him."

"I think he's a very intelligent man, and he represents the people." A lot of people were not aware of the election, she said, and this and general apathy was the cause of the poor turn-out.

JAMES SHEAHAN, 2102 Wing St., Rolling Meadows said he thinks Crane would be good in Congress. "I like the man from what I've seen and heard and I'm happy with the outcome of the primary." It was hard to tell who would win the primary, he said, with so many candidates, the vote was spread across. "From what I hear, I think Crane is well liked," he said.

Mrs. James Barry, 2302 E. Kingfisher Lane, Rolling Meadows, said she didn't know that much about the election, but from what she heard, she thought Crane would be alright. "I think he will be elected in November," she said.

A Palatine resident who didn't want to be identified said she definitely thought Crane would be a good congressman. "He won't have any trouble in November." The voter turnout was light, but she thought there would be a bigger turnout in November. "I think people will be more interested in November," she said.

CRANE WILL GO ALONG like Donald Rumsfeld, and try to handle the district like Rumsfeld did," she said. "I think he'll be a great congressman."

Mrs. James Rapp, 2104 Quail Lane, Rolling Meadows, said "To be honest, I didn't study the election too much, but seeing as it's a Republican district, I think Crane will have a good hold."

"Most of the people in my neighborhood didn't have too much to say about the primary, there were so many men running, it was hard to keep them straight," she said. There should be more interest now, she said, since it will be a Republican and Democrat contest. "Republicans will get out and vote, they might hesitate to pick between men of their own party." She thinks people will go out and vote for their party now, and there wasn't much interest generated in the primary race.

Warman Backers Organize

A local group to elect Democrat Edward Warman to Congress is being formed in Elk Grove Village.

The group, called Independent Citizens of Elk Grove for the Election of Edward Warman to Congress, is being formed into a committee by Daniel Gilbert, Elk Grove Park District board member.

"I am not endorsing Warman in my capacity as a public official, but as an individual," Gilbert stressed.

"The committee is being formed to offer an alternative for Republicans and individuals who feel that the Republican candidate will not truly represent their views in Congress.

"IT WILL STRESS positive programs advocated by Warman in areas of suburban transportation problems, the fight against inflation and the Vietnam War, he explained.

Gilbert said he formulated the idea of a Warman committee after looking over Tuesday's election results. The Republican primary Tuesday, was won by Phillip Crane, a conservative from Winnetka. Warman is from Skokie.

Gilbert said if people of the district would take the time to study the diametrically opposed viewpoints of the two candidates, Warman would emerge as the winner in November.

The Fastest Beds Are Forest View's

"Gentlemen, start your beds!" might have been the cry Tuesday night, when Forest View High School students were victorious in a bed race held on the Wheeling High School parking lot.

The race was sponsored by the area Young Life Club, part of a national non-denominational Christian organization.

Also in the race were teens from Young Life clubs at Arlington High School, Palatine High School, Fremd High School, Wheeling High School, Hersey High School and Niles West High School.

"THE LOCAL YOUNG LIFE Clubs have area meetings once or twice a year, and this time we decided to throw in an extra gimmick," explained area Young Life director Clifford Anderson.

Four "pushers" and a driver formed the crew of each competing bed. The race was 4 laps long, and "pit stops" were made after each lap.

ALMOST AS ANXIOUS for Saturday to arrive as students at Palatine High School are girl scouts from a troop at Immanuel Lutheran Church who will be selling taffy apples

It Was THE Groundbreaking

by MARY REIFSCHNEIDER

It was a groundbreaking that surpassed all others.

But then it was for Woodfield Mall, Schaumburg's shopping center that will surpass all other shopping centers.

Under a red and white striped tent, set on the dusty 191 acres at Route 53 and Golf Road, several hundred businessmen, government officials and members of the press gathered Wednesday morning to hear just how superlative Woodfield Mall will be.

A. Alfred Taubman, chairman of The Taubman Co., developer and manager for Woodfield Associates, said now the largest center to his knowledge has 1.4 million square feet of leasable space. Woodfield will have 1.7 million.

"WOODFIELD MALL is designed with the newest and freshest thinking to come in the past 20 years. It was designed with the theory that the closer the proximity of the stores, the better for all tenants," Taubman said.

Woodfield will have 160 satellite stores spaced between the three department stores — Sears, Roebuck and Co., J. C. Penney, and Marshall Field.

By using interlocking malls between the three levels, the center will give maximum exposure to shops and save on walking time for customers.

Taubman said every major Chicago area store has made inquiries about leasing space in Woodfield and major fashion stores from the east and west coasts are also interested.

THE CENTER'S volume in the first year will be in excess of $160 million, Taubman said.

C. J. Kennedy, representing Sears, said it's going to be a "magnificent center. We're proud to be part of it."

Erald P. Savage, president of Marshall Field's, said, "This is going to be some kind of development. We'll be a good neighbor."

J. C. Penney is "looking forward with pleasure to opening its Woodfield store," H. W. Wright, regional vice president, said. This will be the largest of Penney's 1,700 stores.

The Field's and Sears stores will also be the largest in the Chicago area.

SCHAUMBURG MAYOR Robert O. Atcher told the audience "Schaumburg is a planned community. We started with plowed ground. There was no development. We took five years to plan before we opened it to development.

"We've had phenomenal success in fulfilling that plan. Schaumburg will not be a bedroom to Chicago," he said.

He gave a special thank-you to Sears for being the "first to see the potential" of the shopping site.

Outside the tent, the crowd watched fireworks go off as the first shovels of dirt were turned and caterpillars moved earth.

The $90 million center will be completed by late 1971 or early 1972. It will employ some 6,000 persons and serve 70,000 to 80,000 shoppers per day.

TODAY THE SITE is within 10 minutes driving time of 600,000 people living in Northwest Cook County and North DuPage County. By 1975, the 10 minute population is estimated at 800,000.

2-Car Crash Kills 2

Two men were killed and two others seriously injured in a two-car collision on Central Road just west of Busse Road in Mount Prospect early yesterday.

Marine Lt. Gary Spohn, 22, a Vietnam veteran who recently moved from Buffalo Grove to Kansas, was pronounced dead on arrival at Northwest Community Hospital. A passenger in Spohn's car, 23-year-old David Bethards of Racine, Wis. was also killed in the crash.

Lee Cunningham, 27, of Rolling Meadows, is listed in serious condition at Northwest Community Hospital after the car he was driving apparently collided with Spohn's car. Both cars were traveling westbound on Central Road, according to police.

POLICE ESTIMATED that Spohn was driving in the outer lane at approximately 100 miles per hour when Cunningham's car, traveling at a low rate of speed, drifted into the outer lane and collided with Spohn's car.

Police estimated from evidence found at the scene of the accident, that Spohn's car jumped the northwest curb of the parkway, struck a fire hydrant and flipped over one and a half times before hitting a tree 278 feet from the crash.

A second passenger in Spohn's auto, Edward Springhoff, 22, of Kenosha, Wis., is listed in serious condition with multiple injuries at Holy Family Hospital in Des Plaines.

DEBRIS FROM THE collision struck a third vehicle driven by Paul Dumke, 21, of Arlington Heights. Dumke told police he was traveling east on Central Road near the Bruning Co. plant when he heard an explosion and then his car was hit with debris from the accident.

Dumke, who was not injured, told police he did not see the cars collide.

St. Colette To Conduct Head Count

Beginning a parish census was one of the decisions made by the Parish Council at St. Colette's this week.

The Rolling Meadows church will begin the census by Nov. 16. "It is very much needed," said the Rev. Eugene Faucher. "We haven't had one for six or seven years," he said.

Each member of the Council is lining up 20 people to help take the census.

THE LITURGY COMMITTEE of the Council reported that beginning Nov. 9, the 1 p.m. mass will be a guitar mass. "This is the first time we will be doing this on a regular basis," Father Faucher said.

"This will be the mass of renewal, to encourage greater efforts at participation. It will spearhead all new changes made in the mass," he said.

For two Sundays prior to the new mass, parishioners will be prepared and instructed in the liturgy, he said. "Some of the people have asked for the mass, the younger ones, and some over 30," Father Faucher said.

The Council is also making plans for a parish-wide dance that will be Nov. 8 at Sacred Heart of Mary high school. The dance is for all members of the parish.

ANOTHER PROJECT the council is undertaking is work on banners to be used in the church. Father Faucher said the purpose of the banners is to add warmth and color to the church setting.

Different banners can be used for different seasons, he said. Women in the ladies society of the church will help make the banners.

Streamwood Man Is Electrocuted

A 46-year-old Streamwood man was electrocuted yesterday while working at the Hunter Automated Corp., 2222 Hammond Drive, Schaumburg.

Jose Reyes, of 821 Schaumburg Road, was pronounced dead on arrival at Northwest Community Hospital after an occupational accident, according to Schaumburg police.

The accident occurred about 4 p.m., police said.

Countryside YMCA Sets Bridge Lessons

The Countryside YMCA is offering bridge lessons this fall.

Under the direction of Mrs. Florence Heifner, who has attained the rank of Life Master, students will learn the basics of the game, hand evaluation and methods of counting and playing a hand.

Mrs. Heifner has conducted duplicate bridge clubs and taught the card game for more than six years in various adult education classes.

Single persons registered for the course must pay $12, while couples are charged $20. Classes will be held on Wednesdays from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. and on Thursdays from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. at the YMCA Leadership Center, 115 Johnson Street, Palatine.

The program begins Oct. 29 and will last eight weeks.

Dancing, Songs In School Show

Chorus lines, comedy routines, dances and songs will be featured in "Rambling Minstrels" tonight and Saturday at Wheeling High School.

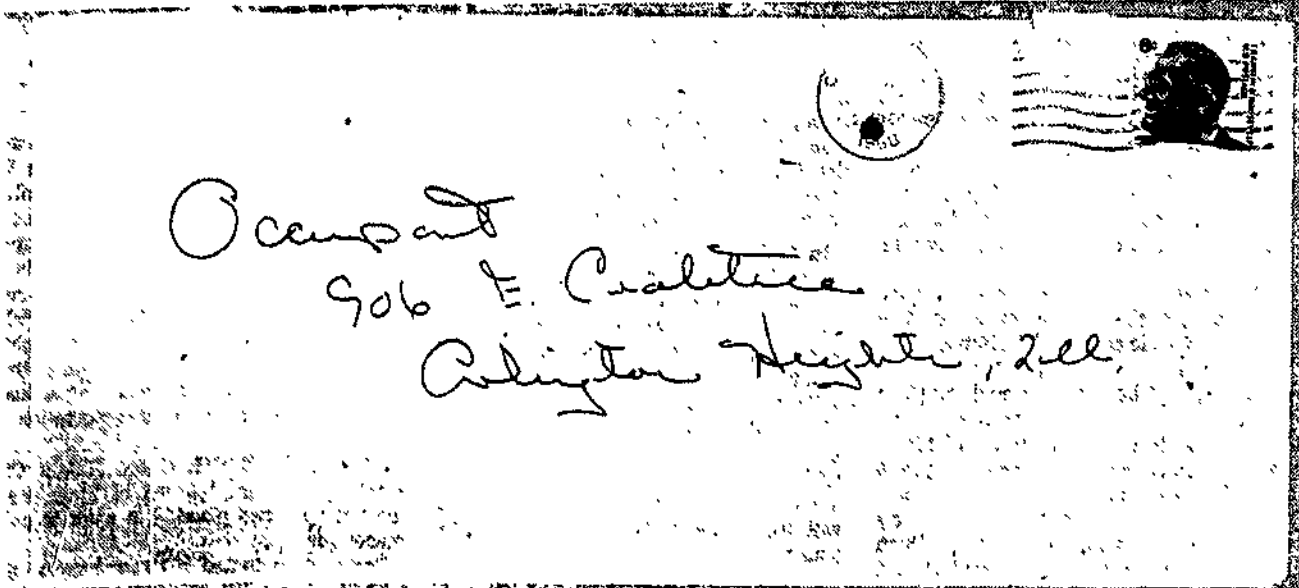

About 40 residents of the Wheeling-Buffalo Grove area will be featured in the show, which will begin at 8 p.m. both evenings. The program is sponsored by the Regina Council of the Knights of Columbus. Proceeds will be used to help finance youth activities in the area.

Edwin Majkowski, who is in charge of the scenery and props for the show, said the council put on its first program in 1961 and has done several since then.

"I HOPE EVERY chair in the Little Theater will be filled so that the youths of the area will receive maximum benefit," he said.

Directing the show are Mr. and Mrs. Don Heideman, assisted by Mrs. Edwin Majkowski and Bob Rymer.

Tickets for the show may be purchased at the door or from Mrs. Majkowski, 537-4472.

Community Chest Drive Ends Today

Today is the last day of the Rolling Meadows Community Chest drive in the residential areas of the city.

The drive will continue through October, with industrial and commercial areas of the city the next target of fund raisers. The goal for this year is $6,500.

Dependent on the success of the drive is the operation of a new counseling service for the city.

The service would be under the Salvation Army and would be available to all residents in Rolling Meadows. Rev. William Herman, chairman of the drive this year, said anyone needing help would be able to call the office or walk in, and the staff would make sure they get help.

FUNDS COLLECTED during the drive will also benefit the Salvation Army in the city. Rev. Herman said these funds are kept in the bank in Rolling Meadows.

Any resident in Rolling Meadows needing help can get it through the Salvation Army, he said. People in financial trouble or needing clothing or other articles can go to the agency, he said.

Goal for Rolling Meadows is $6,500. The total budget is $18,000. The balance of the budget will be made up of funds from the Metropolitan Crusade of Mercy.

At least 50 people are working on the drive, but there is quite a bit of apathy, Rev. Herman said. "We could use more workers, and we would be glad to hear from people and give them assignments," he said. Anyone interested may contact him.

Other agencies receiving funds from the Community Chest drive are Clearbrook Center, Girl Scouts, Boy Scouts, Campfire Girls, the USO and the Nurses Association.

FUNDS GOING TO the Nurses Association are used to maintain the loan-out service the association has available for residents of Rolling Meadows.

Equipment such as wheel chairs and crutches is kept by the association to lend out to residents. Money is needed to keep the equipment in good order and to replace equipment.

Funds for Scout groups is used for supplies, camping and other activities. Funds for the USO are used nationally. "Our boys in the service would benefit from this," Rev. Herman said.

Clearbrook Center needs funds to keep the school going, he said. Support would insure a place for parents to take mentally retarded children, he said.

THE SCHOOL dispenses funds where they are needed, he said. Purpose of the school is to help youngsters become self-sufficient, he added.

Results of the week's drive aren't known yet, Rev. Herman said. With the slogan "Keep Rolling Meadows Rolling," workers have been concentrating on a 3,400-home march and 2,000 apartments.

Last year's drive collected $5,382, which was increased to $17,235 when the Metropolitan Crusade of Mercy added funds for the Suburban Community Chest Council.

The Now Librarian —She's INVOLVED

by MARK COHEN

The "in" librarian is replacing the straight-laced puritan image of the past.

Virginia Connell, Rolling Meadows' "hip" librarian, talked of ideas and programs for the community library upon returning from a Missouri convention.

At the convention, speakers talked about the "library and revolution," "violence and history" and the "library and student involvement."

"Years ago a meeting would be devoted to administrative problems and questions on rules and regulations. Now the emphasis is on social awareness and greater involvement in the affairs of the world," Miss Connell said.

She went to the convention to surprise an old student who was to be nominated president of the Missouri Library Association. Miss Connell headed the association 21 years ago.

SHE RETURNED WITH ideas for student involvement, including a voice for students of Fremd and Forest View High Schools, and Harper Junior College on the library board.

"I've told every Board member to act as a salesman for the library; press publicity is important," she said.

According to Miss Connell, libraries of the past were quiet rooms where people could come for a silent moment of fiction reading. Now more persons seek information, particularly in educational materials.

"We used to spend all our time on technical and administrative problems. Now we are interested in public service and personal communication with our patrons," Miss Connell said.

"THE OLD HAS TO go and the new has to come, empathize with the youth and stop and talk with your youthful readers," she said.

On her desk sits a paper holder that reads "Webster Died in 1843."

For Miss Connell this means that the procedures that she learned years ago must give way to the new ideas of the present and future.

"It's a hard task when you've been indoctrinated to a particular school of thought for such a long time," she said.

Today the library has recordings of contemporary music, political speeches, and the works of famed musical artists.

MONEY, HOWEVER, FOR expanded services and greater material remains the library's major problem.

"The library has always been the stepchild of the city government. When all the other departments receive the needed finances the portion of the pie that's left goes to the library. The library staff and the community must be educated to the importance of the library and its monetary needs," Miss Connell said.

POLICE CLOSED down the Palatine Book Store Wednesday and accused the owner of keeping a gambling place. Police said bets were taken on horse races by the owner of the shop.

'Non-Walkout' Lasts 3 Minutes

by JUDY BRANDES

It was 10 a.m.

A few cars with curious mothers in them drove slowly past William Fremd High School. They were watching the front door—for the expected walkout.

The walkout was to protest the school dress code, the closed campus policy and the lack of a smoking area in the school.

Four of the long windows in the new addition opened and heads popped out. The blinds in rooms on the first floor of the high school went up and faces peeked out.

A couple of teachers walked out the front door with a school photographer to watch.

THE DRIVER EDUCATION teacher and three students walked out and got in the marked cars sitting in front of the school.

A woman in the brown house across the street came out to shake her rug.

From the outside, nothing happened at Fremd High School yesterday when second period ended.

Inside, when classes changed 35 students gathered at one end of the first floor east corridor. Some sat down.

Principal Carl Weimer was in conference with a salesman and came late to the "meeting."

ASSISTANT PRINCIPAL Thomas Hillesheim walked up to the group, composed primarily of juniors and a few sophomores.

"You have three minutes to get back to classes," he said. "Tardiness won't be counted until three minutes has passed. If any of you want to leave, you will be suspended until your parents come in for a conference."

The group broke up. Apparently none decided to leave, for tardy and absence slips sent to the office for third period didn't show anyone missing. The crisis was over.

"We've had a lot of support from parents who said not to back down on discipline," Principal Weimer said. "My phone rang constantly yesterday afternoon."

"I'M HAPPY THAT school wasn't disrupted," Hillesheim said. "I think the kids were smart to go back to class."

The threatened walkout affected very few of the school's 1,800 students. One mother kept her two boys home because of the possible walkout. A couple of students didn't come to school at all because they wanted to participate and thought it would be better to stay out the whole day.

For the five students suspended yesterday for distributing unauthorized literature, the day was spent in study hall. They received in-school suspensions which keep them in the building but do not permit them to go to classes for three to five days.

"THE COMPLAINTS these students made are being discussed through regular channels now," Weimer said. "I have put one of the girls on the principal's advisory council."

The advisory council is made up of students and faculty appointed and elected by the students and administrators faculty, and the principal. It meets bi-monthly to discuss student complaints and problems.

"I think this has shown the students we will not allow school to be disrupted," Weimer said. "I'm glad nothing serious happened."

Nuns Will Get Keys to Car

The keys to a 1970 Chevy Sports Van will be given to the nuns of St. Teresa's Vicariate tonight at a Knights of Columbus meeting in St. Theresa's School, Palatine.

Sister Rosita and Sister Del Carmen serve the spiritual and temporal needs of Mexican-Americans in the Northwest suburbs from Santa Teresa Church in Palatine. Until this week they have used public transportation to reach the families they serve. Their charitable rounds have been limited to areas where transportation is available.

BEFORE FORMER Grand Knight Clement P. Lambert learned of their need, the two nuns had planned to work to earn money for a car.

Lambert contacted 200 members of the council asking for personal donations to help the sisters. The council raised $3,500 for the car.

With tonight's presentation, the nuns will receive a new set of snow tires and a year's paid-up auto insurance.

NEW KINDERGARTEN teacher in School Dist. 25, John Johnston provides bike and tools as young boys can practice being like Dad. For story on men in Arlington Heights elementary schools, see Section 2, page 8.

Favor Saturday Masses

Parishoners in St. Colette Parish in Rolling Meadows overwhelmingly favor a change in church law that would enable Catholics to fulfill their Sunday mass obligation on Saturday from 4 to 6 p.m.

Surveys sent to members of the parish show that 378 favor both Saturday and Sunday mass and 189 favor Sunday only. A decision on whether to change church law will be made in this diocese, said Rev. Eugene Faucher.

This decision will be made only for this diocese, he said. Two other questions on the survey concern church law that would mean a nation wide change, he said.

THESE WERE a change in present legislation concerning holy days of obligation and changes in the days of celebration. Father Faucher said about two thirds of the people favor transferring the day of obligation to a Sunday, instead of week days.

For example, the Feast of the Ascension is celebrated on Thursdays, and most people favored transferring the feast day to the following Sunday. Some people favored removing the days of obligation, he said.

On the question of changing the days of obligation observed in the United States, 275 voted yes, and 206 voted no. Christmas was excluded from this question.

For the other question, five days of obligation were mentioned for possible change.

IF CHANGES are made in days of obligations, all the bishops will have to decide, Father Faucher said. Saturday mass is already approved in Wisconsin and some dioceses in Illinois, he said.

Results of the survey will probably influence Archbishop John Cardinal Cody, he said. Father Faucher said he didn't know when a decision on Saturday mass will be reached.

Business Views Community Action

(Rolling Meadows Chamber of Commerce members are weighing the possibilities of increased involvement by business and industry in local communities. What should the role of business be? In this story, staff writer Mark Cohen reports on the ideas of both business and local citizens on the topic of business and industrial involvement.)

by MARK COHEN
"Who brings Santa Claus to the people? The businessman."

"Industry does just about everything for the community," Ken Erickson executive Director of the Palatine Chamber of Commerce.

The businessman, not the local citizen, according to Erickson, is the leader of civic affairs.

"He is driven towards community involvement by a desire to interest potential patrons in his products. Because of his involvement, he hopes more people will patronize his business," Erickson said.

Erickson spoke of business sponsored Little League teams' band shows and civic programs.

"WE HAVE A transient populace in Palatine and people just don't want to get involved," he said.

Thus industrial leaders, who are entrenched in the community, become civic leaders, he explained.

Businesses have been organized for years to protect their interests.

During the New Deal era, various chambers of commerce organized to fight the encroachment of a growing federal government.

According to Erickson, a committee for industrial development in Palatine is being formed under the auspices of local government.

"What's good for the community is good for business," said Ted Small, president of Rolling Meadows chamber.

"IT IS POSSIBLE to work towards a common goal without concerning oneself totally with selfish interests. We hope to protect the city's interests and develop the community in order to create a good business climate," Small explained.

Should industry be an initiator of public programs, or only encourage its employees to work in the community?

Should it act merely as a good corporate citizen or remain totally indifferent to community problems?

Some larger corporations in Rolling Meadows feel business has an obligation to the community. All said they feel their companies should remain apolitical.

WESTERN ELECTRIC is captured by the philosophy of industrial involvement in society.

"We have an obligation to provide jobs for the disadvantaged. We want to make the curricula of colleges and high schools, relevant to the student entering the business fields. We are deeply involved in urban problems and junior achievement," said John Thorton, public relations chief.

From this, the executive said, industry attracts top employees, and the community views it as a good company.

On the other end of the spectrum was Ronald BelPede, vice president of Mohawk Construction: "I don't know how we can initiate civic programs. This is more of a citizens responsibility."

FOR MOHAWK, construction provides necessary community development and in this way provides a service to the area.

An official of National Cash Register Data Processing, who refused to identify himself, claimed that the size of the company determines the degree of its civic involvement.

The small company just doesn't have the resources, the finances or the staff to become active in community affairs.

For some the answer to the problem of civic duty can be found through employee participation in community affairs.

"We want to live up to the standards of the community. We encourage employees to be active in the area but there is no payroll tie-up here. Employees are judged by their value on the job; we don't pay them to work in the community," said Robert Chalski, manager of administration and finance of Microdine Co.

And for some, industry's responsibility to the community depends on the community's responsibility to industry.

"WE DEFINITELY have a civic responsibility. But it's a two-way street. We have to be concerned with problems of pollution and maintaining our building and grounds to keep the community an attractive one.

But the local government should be responsive to our employees needs for transportation and housing," said Raymond H. Blakeman, president of Spot Nails.

Industrial leaders are aware of the public's attacks against them as political manipulators and indifferent "citizens" in communities filled with problems. Students have argued about them in college classrooms and politicians and civic leaders have shouted them to the papers.

In Rolling Meadows and Palatine, businesses have responded to the old attacks with a rebirth of public involvement. The Rolling Meadows chamber recently proposed a student intern program so youths would study business practices under skilled professionals.

Some, like Palatine's executive director, blame citizens' lack of awareness for insufficient community programs. They claim the citizens remain uninvolved and wait for businessmen to lead their programs.

"THERE IS A lack of interest; there is a lack of civic involvement by the people in the various organizations," said Ronald Reese, president of the Rolling Meadows Merchant Association and a commissioner on the park board.

Speak Out

They Like Crane

by MURRIANNE BRETSNYDER

Opinions concerning the 13th District Republican primary were asked this week of residents of Palatine and Rolling Meadows. Some of the questions asked were reactions to the election and what people thought of having Philip Crane, winner of the Republican primary, for congressman.

Mrs. Charles F. Alexander, 4360 Hoover St., Rolling Meadows, said that Crane would make a good congressman. "It's good that Crane won. I think he was the best one running in the primary." He's a Republican. I think he will be good for the district, she said.

Mrs. Christopher Baker, 1419 Joan Drive, Palatine, said "Yes, I think he would be a good congressman. I was satisfied with the election. I wasn't sure he would win, some of the other candidates had strong support," she said. "He definitely has a chance of winning in November," she said.

MRS. ROBERT L. APLAND, 2711 Wilke Rd., Rolling Meadows, said she supposed Crane would be a good congressman. "I was happy with the election, I wanted him to win," she said.

Mrs. John R. Murray, 335 Windsor Lane, Palatine, said "I think Crane reflects the feelings of the people in this district." People are becoming conservative, they've had their fill of the Great Society and liberalism, she said. "I think he'd be an excellent congressman, and we're delighted he won," she said. Mrs. Murray worked for Crane in the Palatine area. "He won't have any trouble in this district in November, the Republicans will get out and vote for him."

"I think he's a very intelligent man, and he represents the people." A lot of people were not aware of the election, she said, and this and general apathy was the cause of the poor turnout.

JAMES SHEAHAN, 2102 Wing St., Rolling Meadows said he thinks Crane would be good in Congress. "I like the man from what I've seen and heard and I'm happy with the outcome of the primary." It was hard to tell who would win the primary, he said, with so many candidates, the vote was spread across. "From what I hear, I think Crane is well liked," he said.

Mrs. James Barry, 2302 E. Kingfisher Lane, Rolling Meadows, said she didn't know that much about the election, but from what she heard, she thought Crane would be alright. "I think he will be elected in November," she said.

A Palatine resident who didn't want to be identified said she definitely thought Crane would be a good congressman. "He won't have any trouble in November." The voter turnout was light, but she thought there would be a bigger turnout in November. "I think people will be more interested in November," she said.

CRANE WILL GO ALONG like Donald Rumsfeld, and try to handle the district like Rumsfeld did," she said. "I think he'll be a great congressman."

Mrs. James Rapp, 2104 Quail Lane, Rolling Meadows, said "To be honest, I didn't study the election too much, but seeing as it's a Republican district, I think Crane will have a good hold."

"Most of the people in my neighborhood didn't have too much to say about the primary, there were so many men running, it was hard to keep them straight," she said. There should be more interest now, she said, since it will be a Republican and Democrat contest. "Republicans will get out and vote, they might hesitate to pick between men of their own party." She thinks people will go out and vote for their party now, and there wasn't much interest generated in the primary race.

Warman Backers Organize

A local group to elect Democrat Edward Warman to Congress is being formed in Elk Grove Village.

The group, called Independent Citizens of Elk Grove for the Election of Edward Warman to Congress, is being formed into a committee by Daniel Gilbert, Elk Grove Park District board member.

"I am not endorsing Warman in my capacity as a public official, but as an individual," Gilbert stressed.

"The committee is being formed to offer an alternative for Republicans and individuals who feel that the Republican candidate will not truly represent their views in Congress.

"IT WILL STRESS positive programs advocated by Warman in areas of suburban transportation problems, the fight against inflation and the Vietnam War, he explained.

Gilbert said he formulated the idea of a Warman committee after looking over Tuesday's election results. The Republican primary Tuesday was won by Philip Crane, a conservative from Winnetka. Warman is from Skokie.

Gilbert said if people of the district would take the time to study the diametrically opposed viewpoints of the two candidates, Warman would emerge as the winner in November.

"I am asking those who wish to work for the election of Warman to call 437-5037," Gilbert said.

The Fastest Beds Are Forest View's

"Gentlemen, start your beds!" might have been the cry Tuesday night, when Forest View High School students were victorious in a bed race held on the Wheeling High School parking lot.

The race was sponsored by the area Young Life Club, part of a national non-denominational Christian organization.

Also in the race were teens from Young Life Clubs at Arlington High School, Palatine High School, Fremd High School, Wheeling High School, Hersey High School and Niles West High School.

"THE LOCAL YOUNG LIFE CLUBS have area meetings once or twice a year, and this time we decided to throw in an extra gimmick," explained area Young Life director Clifford Anderson.

Four "pushers" and a driver formed the crew of each competing bed. The race was 4 laps long, and "pit stops" were made after each lap.

ALMOST AS ANXIOUS for Saturday to arrive as students at Palatine High School are girl scouts from a troop at Immanuel Lutheran Church who will be selling taffy apples

It Was THE Groundbreaking

by MARY REIFSCHNEIDER

It was a groundbreaking that surpassed all others.

But then it was for Woodfield Mall, Schaumburg's shopping center that will surpass all other shopping centers.

Under a red and white striped tent, set on the dusty 191 acres at Route 53 and Golf Road, several hundred businessmen, government officials and members of the press gathered Wednesday morning to hear just how superlative Woodfield Mall will be.

A. Alfred Taubman, chairman of The Taubman Co., developer and manager for Woodfield Associates, said now the largest center to his knowledge has 1.4 million square feet of leasable space. Woodfield will have 1.7 million.

"WOODFIELD MALL is designed with the newest and freshest thinking to come in the past 20 years. It was designed with the theory that the closer the proximity of the stores, the better for all tenants," Taubman said.

Woodfield will have 160 satellite stores spaced between the three department stores — Sears, Roebuck and Co., J. C. Penney, and Marshall Field.

By using interlocking malls between the three levels, the center will give maximum exposure to shops and save on walking time for customers.

Taubman said every major Chicago area store has made inquiries about leasing space in Woodfield and major fashion stores from the east and west coasts are also interested.

THE CENTER'S volume in the first year will be in excess of $160 million, Taubman said.

C. J. Kennedy, representing Sears, said it's going to be a "magnificent center. We're proud to be part of it."

Erald P. Savage, president of Marshall Field's, said, "This is going to be some kind of development. We'll be a good neighbor."

J. C. Penney is "looking forward with pleasure to opening its Woodfield store," H. W. Wright, regional vice president, said. This will be the largest of Penney's 1,700 stores.

The Field's and Sears stores will also be the largest in the Chicago area.

SCHAUMBURG MAYOR Robert O. Atcher told the audience "Schaumburg is a planned community. We started with plowed ground. There was no development. We took five years to plan before we opened it to development."

"We've had phenomenal success in fulfilling that plan. Schaumburg will not be a bedroom to Chicago," he said.

He gave a special thank-you to Sears for being the "first to see the potential" of the shopping site.

Outside the tent, the crowd watched fireworks go off as the first shovels of dirt were turned and caterpillars moved earth.

The $90 million center will be completed by late 1971 or early 1972. It will employ some 6,000 persons and serve 70,000 to 80,000 shoppers per day.

TODAY THE SITE is within 10 minutes driving time of 600,000 people living in Northwest Cook County and North DuPage County. By 1975, the 10 minute population is estimated at 800,000.

2-Car Crash Kills 2

Two men were killed and two others seriously injured in a two-car collision on Central Road just west of Busse Road in Mount Prospect early yesterday.

Marine Lt. Gary Spohn, 22, a Vietnam veteran who recently moved from Buffalo Grove to Kansas, was pronounced dead on arrival at Northwest Community Hospital. A passenger in Spohn's car, 23-year-old David Bethards of Racine, Wis. was also killed in the crash.

Lee Cunningham, 27, of Rolling Meadows, is listed in serious condition at Northwest Community Hospital after the car he was driving apparently collided with Spohn's car. Both cars were traveling westbound on Central Road, according to police.

POLICE ESTIMATED that Spohn was driving in the outer lane at approximately 100 miles per hour when Cunningham's car, traveling at a low rate of speed, drifted into the outer lane and collided with Spohn's car.

Police estimated from evidence found at the scene of the accident, that Spohn's car jumped the northwest curb of the parkway, struck a fire hydrant and flipped over once and a half times before hitting a tree 278 feet from the crash.

A second passenger in Spohn's auto, Edward Springhoff, 22, of Kenosha, Wis., is listed in serious condition with multiple injuries at Holy Family Hospital in Des Plaines.

DEBRIS FROM THE collision struck a third vehicle driven by Paul Dumke, 21, of Arlington Heights. Dumke told police he was traveling east on Central Road near the Bruning Co. plant when he heard an explosion and then his car was hit with debris from the accident.

Dumke, who was not injured, told police he did not see the cars collide.

St. Colette To Conduct Head Count

Beginning a parish census was one of the decisions made by the Parish Council at St. Colette's this week.

The Rolling Meadows church will begin the census by Nov. 16. "It is very much needed," said the Rev. Eugene Faucher. "We haven't had one for six or seven years," he said.

Each member of the Council is lining up 20 people to help take the census.

THE LITURGY COMMITTEE of the Council reported that beginning Nov. 9, the 1 p.m. mass will be a guitar mass. "This is the first time we will be doing this on a regular basis," Father Faucher said.

"This will be the mass of renewal, to encourage greater efforts at participation. It will spearhead all new changes made in the mass," he said.

For two Sundays prior to the new mass, parishioners will be prepared and instructed in the liturgy, he said. "Some of the people have asked for the mass, the younger ones, and some over 30," Father Faucher said.

The Council is also making plans for a parish-wide dance that will be Nov. 8 at Sacred Heart of Mary high school. The dance is for all members of the parish.

ANOTHER PROJECT the council is undertaking is work on banners to be used in the church. Father Faucher said the purpose of the banners is to add warmth and color to the church setting.

Different banners can be used for different seasons, he said. Women in the ladies society of the church will help make the banners.

Streamwood Man Is Electrocuted

A 46-year-old Streamwood man was electrocuted yesterday while working at the Hunter Automated Corp., 2222 Hammond Drive, Schaumburg.

The accident occurred about 4 p.m., police said.

Under the direction of Mrs. Florence Heifner, who has attained the rank of Life Master, students will learn the basics of the game, hand evaluation and methods of counting and playing a hand.

Mrs. Heifner has conducted duplicate bridge clubs and taught the card game for more than six years in various adult education classes.

Single persons registered for the course must pay $12, while couples are charged $20. Classes will be held on Wednesdays from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. and on Thursdays from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. at the YMCA Leadership Center, 115 Johnson Street, Palatine.

The program begins Oct. 29 and will last eight weeks.

Dancing, Songs In School Show

Chorus lines, comedy routines, dances and songs will be featured in "Rambling Minstrels" tonight and Saturday at Wheeling High School.

About 40 residents of the Wheeling-Buffalo Grove area will be featured in the show, which will begin at 8 p.m. both evenings. The program is sponsored by the Regina Council of the Knights of Columbus. Proceeds will be used to help finance youth activities in the area.

Edwin Majkowski, who is in charge of the scenery and props for the show, said the council put on its first program in 1961 and has done several since then.

"I HOPE EVERY chair in the Little Theater will be filled so that the youths of the area will receive maximum benefit," he said.

Directing the show are Mr. and Mrs. Don Heideman, assisted by Mrs. Edwin Majkowski and Bob Rymer.

Tickets for the show may be purchased at the door or from Mrs. Majkowski, 537-4472.

Guard Put on Alert

CHICAGO — An order for 2,000 Illinois National Guardsmen to stand by for duty in Chicago to cope with disturbances by demonstrators was issued yesterday by Gov. Richard Ogilvie.

The move to bulwark Chicago's defense against demonstrators came on the second day of a threatened four-day protest led by a militant faction of the Students for a Democratic Society.

TWO MEN WERE KILLED in a three-car collision on Central Road, just west of Busse Road, in Mount Prospect early yesterday. The death vehicle, pictured above, was driven by Gary Spohn, 22, who recently moved from Buffalo Grove to Kansas. Both Spohn and a passenger, David Bethards, 23, of Racine, Wis., were killed instantly. Two others were

Manager's Wife No 'Club Type'

by GERRY DE ZONNA

Mary Ann Barnett left a little town in southern Illinois last month with a public administrator, three children, an expectant cat and a master's degree in microbiology tucked in her handbag.

Mary Ann is the slim, dark-haired wife of Mount Prospect Village Mgr. Virgil Barnett, who left Wood River last month to accept that post with the village.

The Barnetts and a menagerie of cats and kittens live in a comfortable house on Elmhurst Avenue just a stone's throw from the village hall.

"WE'RE RENTING THE house from a retired businessman and his wife who've moved to Florida, and I don't imagine we'll do any more house hunting until next summer, as long as we're already settled for the winter," she said.

"We had a terrible time trying to find a house or even an apartment. Apartments seemed out of the question with three children, at least from the management's point of view. I'd just as soon take my time in finding a house because I want an old home in one of the established sections of town. The trees are beautiful."

Although the Barnetts are from southern Illinois, they aren't strangers to the Northwest suburbs.

"Virgil and I lived on the North Shore for awhile. After we both finished graduate school, Virgil accepted a position as assistant to the village manager in Glencoe, and I worked in the laboratory at the Evanston Hospital."

MARY ANN, who earned her master's degree in microbiology from Southern Illinois University, is interested in medical research and virology. "It's a fascinating, innovative field. I wanted to be a medical researcher at the time, and I think I still do, except that I'm so involved with teaching now."

"I've thought about graduate studies in education because it's such a progressive field. But I don't know. Sometimes there just isn't enough time to do everything."

Mary Ann teaches science and one literature course in Great Books to students in the eighth grade at a Mundelein junior high school. Despite the 30-minute trip each way, she doesn't seem to mind the commuting. "I wanted to teach in Mount Prospect, but I applied so late in the summer."

"But I like the Mundelein school district, and it will be even better if the school referendum is passed. It takes money to support science programs now because the trend is to emphasize lab work. It's so fascinating because students are learning basic concepts in science through lab experience rather than lectures and books."

Mary Ann admitted that after teaching school and taking care of her family, she doesn't have much time for social clubs. "But I'm just not the club type. I don't play bridge or golf, and the only social organization that I've been active in is AAUW (American Association of University Women)."

"I ENJOY THE peace and quiet at the end of the day when the children are in bed and I'm waiting for Virgil to come home from a meeting. I guess you'd say I'm a loner at times."

She seems to have a limitless appetite and curiosity for literature and movies. She's more comfortable talking about Nietzsche's philosophy, John Updike's latest novel or director Mike Nichols' newest film than talking about the weather or a new recipe for chocolate fudge.

While her two sons and daughter watched television, she talked with ease and enthusiasm about writers, education, movie directors, viruses and the promise that she would never lose interest in the basic things in life.

"I was raised in a small town, and I like the peace and the quiet. I don't think I'm part of the hustle and bustle and crowds."

MARY ANN BARNETT is more at home talking about literature and science than she is about the weather. She is the wife of Mount Prospect Village Mgr. Virgil Barnett, and brings to the community a list of educational credentials as impressive as her husband's experience in village administration.

VIETNAM VETERAN Jerry "Butch" Wooley returned home one week ago after having been overseas for 14½ months. Wooley surprised his parents by arriving home before they could put up a large "Welcome Home" sign in front of their residence at 502 Woodview, Elk Grove Township.

For Wooley The War Is Over

by TOM JACHIMEC

Former Army Specialist Jerry Wooley just returned from a trip to "hell."

The 21-year-old, softspoken ex-GI recently completed a 14½-month tour of duty in Vietnam.

Last Friday he came home to his folks house at 502 Woodview, Elk Grove Township. He is separated from active duty now and for him the war is over.

"I'M GLAD to be home," said Wooley, "A lot of others would be glad too if we'd pull out."

His last comment is indicative of how Wooley feels about the entire situation in Vietnam.

He hates it and says it's a mess. He also hates the army and the career soldiers it is made up of. But he also realizes he got himself into it by enlisting for three years, something he'd never do again.

"I think it's a worthless cause," Wooley said. "The South Vietnamese want total victory, but they don't want to fight for it."

Wooley said, "The whole thing over there is really messed up. There's so much money being wasted."

The black market, Wooley says, is really something. It's costing Americans a fortune.

"Any money from the black market eventually ends up in Communist hands," says Wooley, adding that most of the goods sold in the black market have been stolen from the United States.

"There's also a lot of people who are right in the U.S. who are getting richer because we're over there," he said.

"I HEARD ON television last night that we're spending $36 billion on the war. We could be doing a lot over here with that money."

Wooley said, "The Vietnamese don't give a damn about the Americans."

"The people over there won't do anything for themselves. I noted on various occasions where they don't want to fight. They run the other way."

Wooley believes any continued troop involvement in Viet Nam is only prolonging the war. Even if the Americans did pull out all at once, Wooley says, the Communists would take over in one week.

A helicopter scout-observer, Wooley spent many a day flying over the jungles of Viet Nam, mostly in the central highlands near Pleiku and Anson, outside of Qui Nhon, and in the Anlow Valley.

What he experienced he didn't like.

He lost some friends in combat, something he says one has to get used to in war.

For 5½ months he was one of a crew of four whose job was to "find the gooks," the GI's term for the Viet Cong.

"WE FLEW as close to the ground as we could get to find out what they were doing and where they were living," Wooley said.

"We'd look for their hooches and trails and decide how long they lived there. We'd watch to see if they set up a pattern."

At times, Wooley said, the helicopter was fired upon.

"We fired back," he said. "We were really exceptionally lucky, mainly because the gooks didn't aim when they shot. They saw us coming and they were just scared."

He added that quite a few helicopters were shot down.

Many times the Viet Cong would hide their casualties to make it difficult for Americans to get an accurate body count.

"I REMEMBER shooting one gook,"

Jay Plans Fun Fair

The John Jay School PTA will sponsor a fun fair Oct. 19 from noon to 6 p.m. in the school gymnasium.

The fun fair will include games, prizes and refreshment concessions.

Wooley said, "By the time we made the turn to confirm the kill, his body was gone."

One mission he flew was to check for bomb damage.

"Bombing kept Charlie awake all night," Wooley said. Other than that, he didn't think it did any good.

On the go from 12 to 18 hours a day, seven days a week was bad enough, said Wooley. What he hated most was the harassment he said the enlisted men had thrown at them from "liars" or career soldiers.

Wooley said he couldn't see any sense to the "silly inspections" and jobs the enlisted men would be given after a hard day in the field.

WOOLEY ADMITS he had a bitter hate for the career men.

"It was ridiculous, all the harassment," Wooley said. "I couldn't see any sense to it, because we were at war."

Harper OKs Tenure Plan

The Harper Junior College Board last night, after carefully picking through the wording, approved a plan to liberalize procedures to grant faculty members tenure.

The recommendation approved last night reduces the time that a faculty member must wait before he is considered for tenure from seven to four years. The new policy reverses an earlier Harper policy.

Tenure is defined as the right to a continuing contract at a college with no dismissal except for proven cause.

Under the new policy, a faculty member's contract must be renewed by Harper on a year-to-year basis for between three and four years before he may be granted tenure.

The policy approved last night results from consultation between members of the administration and a faculty committee. The change has been under consideration for several months.

The policy sets up elaborate channels for consideration of tenure. Richard Johnson, board chairman, said those channels involve members of both the faculty and the administration, with the help of the board of trustees.

Board members haggled about dates for consideration of various steps in the procedure, but they did not disagree that Harper needs a new tenure policy.

In other action, the board received word from Frank Larocca, of the college's architectural firm, that four laboratories will be useable Wednesday. He shocked the board somewhat by saying that the rest of the labs should be ready by Nov. 1 rather than Nov. 15, the previous estimate.

Securities Firm Gets Pool Nod

Five bids were received for sale of bonds by the River Trail Parks District for construction of a pool last night at the regular board meeting.

Low bidder was the Columbian Securities, Inc., with a net interest rate of 6.847 and a net interest cost of $157,546.65.

The park district hopes to start construction in November or December on the pool to be located at the Woodland Trail Park site at Wolf Road and Euclid Avenue, Prospect Heights.

Plans call for a "T" shaped pool with a diving well, a kiddie pool and a waterized bath house.

Bidding for sale of the bonds was opened after residents in the district voted 848 to 167 to pass the bond issue to build the pool.

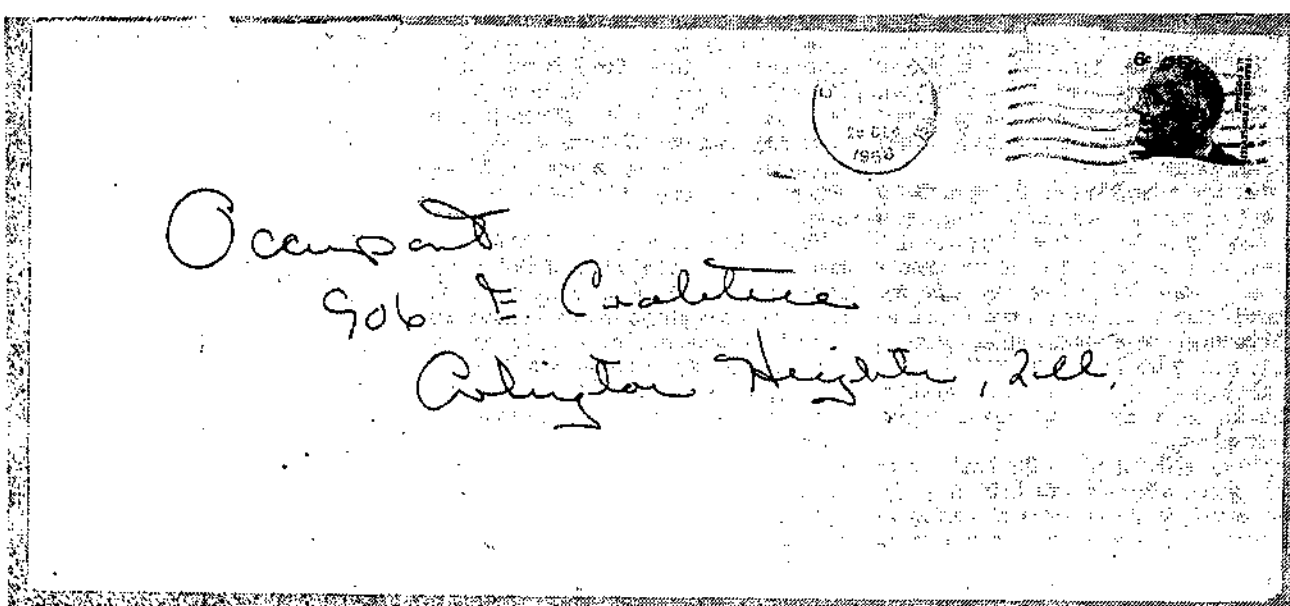

Bidding for construction of the pool will open Oct. 23.

CHICAGO — An order for 2,000 Illinois National Guardsmen to stand by for duty in Chicago to cope with disturbances by demonstrators was issued yesterday by Gov. Richard Ogilvie.

The move to bulwark Chicago's defense against demonstrators came on the second day of a threatened four-day protest led by a militant faction of the Students for a Democratic Society.

Two men were killed and two others seriously injured in a two-car collision on Central Road just west of Busse Road in Mount Prospect early yesterday.

Marine Lt. Gary Spohn, 22, a Vietnam veteran who recently moved from Buffalo Grove to Kansas, was pronounced dead on arrival at Northwest Community Hospital. A passenger in Spohn's car, 23-year-old David Bethards of Racine, Wis., was also killed in the crash.

Lee Cunningham, 27, of Rolling Meadows, is listed in serious condition at Northwest Community Hospital after the car he was driving apparently collided with Spohn's car. Both cars were traveling westbound on Central Road, according to police.

POLICE ESTIMATED that Spohn was driving in the outer lane at approximately 100 miles per hour when Cunningham's car, traveling at a low rate of speed, drifted into the outer lane and collided with Spohn's car.

Police estimated from evidence found at the scene of the accident, that Spohn's car struck the northwest curb of the parkway, struck a fire hydrant and flipped over one and a half times before hitting a tree 278 feet from the crash.

A second passenger in Spohn's auto, Edward Springhoff, 22, of Kenosha, Wis., is listed in serious condition with multiple injuries at Holy Family Hospital in Des Plaines.

DEBRIS FROM THE collision struck a third vehicle driven by Paul Dumke, 21, of Arlington Heights. Dumke told police he was traveling east on Central Road near the Bruning Co. plant when he heard an explosion and then his car was hit with debris from the accident.

Dumke, who was not injured, told police he did not see the cars collide.

Warman Group Is Organizing

"I am asking those who wish to work for the election of Warman to call 437-5087," Gilbert said.

A local group to elect Democrat Edward Warman to Congress is being formed in Elk Grove Village.

The group, called Independent Citizens of Elk Grove for the Election of Edward Warman to Congress, is being formed into a committee by Daniel Gilbert, Elk Grove Park District board member.

"I am not endorsing Warman in my capacity as a public official, but as an individual," Gilbert stressed.

"The committee is being formed to offer an alternative for Republicans and individuals who feel that the Republican candidate will not truly represent their views in Congress.

"IT WILL STRESS positive programs advocated by Warman in areas of suburban transportation problems, the fight against inflation and the Vietnam War, he explained.

It Was THE Groundbreaking

by MARY REIFSCHEIDER

It was a groundbreaking that surpassed all others.

But then it was for Woodfield Mall, Schaumburg's shopping center that will surpass all other shopping centers.

Under a red and white striped tent, set on the dusty 191 acres at Route 53 and Golf Road, several hundred businessmen, government officials and members of the press gathered Wednesday morning to hear just how superlative Woodfield Mall will be.

A. Alfred Taubman, chairman of The Taubman Co., developer and manager for Woodfield Associates, said now the largest center to his knowledge has 1.4 million square feet of leasable space. Woodfield will have 1.7 million.

"WOODFIELD MALL is designed with the newest and freshest thinking to come in the past 20 years. It was designed with the theory that the closer the proximity of the stores, the better for all tenants," Taubman said.

Woodfield will have 160 satellite stores spaced between the three department stores — Sears, Roebuck and Co., J. C. Penney, and Marshall Field.

TWO MEN WERE KILLED in a three-car collision on Central Road, just west of Busse Road, in Mount Prospect early yesterday. The death vehicle, pictured above, was driven by Gary Spohn, 22, who recently moved from Buffalo Grove to Kansas. Both Spohn and a passenger, David Bethards, 23, of Racine, Wis., were killed instantly. Two others were seriously injured in the crash. Police said Spohn's car was traveling nearly 100 miles an hour at the time of impact.

Manager's Wife No 'Club Type'

by GERRY DE ZONNA

Mary Ann Barnett left a little town in southern Illinois last month with a public administrator, three children, an expectant cat and a master's degree in microbiology tucked in her handbag.

Mary Ann is the slim, dark-haired wife of Mount Prospect Village Mgr. Virgil Barnett, who left Wood River last month to accept that post with the village.

The Barnetts and a menagerie of cats and kittens live in a comfortable house on Elmhurst Avenue just a stone's throw from the village hall.

"WE'RE RENTING THE house from a retired businessman and his wife who've moved to Florida, and I don't imagine we'll do any more house hunting until next summer, as long as we're already settled for the winter," she said.

"We had a terrible time trying to find a house or even an apartment. Apartments seemed out of the question with three children, at least from the management's point of view. I'd just as soon take my time in finding a house because I want an old home in one of the established sections of town. The trees are beautiful."

Although the Barnetts are from southern Illinois, they aren't strangers to the Northwest suburbs.

"Virgil and I lived on the North Shore for awhile. After we both finished graduate school, Virgil accepted a position as assistant to the village manager in Glencoe, and I worked in the laboratory at the Evanston Hospital."

MARY ANN, who earned her master's degree in microbiology from Southern Illinois University, is interested in medical research and virology. "It's a fascinating, innovative field. I wanted to be a medical researcher at the time, and I think I still do, except that I'm so involved with teaching now."

"I've thought about graduate studies in education because it's such a progressive field. But I don't know. Sometimes there just isn't enough time to do everything."

Mary Ann teaches science and one literature course in Great Books to students in the eighth grade at a Mundelein junior high school. Despite the 30-minute trip each way, she doesn't seem to mind the commuting. "I wanted to teach in Mount Prospect, but I applied so late in the summer."

"But I like the Mundelein school district, and it will be even better if the school referendum is passed. It takes money to support science programs now because the trend is to emphasize lab work. It's so fascinating because students are learning basic concepts in science through lab experience rather than lectures and books."

Mary Ann admitted that after teaching school and taking care of her family, she doesn't have much time for social clubs. "But I'm just not the club type. I don't play bridge or golf, and the only social organization that I've been active in is AAUW (American Association of University Women).

"I ENJOY THE peace and quiet at the end of the day when the children are in bed and I'm waiting for Virgil to come home from a meeting. I guess you'd say I'm a loner at times."

She seems to have a limitless appetite and curiosity for literature and movies. She's more comfortable talking about Nietzsche's philosophy, John Updike's latest novel or director Mike Nichols' newest film than talking about the weather or a new recipe for chocolate fudge.

While her two sons and daughter watched television, she talked with ease and enthusiasm about writers, education, movie directors, viruses and the promise that she would never lose interest in the basic things in life.

"I was raised in a small town, and I like the peace and the quiet. I don't think I'm part of the hustle and bustle and crowds."

MARY ANN BARNETT is more at home talking about literature and science than she is about the weather. She is the wife of Mount Prospect Village Mgr. Virgil Barnett, and brings to the community a list of educational credentials as impressive as her husband's experience in village administration.
